PACIFIC COAST.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

We have been favored with cooler weather during the last week, but still the expected showers have not materialized. Business shows quite an improvement since the preceding weeks. We are now within a couple of days of Easter and everyone anticipates a good season. Shipments to interior points have been up to the usual standard, is the claim made by several of our largest growers, and the coming of the fleet within the next two weeks has had the tendency to stiffen prices a little. Inquiries from out-of-town dealers give the impression that all along the line florists' trade is brightening, and whether it is to be lasting or not is quite a question. There will be quite a bit of decorating done here and the demand for flowers is bound to be heavy for the next few weeks at least.

Easter lilies are not in oversupply, but there appear to be enough to fill all orders and a few to spare. The prices are about double what they were ten days ago. The cut stems can be bought at from $2 to $4 per dozen and the pot-grown stock at from $9 to $18 per dozen.

Other flowering plants in pots are not overplentiful. The continued warm weather for the last month brought the azaleas and rhododendrons into bloom too soon and but few really good specimens are seen. Spiraea Japonica and Crimson Ramblers are being used in quantity for decorations. Cut roses, owing to the bright weather for the last few weeks, are plentiful and can be had at almost any price offered. The best Brides and Maids cost the retailers about $4 per hundred and from this down to $2 per hundred. About the same price is paid for Maids and a shade higher for Testout and Liberty. Good Beauties can be had at from $2 to $3 per dozen. Violets are practically over for the season, owing to the continued dry weather. Sweet peas have dropped in price to 75 cents per dozen bunches, and the stems are gradually getting longer.

Bulbous stock, with the exception of a few late daffodils, are over for the season.

Smilax is in good demand and but little of it is offered for sale. Narcissus poeticus, about the last of the season's crop, sell well at 75 cents per hundred. Carnations are not as plentiful as they were and the fancy sorts are quickly bought up.

With the decorations for Easter and for the entertaining of the fleet, the dealers, from present indications, will have a busy two weeks on hand.

F. Ludemann, of the Pacific Nurseries, reports a heavy demand for azaleas and rhododendrons in bloom for the Easter trade.

Albert Rossman, of Redding, Cal., representing the Fresno Nurseries, is in town on a few days' visit.

Much complaint exists among the lily growers on account of the prevalence of disease among the longiflorum from Japan. One Elmhurst firm, after planting over 25,000 bulbs, discovered that not over half of them would produce marketable flowers. The Lilium Harrisii, however, have proven much better this season, and the tendency seems to be toward even less disease than formerly. G.

SALEM CHERRY FAIR.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Trade of Salem, Ore., the following committee was appointed to take charge of the annual Salem Cherry Fair: F. W. Power, C. A. Park and H. S. Gile. The Salem Cherry Fair is one of the best horticultural displays of fine fruit that is seen in the northwest. It will be held about July 10, the exact date to be announced later. About thirty to forty cups will be offered as premiums and a large number of diplomas and other prizes. In connection with the cherries there are displays and premiums for general fruits, roses and sweet peas, and it is the desire to have as many nurserymen and florists present as possible. The Salem Cherry Fair being held just after the meeting of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen affords eastern nurserymen the chance to attend without the expense of two trips to the Coast. A special invitation is extended to all nurserymen, florists and horticulturists to be present. Announcements of program and premiums will be made later.

ALVIN, TEX.—It is expected the annual crop of cape jasmine will begin to move about May 5, which is several days earlier than usual.

MIDLAND, MICH.—Wm. Smith has removed his greenhouse to a new location. His glass covers 33x100, and adjoins his dwelling.

RICHMOND, IND.—G. R. Gause says Easter business was excellent. Roses, carnations, lilies and blooming plants sold well. Prices were as good as in former years. The season up to date has been a good one. A large amount of funeral work has kept every one busy. Although a great amount of stock has been thrown on this market this season, no flowers have gone to waste. The prospect for spring plant business is also encouraging; many advance orders already booked.

YOU MAY BE TOO NEAR YOUR OWN BUSINESS

That's the trouble with a good many florists when it comes to writing their own advertising.

They are so immersed in the details of their business that it is hard for them to look at things from the standpoint of the disinterested outsider.

It is this valuable "outside" attitude of the prospective customer that we can bring to your advertising problem.

You ought to get in touch with us if you feel that you haven't the time and the training necessary to prepare the most effective advertising yourself—and at the same time do not favor cut-and-dried "stock" advertising.

It is more than likely that our INDIVIDUAL service is just what you need.

If your advertising is not paying or if you are about to start a campaign—write us. We can help you. Send data and $3.00 for four trial Ads.

State of Trade.

Not one of our local florists is murmuring a word of complaint regarding the trade for Easter. From the view of our wholesaler, business was great, and the demand was ahead of the supply. Carnations were not any too plentiful and good prices were realized from them. Roses were fine and it was difficult to find enough to fill orders. Longiflorums were most popular, and they surely were fine. Callas went as well as could be expected. Valley held its own, but the supply of bulbous stock was limited, owing to the warm weather.

The retailers all speak favorably of Easter trade, and say that stock in general sold fine.

Various Notes.

W. G. Matthews went to Chicago April 16 on a short business trip.

William Ritter, Jr., was tendered an informal reception by a number of his friends April 13 at the Algonquin hotel. Mr. Ritter is one of Dayton's promising young florists, who has charge of the retail store of H. H. Ritter, in the Algonquin hotel building. Mr. Ritter has since the reception become a benedict.

James Ewings, formerly of Elgin, Ill., has recently moved his family to Dayton. Mr. Ewing will take charge of the rose section at the Miami Floral Co.

M. & L. Johnson had their spring opening April 16.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Pres., J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; Vice-Pres., G. M. Hobbs, Bridgeport, Ind.; Sec'y, Geo. C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. The 33d annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, June 10 to 12, 1908.

THE increase in the sale for field-grown roses is something phenomenal.

THERE were 262 cases of nursery stock on the last boat from Rotterdam to New York.

THE weather in the greater part of the country has been especially favorable to the nurserymen and they are doing a first-class business.

THE Elk City Nurseries, F. W. Budurtha, manager, Elk City, Okla., say the spring business was not only better than expectations, but shows a large increase over last year.

THE bridal wreath, Spiraea Van Houttei, is one of the most popular early flowering spiraeas. It flowers about the end of May, producing white flower clusters in abundant profusion along the curving branches. It grows from seven to ten feet high.

THE George Wittbold Co., Chicago, says the sale of shrubs is beyond its rather sanguine expectations at the time the nursery at Edgebrook was started a couple of years ago. The local demand has thus far occupied most of their attention, but it is expected to steadily develop the wholesale end.

A LARGE number of the leading nurserymen in Holland, members of the Dutch Nurserymen's Association, have, at solicitation of the similar British body, signed the following: "The members bind themselves not to send any trees, shrubs, plants, roses, etc., to Great Britain, Ireland or Scotland, for the purpose of public sale by auction, under a penalty of 500 guilders, to be paid to the cashier of the society."

DEVIL'S LAKE NURSERY CO.

The Devils Lake Nursery Co. has been incorporated, with John W. Maher, Henry Hale, J. E. Maher and William Schwartz as members. The nursery will be situated on the Maher farm one-half mile east of Devils Lake and will comprise about eighty acres of the finest

NEW ROSE

MRS. JARDINE

A FREE, STRONG GROWTH, WITH GOOD FOLIAGE. A VARIETY THAT CAN BE EASILY GROWN. LARGE FLOWERS ON LONG STEMS. DELICIOUS FRAGRANCE. DISTINCT, PLEASING COLOR THAT WILL SELL AT SIGHT. A ROSE THAT WILL HOLD ITS COLOR IN THE DULL DAYS OF DECEMBER AND JANUARY.

MRS. JARDINE has all these characteristics, and, in addition, is of so perfect a form that it can be used either in the bud or half expanded flower. The color is a bright rosy pink, shading in the outer petals to salmon pink, and, even in January, when Bridesmaids and Killarney lose their color, Mrs. Jardine is as bright as in October or March.

We extend a cordial invitation to everyone interested in this New Rose to visit our Nurseries and see it growing.

MRS. JARDINE has been awarded Two Silver Medals, numerous Certificates, and successfully stood the best test which any novelty can possibly have in passing unanimously, in December, the Award Committee of the New York Florists' Club after an exhaustive examination of the growing plants, with a score of 92 points.

Strong Plants on own roots, from 2½-inch pots, $6.00 per doz.; $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1000; 5000 for $1125.00; 10,000 for $2125.00.

planted. Mr. Maher states there is now on the way to the nursery a carload of seedlings from L. L. May & Co. and also a carload from the Jewell Nursery Co., of Lake City, Minn.

William Schwartz, of Charles City, Ia., who has been seventeen years in the nursery business, is one of the members of the company and will have charge of the nursery.

REAPPRAISEMENTS.

NURSERY STOCK.—From The Union Nurseries, Ouenbosch, exported February 23, 1907; entered at New York. File No. 48403. Invoice No. 10454. Findings of Hay, G. A.: Advanced by disallowance of deduction of shipping charges.

NURSERY STOCK.—From J. Grootendoret & Son, Boskoop, exported February 26, 1908; entered at New York. File No. 48410. Invoice No. 10728. Findings of Hay, G. A.: Thuya occidentalis, 6-7 feet; entered at 40 cents, advanced to 50 cents each. Add cases and packing. Discount 5 per cent.

CATALPA FOR TIMBER.

The Catalpa Land Co., of Peebles, O., which was recently organized for the purpose of planting catalpa trees for commercial purposes, has bought the M. H. Newman and Boyd tracts of land, three miles west of Rarden, O., and has already begun the work of carrying out its plans. Glen Brown, general manager of the company, states they expect to plant about 50,000 catalpa trees on the two tracts, and is trying to interest others in planting the trees.

Louie Pooch, owner of the Albert Tonnenman farm at West Mount Joy, O., is having 15,000 of the trees put on his farm this spring and others will follow suit.

We have sold all the Amurense privet advertised in the REVIEW and could have sold ten times more.—AURORA NURSERY Co.

MEADVILLE, PA.—George W. Haas reports the Easter trade about the same as last year, but thinks it would have been much better than usual had it not been for the fact that the Erie railroad laid off a large number of men a few days before. Lilies and spiræas took the lead in plants and carnations in cut flowers, but there was also a good call for violets. Saturday was a rainy day, which also hurt the trade.

We are in unusually good position to supply exceptionally well-rooted, healthy stock. We have such a large quantity of flowering plants that we propagate only from heel cuttings from flowering shoots. Our cuttings are rooted in light, sunny, airy houses, and we are sure will satisfy the most critical buyer.

A prominent carnation grower writes: "You seem to be the only firm in the business that knows how to pack stock and have it reach the buyer in good condition, and I have always found your cuttings cheaper than the same varieties from others at much lower figures."

While our prices may not always be the cheapest, we certainly can give, quality considered, as good value as, if not better than, is obtainable anywhere.

We offer also BEACON and RED CHIEF, from sand, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000. From soil, $7.50 per 100; $60.00 per 1000. Also VICTORY, MELODY, WHITE PERFECTION, from sand, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. From soil, $6.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000. VARIEGATED LAWSON, WHITE LAWSON and RED LAWSON, from sand, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. From soil, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. We can also supply WINONA and AFTERGLOW, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Buyers will find transplanted stock offered from soil well worth the difference in price.

SALEM, VA.

This Easter has been one of the best from the florists' view. Even the late date of the festival did not seem to have any effect on the demand. Roses, carnations and spring flowers were plentiful and of good grade. Violets were entirely knocked out by the last three weeks of hot weather. Lilies were poor in quality and had no call. Callas were good and the demand fair. Easter plants, such as spiræas, azaleas, etc., were fine and sold readily at fair prices. Some belated cyclamens were on sale and brought good prices.

At Salem Conservatories the crowd was large and the greenhouses afforded a welcome shelter from the frequent showers during the latter part of the week. By Friday nearly all the stock had been disposed of and prospective purchasers had to await the arrival of trains from Philadelphia and Washington to get their wants supplied. Altogether it has been a very satisfactory season, both to florist and customer.

Dreer's Hardy Perennials

Largest assortment of desirable varieties. Plants of proper size to give best immediate results. For complete list of varieties see our current wholesale list. :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: ::

Many planters not thoroughly familiar with this class of plants have an idea that nothing but a large, field-grown clump will give satisfactory returns for the season. This, as experience has taught us, is in most instances a mistake. A vigorous plant of proper size will, in nearly every case, give quicker and better returns than the best so-called "field clumps" that can be procured. It will be noticed that the majority of the stock offered in this list is described as being 3, 4 or 5-inch pots. This does not necessarily mean that the plants have been altogether pot-grown, but that they have been field-grown and dug and potted up during the Fall and early Winter months, and such stock can be planted, even late in the Spring, with practically no loss, which, in the case of clumps, is often quite serious.

BALTIMORE.

Easter Business.

The Easter market this year was one of the worst on record. Hyacinths in 4-inch pots were sold for 10 cents; cut daffodils and narcissi were sold at 12½ cents per dozen, and tulips at 10 cents per dozen. Carnations retailed for 15 cents per dozen and few brought more than that. Hydrangeas and azaleas were plentiful and brought good prices. Harrisii lilies were scarce.

Various Notes.

The Gardeners' Club has purchased a glass case, in which to place the bowling trophies it has won. At the next meeting one of the government experts is going to give a talk on soils. There will also be an exhibition of new roses and carnations, which is expected to attract a large audience.

Charles M. Cook has a fine lot of hydrangeas, some carrying ten large heads, which were colored to perfection. There was a large demand for these for the Easter trade. Q.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y.

John C. Hatcher, who has been conducting a prosperous business here for more than twenty-five years, and who has been receiving a steadily increasing patronage from Schenectady, has now opened a branch store in that city. The new store is located in the New York Central building and is attractive in appearance. The interior is finished in white, with foliage green trimmings. A handsome McCray cooler has been installed. The store will be managed by Miss Harriet A. King.

BOONVILLE, Mo.—E. C. Stammerjohn will add to his glass this summer.

FAIRMONT, W. VA.—H. G. Fleming says he had the best Easter ever experienced. Cut stock ran short and plants sold well. After stock became scarce, price was no object.

WASHINGTON.

The Easter Business.

Easter is over and everybody is satisfied. Business was about the same as last year, as far as could be learned. There was plenty of stock. Plants sold better than last year. The prices were not so good and plants at from $3 to $5 had the call. The market did a fine business in cheap plants. The weather was fine up to Saturday afternoon, when it rained, but cleared in the evening.

Among the strange things to be seen for Easter was a lot of pure white mums at Gude's. Small had a large egg made of capes decorated with pink ribbons. Gude had a 6-foot cross made of white satin decorated with lavender rhododendrons, with a bank of Brianii fern and rhododendron plants.

The decorations of S. Kann's Sons & Co., which were postponed, came off this week. It was the largest decoration of its kind ever seen in this city. The 1,000 employees presented the firm with four floral pieces. The committee had all the different florists submit original designs and selected one for each floor. Gude Bros. captured all four. On the first floor was a huge fountain of American Beauties and Brianii fern, with miniature electric lights to represent the dripping water. On the second floor was a tree of American Beauties. The branches were tin tubes filled with water and covered with moss. On the third floor was a huge basket vase made of Richmond and Ivory roses. On the fourth floor was a pyramid bank of palms and blooming plants with a rustic fence around it. Small & Co. had the firm's order for southern smilax. They used forty cases, decorating all the pillars and several arches. Miniature lights were used in the arches.

J. J. Harty & Co., the wholesalers, cleared up everything for Easter. Mr. Harty was the happiest man in town Sunday.

C. S. Siebold, from Baltimore, was over April 18. He was astounded at the amount of stuff handled in Washington.

Outdoor lilac is at its height; 5,000 bunches were sold at the market April 18. O. O.

ST. LOUIS.

Easter Trade.

As was expected, this was a plant Easter. This is the report of the leading retailers in the west end, who handled great numbers of extra fine blooming plants. Cut flowers sold well, too, but not as largely as in years gone by. Trade in general was good, but cannot be compared with last year. After six weeks of Lent, and rather dull business, the trade expected more, but the majority express themselves as satisfied.

As to cut flowers, there was plenty of everything in season. The only scarcity noticed was of violets. Large quantities of stock were sent in Saturday and Sunday mornings, but the wholesalers seemed to clean up on colored stock. White carnations did not sell well; in fact, there were too many in the market.

Bulb stock, which everyone thought would be all cut out, came in large lots. Roses, too, were abundant, especially pink. Prices broke early Saturday and all stock went at more reasonable rates than expected. As to lilies, the market had all that were needed, much stock being of poor grade and showing plainly the effects of disease. These were naturally the leading Easter flower; both cut flowers and plants sold well. The standard price on them was $12.50 per hundred. Other pot plants that sold well were azaleas, hydrangeas and tulips.

Church decorations were, as usual, presenting no new features, and were as elaborate as in former years.

The weather was most beautiful, which gladdened the hearts of the store men as to delivery.

Various Notes.

Fred W. Pape opened his branch store last week, at the corner of Park and Grand avenues, in time to catch some of the Easter business in that neighborhood, and his attractive window display brought him some trade. His Pennsylvania avenue place also did a nice Easter business.

David I. Bushnell, the seedsman, left last week for a four months' tour of France, Norway and Sweden, where he will devote his time to archaeological research.

Frank M. Ellis, who has made his home in Panama for the last fifteen months, visited his family Easter week, making his headquarters at his old stand, now run by "Billy" Smith. Mr. Ellis looks well and says he gets a great deal of comfort while away by reading the REVIEW each week. J. J. B.

NEW CANNAS

—1908—

ROSEA CIGANTEA. This beautiful variety has extra large flowers, which are borne in such abundance that the mass of color on each plant is amazing. Single petals are 2½ inches across; color, a deep, rich rose, almost a coral carmine. Plants make a vigorous growth, producing unusually fine clumps of green foliage. Height, 4 feet. (A great favorite with visitors to our trial grounds.) Strong plants, $2.00 each, prepaid; $18.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

GLADIO-FLORA. Remarkable for the unusual shape of the flowers, which look like large Gladioli. Petals are not long, but short and rounded and so wide they overlap each other, thus giving a very attractive appearance to the flowers. Color is crimson, changing to carmine rose with an uneven edge of gold to each petal. Height, 3½ feet. Price, strong plants, $2.00 each, prepaid; $18.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

METEOR. Meteor is a vigorous grower with healthy green foliage. It is highly valued because of its magnificent flowers, fully four inches across, and abundance of bloom. Color is a deep crimson; very rich; each plant usually throws up five to six trusses of buds, which continue blooming luxuriantly all summer through. Price, plants or dormant roots, 75c each, postpaid; $6.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

WILLIAM SAUNDERS—(1907). The flowers are large, of splendid form and are borne very freely in immense clusters. The color is a deep, rich, shining scarlet, lightly dappled with crimson. Foliage is a rich bronze. Height, 3½ to 4 feet. We believe that Wm. Saunders is decidedly the most perfect canna of this type that has been introduced. Those who tried Wm. Saunders in 1907 say it cannot be excelled. We offer plants only: 60c ea. postpaid; $5.00 per doz.; $35.00 per 100 by express, not prepaid.

GRAND RAPIDS.

The Market.

Easter week started in fair; then there were a couple of days of rain. Friday was hot. Saturday started in to rain early, cleared up by 10 a. m. and was then an ideal day for delivery, as well as selling. The supply of flowers was ample for all demands, the only scarce articles being Beauties and red roses.

In cut flowers, lilies had the call. While a quantity of bulb stock, daffodils, tulips, etc., were sold, some growers found the dump their best customer and large quantities found their way there. Carnations and second grade roses also were wasted. There were immense quantities of pot lilies too short to be sold as cut blooms, and of these there were many left over, while cut flower grades were scarce.

In plants there were plenty of fine ramblers, hydrangeas, lilacs and lilies. Lily plants sold well; there were large quantities sold and just as large quantities left over. Every prominent dry goods store, drug store, corner stand and peddler wagon had lily plants for sale. The quality was poor, the price cheap, and they sold as never before. Anyone could get a lily plant at from 25 cents to 50 cents, and with some a cheap lily was a lily just the same, and sold regardless of quality. What effect these sales had on the trade in stores is hard to determine. The quantity of flowers was far greater than ever before, prices were low, and total sales with the various florists ranged all the way from ten per cent to forty per cent less than last year. Out-of-town shipping was about fifteen per cent less than last year. G. F. C.

BAY CITY, MICH.—Boehringer Bros. had a fine Easter. They have had a big crop of carnations, but need more stock and are investing $2,000 in another greenhouse.

ORCHIDS

Just Arrived, in Fine Condition

ONE of the largest consignments of plants ever received in the United States at one time; namely, 80 cases Cattleya labiata, 100 cases C. Trianae, 40 cases C. gigas, and a fine importation of Cattleya Schroederæ. A very large importation of D. Formosum and D. Wardianum, all in perfect condition.

Will arrive in a short time: C. Mossiæ, C. Gaskelliana, C. Percivaliana, C. Warneri, C. Harrisoniæ, Lælia anceps alba, L. anceps, Oncidium varicosum Rogersii, O. tigrinum. Intending buyers of Orchids would do well to come and see this stock before buying elsewhere. Our prices are reasonably consistent with good stock. All our goods are collected by our own collectors, thereby assuring our customers the best stock the forests afford. Come and see them. These goods if potted at once will yield abundance of flowers the first year, paying for the cost of the plants in the fall.

We also carry a large stock of established Orchids. Also orchid peat, Sphagnum Moss, Baskets, etc. A trial will prove we carry the best stock that can be secured. Come and see for yourself and be convinced of these facts.

TOLEDO, OHIO.

The Easter Trade.

April 18 was the busiest day in several years among local florists, both wholesale and retail, and more flowers were disposed of than in any one day in years. Every store was supplied with extra help and many worked all night putting up orders.

While lilies were the favorites, other flowers were not far behind. Roses and carnations sold in extra large quantities and violets also went well.

Flowering plants were in demand and there was a large call for hyacinths and tulips in pots.

At the store of George Heint an extra large force was kept busy until nearly dawn. The Schoen Floral Co., Patten's, Suder's and a number of others kept open nearly all night.

Nearly every church in the city was handsomely decorated with Easter lilies and this consumed thousands of flowers. The Schoen Floral Co. used about 1,000 flowers in decorating the Trinity Episcopal church.

Trade began light again this week, but the retailers are satisfied with the big business of last week and are grateful for the chance to rest.

All florists declare that trade was far better Saturday and Sunday than at any preceding Easter. H. L. S.

INDIANAPOLIS.

Current Comment.

Trade this Easter was good, especially in cut flowers. Plants were rather overdone and prices ruled low during the evening. All the store men report the sales were beyond their expectations. The flower market at Tomlinson hall was kept well supplied all day and several of the florists rented space on the outside, to accommodate their overflow. S.

PORTSMOUTH, O. — Tuesday evening, April 14, C. H. Knost fell into a reservoir containing ten feet of water, near his greenhouses, and when he was rescued his life was so nearly extinct that it required about an hour to restore him to consciousness.

DIELYTRA SPECTABILIS.

For the better part of a hundred years that fine herbaceous plant, Dielytra spectabilis, has been a popular garden subject, and though during the period that has elapsed since its introduction great improvements have been made in matters horticultural, and many have been the new and beautiful plants introduced, it does not lose anything of its popularity, but still remains one of our best border plants, and one of the most useful, elegant, effective, and easily grown of early-flowering plants. Quantities of the irregular fleshy roots are annually imported for forcing, but there seems to be no good reason why it should not be grown for this purpose at home as well as abroad.

Not only is Dielytra spectabilis a most useful plant for gardens, but if very early flowers are not wanted it may be grown in pots in a cool house.

In heavy soils and low-lying districts Dielytra spectabilis sometimes suffers from late spring frosts, but usually it is a success, and needs no special treatment, although a thinning out of growths when a clump is long established, the support of a few thin sticks, and an occasional thorough soaking with liquid manure are matters worthy of attention, inasmuch as they bring their reward. The graceful racemes of rich rose-colored, inflated flowers are too well known to need description, but well flowered growths, with their own elegant leafage, are charming in a cut state for vases.

The Gardeners' Magazine says that of course we all know that this old favorite should be called dieentra, but we have known it so long as dielytra—though that title itself ought to be dielyrta—that florists practically all adhere to the name we are familiar with.

I AM sold out of gladiolus bulbs. The little advertisement in the REVIEW was a good investment.—FRANK KLOTZ, Bowling Green, Ohio.

Greenhouse Heating.

PIPING IN PENNSYLVANIA.

I am about to put up an addition to my greenhouses and would be thankful if I could get the proper information as to piping the old as well as the additional houses.

My present house contains seven flows and eight 2-inch returns, arranged as follows: Under the north bench are three flows and three returns; under the middle bench, two flows and two returns, and under the south bench, two flows and three returns. These flows are fed by a 4-inch cast-iron main, which runs across the house near the boiler and returns in 4-inch pipe, which runs aside of the main flow and returns to the boiler. My house is an even-span house, 18x70 and eleven feet to the ridge, with two feet of glass at the sides. The east end has a glass gable and the west end is protected by a workshop over the boiler-cellar. The north and center radiators are fed by the one side opening from my Hitchings Camel Back No. 16 boiler, and the south radiator is fed by the other side opening from the boiler; also a 4-inch pipe.

I find that during severely cold weather the front part of the house runs from 8 to 10 degrees colder than the rear end, and wish to be informed how to arrange the piping differently, so as to maintain about the same temperature at both ends. Could I feed two 2-inch returns and one 1¼-inch return with one 2-inch flow, by feeding at the far end from the boiler? That is, could I run the 2-inch flow along the ridge, and at the far end, seventy feet from the boiler, branch out into two 2-inch returns and one 1¼-inch return, the 1¼-inch return to run directly under the middle gutter, between the two houses, so as to keep the gutter free from ice? Could I cut out the radiator under the south bed altogether, if I place the above-mentioned piping along the ridge and purlins, and feed the entire house from the one side-opening 4-inch main? This would give me the other side opening from the boiler to run a 4-inch main into the new addition, which will be 20x80, even-span, and eleven feet to the ridge; the two gables and the south side will have two feet of glass. Could this house be heated with the one 4-inch main and about twelve 2-inch pipes?

I want the additional house for chrysanthemums and vegetables, while my

GRAND ISLAND, NEB., January 22, 1906.

UNITED STATES HEATER CO., Omaha, Neb.

DEAR SIR:—We have one of your Capitol Boilers in our greenhouses, and I want to say that it is the finest Steam Boiler I ever saw. Glass surface is hard to heat, but we have no trouble whatever. It is saving us coal and we can keep a better temperature than we ever had before. No work to take care of it, no flues to clean. It is simply a bird. We shall build more houses in the near future, and shall want another of the very largest you have. Very respectfully, present house is used for carnations. I know I am taxing my boiler above the rating, but will have arrangements made to twin another No. 16 boiler to the present one, in case the one cannot heat it properly. Can three 2-inch returns be properly fed with one 2-inch flow?

JOHN ELLSWORTH, Bus. Mgr., Ellsworth Greenhouses.

This is the evidence of practical experience. If your present heating system does not give you similar results, surely you will put in a Capitol Boiler without delay. If you are building new greenhouses, surely you will equip with Capitol Boilers.

F. N. B.

The house 18x70 should be heated for carnations by twelve 2-inch pipes. It should be possible, therefore, to eliminate the three pipes in question without danger.

Yes, one 2-inch flow will carry two 2-inch returns and one 1¼-inch return of the length required by your house.

The new house, 20x80, should have at least thirteen 2-inch pipes to give a desirable temperature for mums, lettuce, radishes, etc. If tomatoes are contemplated, install at least fifteen pipes. The two houses, thus piped, carry about 1,200 square feet of radiation and should have a boiler capacity of at least 1,500 square feet.

man on heating. I will give briefly the piping and plans I have intended to use, and if wrong in any way will be glad to receive suggestions.

I am erecting three houses here in Wisconsin, each 27x262 feet. In two of the houses I shall grow roses, and in one carnations, with a partition between the carnations and roses.

I am installing two tubular boilers, sixteen feet long and fifty-four inches wide. They are on a side hill ten feet below the main level of my houses. They will be cross-connected or twinned, so that one or both boilers can be used.
The boiler plant is at the southeast corner of the houses. I leave the boilers with a 4-inch main, which will be covered the entire distance with asbestos; carry this uphill to my gutter level, which is seven feet above the level of the houses; then I take this 4-inch main to the middle of my houses on the first row of posts in the south house; then run it crosswise of the houses to the north wall.

In the rose house there will be three supply pipes running each way from the main, and nine returns. The returns will have valves at the end of the houses, so a part of them can be cut off for mild weather. I bring the returns back within about twenty feet of the center, and then reduce into a 3/4-inch to the return pipe to the boilers. All of the heating pipes are 1 1/4-inch. I have a fall of about three feet crosswise of my houses.
I have added extra piping in each end of the houses; all of the pipes go under the benches excepting the 4-inch main.

In the carnation house there will be three supplies and seven returns. As you will see from my description, my houses are on a side hill. The houses are well protected from the northwest and north by the top of the hill and residences, and on the northeast by a grove.

Kindly let me know if you would run the returns nearer the center of the houses. Is there piping enough in the

THE JOHN DAVIS COMPANY, Chicago, Ill.

GENTLEMEN:—You can strongly and unhesitatingly recommend the "Eclipse" piston type reducing valve to florists. We have two purchased of you last year. We would not have them out for double their cost and find them as sensitive as a watch. We will be in Chicago soon to take up houses? Is it all right to run up from the boilers to my highest point and then gradually go down with my 4-inch supply? Are swinging check valves all right in the 3/4-inch pipe just before it goes into the return to the boilers? Is there fall enough for a natural return, or would you install a trap? Would you advise a pressure regulator?

I am using 16x18 double strength glass, laid the 18-inch way and lapped.
I have 24-inch glass on the north wall

WAYSIDE NOTES.

Oscar Hay, gardener to P. B. Bradley, at Hingham, Mass., has a scarlet carnation seedling, from Enchantress x Mrs. Patten, which promises to be a fine commercial sort. It is intense in color, perfect in habit of growth and very free. He also has a variegated seedling from Helen Goddard x Lady Bountiful. Both are in the second year of trial and will be exhibited next fall. The Marshall strawberry is forced here in large quantity and is a splendid fruit. Cosmos Lady Lenox is flowering freely in 2-inch pots; plants six inches tall have a bud almost every shoot. I noted a large specimen of Rhynchospermum jasmynoides in full bloom. It is a fine plant.

Henry Cole, at Easton, Mass., finds the Comet tomato an excellent variety for forcing. The fruit is not large, but is borne in clusters, as many as thirteen to a bunch. Where used for salad it would be hard to find a more profitable kind. He is adding to the collection of orchids. At present, fine specimens of Cattleya citrina, Cymbidium eburneum, Dendrobium crassinode and Phalenopsis Schilleriana are in full flower. Lilium Harrisii and L. candidum are simply perfect, reminding one of what was usually met with a decade ago.

R. Simpkins, gardener to Mrs. J. H. Rogers, at Peabody, Mass., is making many improvements on this large and beautiful estate. The grand specimens of deciduous trees are his especial pride.

J. M. Ward, of Peabody, recently became a benedict and now wonders why he pegged along all by his lone self so long. The happy couple have the best wishes of all who know them. M.

LEAVENWORTH, KAN. — Miss Kate Dicks, formerly with Mrs. Byrns, has opened a store at 429 Shawnee street.

SALIDA, COLO.—J. H. Freeman, proprietor of the Salida Greenhouses, is planning to increase his glass area this summer, and will also install a larger boiler. At present he uses two houses for roses and two houses for carnations, besides growing a variety of other stock. Mr. Freeman thinks that his location, on account of its high altitude and its consequent freedom from mildew and some other unfavorable conditions, is particularly suitable for the production of fine stock.

HARTFORD, CONN.

Horticultural Society.

At the county building, Friday evening, April 10, the Connecticut Horticultural Society gave an exhibition of carnations which brought forth many expressions of praise for the fine stock shown. There was also an exhibit of the white rose, Kaiserin, shown by Carl Peterson, gardener for Miss Helen Whiting.

The following committee was appointed to pass judgment on the exhibits: Peter Zuger, Frank Roulier and James Chambers. The awards were:

John Coombs, diploma for White Perfection carnation, score 95.

Miss Helen Whiting, certificate of merit for collection of carnations.

W. H. Shumway, of Berlin, honorable mention on his new seedling, The Edward.

Miss Helen Whiting, honorable mention on exhibit of Kaiserin roses.

George W. Smith, of Melrose, delegate from the society to the annual meeting and banquet of the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association, at Worcester, Mass., March 11 and 12, gave an interesting talk on his visit to the society.

The society will hold a pansy show the last Friday in May, and a paper on "The Evolution of the Pansy" will be read by Mr. Girard, of New Britain. The public is invited.

The committee reported that it had engaged Unity hall for September 23, for the dahlia show. The chrysanthemum show will be held in the same place, November 5 and 6. Six or eight new members were admitted. There will be an exhibit of tea roses at the next meeting of the society, at the county building, April 24.

The paper on "Carnations," by H. A. Pinney, carnation grower for John Coombs, was listened to attentively and he was given a hearty vote of thanks. President Huss said it was one of the best the members had ever had the pleasure of listening to.

AN ORCHID BOUQUET.

For the average bride, where people have the price, nothing will do but an orchid bouquet. That was the case with the young woman for whom the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans, made the shower shown in the accompanying illustration. It is said to have been the first bunch of white orchids ever carried at a wedding in the Crescent City, but be that as it may, the illustration serves to give an excellent idea of the character of the work. For so large a bunch, the effect is light and graceful. The manner of using the adiantum is somewhat out of the ordinary. The scarf was tied in a large bow just in front of the hold provided for the hand and added a great deal to the appearance of the bouquet.

THE BRIDESMAID'S STRAW HAT.

The floral decorator is not infrequently confronted with the problem of decorating for a social function the same rooms which were not long before the scene of a funeral. In such a case the decorator's work never is a success if it in any way reminds those present at the social function of that sadder event which has gone before.

W. J. Smyth, Chicago, recently had a case of this kind. He was called upon to decorate for a musical and only a few months before had draped a mantel, with its large mirror, for the funeral of one of the children of the family. In the first case he had used asparagus around the mirror above the mantel, with vases of flowers on the mantel itself. To escape any suggestion of the previous decoration, for the musical he used a light garland of smilax around the glass and hung a basket of jonquils in front of the mirror.

The basket was out of the ordinary and hence held one's attention. It was made of the broad-brimmed, flat-crowned straw hats which are carried by bridesmaids instead of bouquets. As where the hats are used by bridesmaids, the brim was drawn together, forming the basket, with the jonquils filled in irregularly, and a large bow of broad Nile green ribbon attached on the side. A long loop of ribbon, much longer and broader than if the arrangement were to be carried on the arm, sufficed to bring the hat into the proper position when hung from the top of the mirror, and at the point of attachment to the wood another big bow was made. The basket was hung slightly to the right of the center of the glass, to avoid formality.

THE ARTISTIC IN A STORE.

There is doubtless no merchant in America who has given closer thought to the value of the artistic in the furnishing of a retail store than has Finley Acker, of Philadelphia. Whether the business is the sale of flowers or other articles, "the primary purpose in every commercial enterprise is to make money, and whether or not money is made depends upon whether the aggregate expense of doing business, including depreciation of plant, interest upon invest-prices may be quoted and yet insure a profit to the firm. In such cases it is unwise to give the artistic element serious consideration, for two reasons: First, if allowed to permeate the details of management it will necessarily increase the ratio of operating expenses; second, even though the increased expense were immaterial, it would suggest the idea of costliness of operation to the bargain hunter or to one to whom price is the first consideration.

"On the other hand, there are many buyers in this country to whom quality—quality in the article bought, quality in the service rendered and quality in the environment and appointments of the salesroom—are features which appeal to their sense of refinement and comfort; ment and loss by bad accounts, is less or more than the aggregate gross profit," says Mr. Acker.

Bride's Bouquet by Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans.

"The cheap character of business done by some firms, and the exacting demands of the customers who are served, require that the operating expenses be reduced to a minimum in order that low and these buyers are willing to pay a fair price for these advantages.

"My personal opinion is that where prospective patrons are of the well-to-do class, and particularly where they are refined, educated and have extensively traveled, the artistic in a store not only appeals to them favorably, but subtly establishes a feeling of confidence and satisfaction that the establishment is in a superior class and that the management is keenly alive to the constant progressive changes which are taking place, and that consequently they can depend upon securing the most up-to-date goods and service.

"From a commercial point of view, confidence of this character is worth a great deal to the firm, because it eliminates the frequently unreasonable demand that goods be sold at a loss or without profit, and assures the securing of a reasonable profit and at the same time maintains the confidence and good will of the buyer.

"It was with the above ideas in mind that I analyzed the proposition to utilize the first floor and part of the basement of the S. S. White building, corner Chestnut and Twelfth streets, Philadelphia, and which is now known to many as the Acker Quality Shop. This salesroom was about 45x220 feet and had been occupied for forty years by a well known jewelry firm. Notwithstanding its admirable proportions and ideal location, it was unattractive and gloomy, but I believed the building capable of many desirable changes.

"The plans which were finally approved included facing with marble the Twelfth street front and introducing ten additional show windows, five additional entrances and twenty exterior show cabinets. These changes practically gave of the room for a balcony without marring the beauty of the room and possibly accentuating it. The result was eminently satisfactory.

"Considerable thought was given to combine utility with artistic effect. That this has been successful is evidenced by the complimentary remarks made by foreigners as well as Americans who have visited it. I think the result of the experiment has also vindicated the theory that the general public appreciate in a practical way the artistic in a store, provided it is associated with honest goods, up-to-date service and fair prices.

"My own beautiful store is a psychological problem in its entirety, and also in many particulars, and ranks as the most beautiful salesroom and unique luncheon balcony in the world. Paris, London, the orient, the great cities of this country and the leading world's expositions have all contributed some ideas to this modern scheme of adorning a strictly commercial enterprise with such a beautiful and artistic garb that the buyer not only gets value in his purchase but at the same time absorbs a sense of intellectual exhilaration such as is imparted by a visit to a gallery of art.

"Query.—Will not the recollections of the artistic beauty of this French perfumery department enhance the pleasure of the purchaser in the actual use of these dainty and useful toilet preparations? Will not the cleanly and dainty manner in which goods are displayed and be tempted to ascend these stairs and seat themselves at the tables of the Parisian cafe or the English inn or the men's Dutch kitchen. A psychological problem of the balcony is whether many diners will not enjoy luncheon amid such pleasing and versatile environments more than they would in an uninteresting and conventional restaurant? Also whether the food is not likely to be more readily assimilated?

"It is the purpose, so far as practicable, to select for the Quality Shop attendants who look only upon the genial and bright side of life. If a pessimist inadvertently creeps in, he or she must be converted into an optimist or resign.

"The resulting problem is whether the concentrated cheerfulness and courtesy of over a hundred employees in a single salesroom will not enable the buyers to carry away with them sufficient exhilaration to make trading seem more agreeable, and less exhausting than in any other salesroom in the world."

DOUBLE VALLEY.

We are mailing you a spray of lily of the valley and we would like to know if it is a named variety or just a sport. There are a number of double blooms in the bed where these were cut. F. B. S.

The specimen submitted is a sport. Lily of the valley has a strong tendency to produce sports, at least when grown outdoors. Frequently the blooms are double, as in this instance, and occasionally the leaves are striped green and white, like the leaves of a variegated aspidistra. None of these sports has much commercial value.

H. N. BRUNS.

LOBELIA KATHLEEN MALLARD.

One of the best, in fact the best introduction of late years in the class of lobelias is the L. Erinus Kathleen Mallard. It is a very free flowering plant and especially beautiful and remarkable on account of its large double, deep blue flowers. It was brought out about three years ago by a florist in the southwest of England, who named it after his daughter. Subsequently exhibited in London at a meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society, it created quite a sensation by its beauty and prominent qualities among professionals and amateurs.

A big English firm afterward acquired all the rights of it from the man with whom it had originated and then began to disseminate it in England and on the continent. Of course a lovely double and free flowering lobelia, as this one proved to be, made its way quickly. Last summer it could be seen used as a most beautiful bedding plant in the public parks and gardens of quite a large number of German towns. All gardeners who have used it, either as a bedding plant or as a pot plant, speak in high terms of the Kathleen Mallard. But it must be said that the last summer was not very favorable for all sorts of flowering plants, and as that summer brought us a lot of rainy and dull days, it was quite natural that in some places this new lobelia was not quite up to expectations. In shady places especially, and where it stood in heavy and cloggy soil, it was not well able to show up all its advantages.

There is no doubt about it, anyhow, that the Kathleen Mallard does best in bright and sunny positions and light soil. Where such soil is not at hand it is advisable to take pot plants and sink them us an additional frontage of 220 feet. The ceiling was twenty feet high and flat, but I discovered that behind the lath and plaster was a uniform series of arches, the centers of which were twenty inches higher. The architect approved the idea of ripping off the lath and plaster and getting the benefit of the higher ceiling and also the artistic effect of the arches, which were supported by richly decorated beams. This additional height facilitated the idea of utilizing one-half handled when the appetite and impart a delightful sense of confidence when the food is served at the table? Will not these picturesque booths recall to mind foreign climes and add a sentimental charm to the beverages which they produce?

"The 20-foot wide marble staircase and the graceful lines and rich modeling of the dining balcony to which it leads may remind you of the Grand Opera House of Paris. The visitors will into the soil with their pots. In this way difficulties can be overcome, and it is then possible to have free flowering plants even in heavy soil and in shady positions.

I am pleased to see Lobelia Erinus Kathleen Mallard being advertised so much already in American trade journals. I am quite certain, too, that American gardeners will not be slow to notice and appreciate the commercial value of this good plant, and that it will soon be made use of as a bedding plant in private and public places of the United States, besides being grown a great deal as a pot plant for the market. It can easily be propagated by cuttings and is a quick and strong growing plant; it offers no cultural difficulties whatsoever and will undoubtedly find friends everywhere.

A RARE AGAVE.

Can any correspondent of the REVIEW give any information or experience as to where the agave described below is a native, etc.? I think I have seen plants of it occasionally in collections of succulents, but do not remember ever seeing it in the trade. The plant in question came into my possession about twenty-five years ago. It was then about two feet high above the pot and scant three feet across to the extreme points of the leaves. The foliage got badly damaged last fall, which almost reduced it to a stump. Last summer, before the damage was done, it had increased in spread about four inches and in height from four to five inches. It had made this growth in twenty-five years. Early in March it began to show signs of flowering. It now has a flower stem of about two inches caliper and about five feet high, with a joint about every three inches. Now, April 22, four bracts or branches to the main stem are visible, with apparently three or more to come.

From the small progress this plant has made in the last twenty-five years it is easy to fancy it was seventy-five years old when I first saw it. It is different from all other agaves of my acquaintance. It has never shown a sign of a sucker. Under cultivation, most likely it could be propagated by the same means as are often used to propagate dracenas, or the same as are sometimes used with pineapples of shy suckering varieties. I should think that in a state of nature it would seed freely. If not, it is no wonder it is scarce. We have all heard, even as children, of the century plant, the Agave Americana, which has the credit of being peculiar in this respect, but I have known the Agave Americana to flower before it was thirty years old, and in that time it made suckers enough to plant a city lot.

TO RID GREENHOUSE OF MOLES.

In answer to Augustus Caspers' inquiry in the REVIEW of April 23, I will say that my way of ridding the greenhouse of these pests is to purchase at the druggist's one half-pound can of carbon disulphide (carbon bisulphuret).

After finding an open hole, drop into it a piece of cotton saturated with the liquid, covering it over immediately with earth, to keep the fumes down. Carbon disulphide, when exposed to the air, forms a heavy gas, which settles down into the moles' hole and smothers all animal life there.

This is also effective in killing moles and gophers in the garden and field.

The operator must be careful not to breathe too much of this gas. In using in the greenhouse, put it in at night, so that you will not need to be in the house for a few hours afterward. Also keep well corked and away from children.

I have always found this a sure death for moles and gophers, as it kills every animal in the hole where it is put.

LILIUM PHILIPPENSE.

The Philippine lily, Lilium Philippense, is an old variety to which attention was attracted a season or two ago by the efforts of a Boston seed house. It has been tried by a large number of growers for forcing under glass, but it has appeared in only one or two wholesale markets, and then only in occasional lots. While the trumpets are enormous and the plant is easily handled, growers do not seem to see in it any advantage over the longiflorum types when considering it as a market crop, either as cut flower or pot plant. It has, however, one advantage which should recommend it to those who grow lilies for their own local trade; it may be forced season after season for winter bloom, the bulbs seeming to gain strength each season if allowed to mature in the natural manner after flowering. The trumpets are larger and longer than those of any other of the white flowered lilies, but the plant is more attenuated in its growth, both stem and foliage and the base of the trumpet being thinner than in the longiflorum types.

E. H. Cushman, of Sylvania, O., has discovered that the Philippine lily is also suitable for summer garden culture, which is thought to be an entirely new use for it in this country. The plants grow vigorously under ordinary garden conditions, the immense snow-white trumpets, nearly nine inches long, being supported on slender stems two feet high, thickly clothed with narrow foliage. The perfume is rich and powerful, and the blooms themselves rather more lasting than those of Harrisii and longiflorum. Mr. Cushman gives the following directions for the garden treatment of this interesting species:

"In the garden or border no lily is easier to grow. Select a place in full sunshine, if possible, away from trees or tall plants that might take the moisture and light. Plant in May not less than four inches deep in loose, mellow soil. Beware of fresh manure or acid fertilizer. Give plenty of water when growing; in their native mountains they are deluged nearly every day during the growing season. In cutting the flower stalk be sure to leave enough foliage to develop and ripen the bulb. When the foliage ripens in October, dig the bulbs and store in dry sand or earth. With a light mulch the bulbs seem fairly hard but they are so easily kept in it seems advisable to lift and bring winter."

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Show Pelargoniums.

May and June are the months when show pelargoniums are in season. A few bloomed this year for Easter, but, as a rule, they cannot profitably be flowered so early. They cannot tolerate forcing, for it quickly ruins them by promoting soft, spindling growths and flowers with little substance, and gives aphids, the arch enemy of this plant, a glorious chance to cripple it. Now that the pots are well filled with active roots, an abundant water supply is necessary. One or two wiltings will speedily cause a loss of a large part of the foliage. A surface dressing with some highly concentrated chemical fertilizer alternated with waterings of cow or sheep manure water once a week will keep the plants in a vigorous condition.

On no account omit the regular weekly fumigation, as aphids now spread with alarming rapidity. Avoid the use of tobacco stems. These will cause the petals to fall in showers from the plants unless the doses are mild. Spread the plants out to give them a chance to become shapely and remember that they love a cool, airy house.

There are now so many fine new varieties of these beautiful pelargoniums that every commercial grower handling pot plants should try some. For Memorial day work they are fine.

Primulas.

In the rush of other spring duties, there is always a possibility of primulas being neglected. The early sowings should now be growing in shallow pans and the strongest will soon be ready to shift into 2-inch pots. Keep them well up to the light, in a night temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. P. obconica grows more vigorously than P. Sinensis. The latter is more easily spoiled by an over-supply of water and quickly resents sogginess at the roots. A good compost for these primroses in the early stages of growth consists of two-thirds leaf-mold and one-third loam, with some sharp sand and fine charcoal added to give it porosity and sweetness.

The baby primrose, P. Forbesi, seems to have sunk into oblivion, to a large extent, but the new golden yellow P. Kewensis is a fine commercial variety, one of easy culture, and anyone who can make obconica grow and flower hardly can fail with the newcomer.

Planting Evergreens.

The first half of May is undoubtedly the best time of the year in which to transplant evergreen stock of all kinds. In August during cloudy, showery weather is the second best period. Our experience has always been that the greatest success was to be had by planting evergreens just as growth was commencing. If the plants are to be moved only a short distance and they can be moved with balls of earth, there should be few failures. When, however, the stock has to come hundreds of miles, and the roots may have become dry in transit, there is quite a different proposition to face.

No evergreens should be planted with the roots dry; neither, for that matter, should deciduous stock. Dryness is less destructive, however, to plants without foliage than to those carrying it.

We need hardly further advise the thorough preparation of holes for evergreens, the soaking thoroughly before planting of all balls which may have become dry, the firming of the soil as hard as possible after care has been taken to get it well among the roots.

A good and safe plan with evergreens is to partially fill the hole and firm the soil, then soak with water and let this drain away and dry a little before filling in the balance.

Avoid exposing the roots to drying winds and do planting on dull days whenever possible. If a light rain is falling, the conditions are ideal for successful planting.

Sowing Outdoor Annuals.

The early sowings of sweet peas should have been cultivated before this time and it is well to give them the necessary supports as soon as possible. Do not practice drawing up additional soil to your plants. It is responsible for many failures in sweet pea culture. If your seed has come up thickly, have the courage to thin them. Four inches apart each way is sufficiently thick. Better returns are to be had by sowing an ounce of seed to twenty feet run of row than a half pound to the same length, as we have several times seen.

Mignonette cannot be classed as one of the best outdoor annuals. The spikes are insignificant if compared to those produced under glass. It is, however, useful in the flower garden and for mixed summer bouquets is appreciated.

Centaurea cyanus and C. imperialis should be sown at once. Both are excellent for bunching. The annual larkspurs and lupinus can be sown at any time, as can the Shirley, Danebrog, Mikado, Bride and other poppies. Cover the seed of all poppies very lightly. Scattering on a smooth surface and a scratch over with an iron rake is all that is needed.

Candytuft and alyssum are useful annuals. Each may be sown now. Godetia, eschscholtzia, nemophila, nigella, nemesia and other varieties useful for massing can be sown with safety. Nasturtiums in the northern states are often cut off by late spring frosts and we have found it unwise to sow them before May 10.

It is yet rather too early to sow asters, stocks, zinnias and other annuals in the open air. It is late to make any further sowing of sweet peas. These late sowings never give the returns of the earlier ones.

Compost Piles.

Too often the proper preparation of the compost piles is put off and put off until planting time arrives and then it is, perforce, done with a rush in a slipshod manner. The soil stacked last fall, mixed with layers of good cow manure and intended for rose, carnation, chrysanthemum and other crops, should be chopped down and turned over without delay. If inclined to be sour, add some air-slaked lime. It is better to add the necessary amount of fine bone now rather than at planting time.

If for any reason the requisite amount of loam has not been secured in the fall, it should be got as soon as time will permit, and stacked, so that the sod may have some time to decay before being used. Do not allow weeds to have a free run over your loam stacks. It is quite a common sight to see a scythe in use to clean a way to the compost heaps, which are themselves obscured from view by a veritable forest of vigorous growing native plants. It is poor policy to go to the trouble and expense of preparing compost and then allowing weeds to largely exhaust it.

Campanula Medium.

Brief Reminders.

Continue to get the hardier bedding stock into coldframes, but be sure to cover the sashes on frosty nights.

Carefully watch the crops of ten weeks' stock, candytuft and feverfew for Memorial day. Air freely, water carefully and scratch the surface to prevent baking.

Add a little more shading to the glass roofs on palm and tropical houses.

Pick the seeds from all left-over azaleas as they pass out of flower.

Finish all pruning of outdoor roses without delay and keep the surface soil stirred among them.

Start your crop of valley in frames for Memorial day.

Give the hydrangeas, spiræas and other Memorial day stock an abundant water supply.

Prune dead wood from deciduous shrubs before they come into flower. It adds much to their appearance.

Loosen the surface soil among tulips, narcissi and hyacinths outdoors.

Plant out Incarvillea Delavayi and montbretias carried over winter in the cellar.

Continue propagating Lorraine begonias from bottom cuttings. These will still make good plants.

PLUMOSUS WITH OTHER CROPS.

Please tell us what would be the best crop for cut flowers to grow in a house in connection with Asparagus plumosus. I should prefer to grow carnations, if possible. How much space should be given between plumosus plants growing in a solid bed in the center of the house, the flowering stock to be grown on side benches?
J. A. C.

Calla lilies would make the best crop to grow in a house in connection with Asparagus plumosus. The shade on the north bench, also the high temperature at which plumosus is grown, would be detrimental to the carnations. Fifteen inches is about the right distance between plumosus plants.
ALBERT F. AMLING.

CAMPANULAS.

This is not the first time that the REVIEW has given space for commendatory remarks on campanulas. I believe, however, that the distinct ornamental qualities as garden plants and the high value as cut flowers of quite a number of varieties justify my present attempt to advocate their claim for wide recognition. Campanulas have so far found a permanent place and due cultural attention chiefly within New England gardens. Nowhere else have I seen them employed in such quantities and grown to such perfection as in our northeastern states. My impression is that few perennial borders or herbaceous flower gardens are complete without some of the best varieties of campanula being part of the composition.

Especially among the peach-leaved species there are striking forms and colors which deserve a careful trial by every garden owner and plant lover. Wherever Campanula persicifolia grandiflora is shown to perfection it finds ardent admirers. So, also, does the white variety—grandiflora alba. Perfectly hardy, they begin to bloom in June and last well into August, bearing an abundance of clear blue or white, bell-shaped flowers, on long, erect stems. Their good keeping qualities make them an excellent material for filling vases.

The same may be said of C. persicifolia Moerheimi, a more recent introduction, of free blooming habit and double bells, of a wonderfully clear, glossy white. It has proven a ready seller, both for cut flowers and plants.

The hardy biennials, C. Medium and C. calycanthema, are great favorites with the throngs of northern summer residents and, among other localities, have their innings in Bar Harbor gardens, where the breaking of their countless buds is a distinct feature of the floral display of the season. No matter if white, pink, pale lavender or deep violet, everyone loves Canterbury bells and their pure and bright hues. In fact, it seems hard to decide whether their rich blossoms are more ornamental on the garden border, or in the floral arrangement of vases for indoor decoration. Strong, bushy plants, of both the single and the cup and saucer forms of Canterbury bells, when lifted and potted late in the fall, may be overwintered in a cool, airy place and forced the following spring. The same is often done with the tall growing variety, C. pyramidalis. Well flowered, they find easy sale and are otherwise valuable for the decoration of a conservatory.

The wealth of flowers of the low growing blue and white C. Carpatica is most effective in the rock garden. They are equally adapted for bordering purposes in both formal and informal arrangements. The charm of the many little bells on a sunny day, swaying lightly in the summer breeze, makes one feel as if he could not afford to be without them.

C. fragilis and C. Mayi are of trailing habit. Half hardy, they produce a mass of blue flowers practically through the whole season. They are much used for the planting of vases and piazza boxes in England and continental Europe and deserve more attention in American gardens.

Concluding my notes, I cannot refrain from mentioning the clustered species. The illustration of the variety C. glomerata Dahurica, shown herewith, is a reproduction of a photograph taken in the Mount Desert Nurseries in Bar Harbor last July. It shows the character of growth and wealth of the blue blossoms of this type of bell flowers so well that there is nothing further to explain.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Edward Hoyt.

Edward Hoyt, of New Canaan, Conn., died April 17, age 76 years. He was one of New England's oldest nurserymen and a man of many other large interests in the community. He had been ill but four days, with pneumonia.

The business of Stephen Hoyt & Sons Co., of which Mr. Hoyt was the president, was established about sixty years ago, by Mr. Hoyt's father. It had become one of the most important nursery interests in New England. Besides his attention to this business, Mr. Hoyt had found time for much outside activity. He was the president of the First National Bank of New Canaan, and a director of the Storrs College. He had held many political offices and had represented his community in the state legislature. He is survived by a brother, besides a widow and four children.

ANTS ON ROSES.

Under separate cover we are mailing you a bottle containing a number of ants which we find in the soil in our rose beds. They are eating off the roses at the base. We sent you a sample some time ago, but your Mr. Ribes said they had escaped before he received them. Now, we would like to have you name, if possible, a method and way to destroy these pests in the soil in the beds. Understand, the roses are planted and we cannot use anything that will hurt the plants. We have tried lime, tobacco, and a solution of Paris green, with absolutely no effect. You can put any or all of these on the soil at one time, and it will drive them away for a few hours, but they return the next day. If you can tell us how to get rid of these pests you will do us a great favor.

A. G. L.

These insects are what are known as white ants, Termes bellicosus. They are entirely different from the true ants, and resemble them only in living in highly organized social communities and in being endowed with as high and as specialized instincts. They can be eradicated by using bisulphid of carbon. This is a colorless, volatile liquid used for destroying ants, phylloxera on the roots of grape vines, and other insects that work underground and which can only be reached by vapor or liquid.

On exposure to air the liquid evaporates, and, as the vapor is heavier than air, it settles rather than rises. It is highly inflammable, and great care should be taken to keep it from fire. Special caution should be given against smoking while the vapor is in the house.

The liquid has a disagreeable odor, which disappears when the ventilators are opened. Place the liquid in shallow dishes and have vents all closed. One pound is sufficient for each 1,000 cubic feet of space.

Muriate of potash applied as a fertilizer has a decided insecticidal value against underground pests. The soil should be well watered immediately after applying the fertilizer. RIBES.

ROSE FOR NAME.

Under separate cover I am sending a cutting from a climbing variety of rose and would like to be advised as to its name. The variety throws shoots very early, and even had little buds last December. It blooms profusely early in the season, rests during summer and blooms again in September. The blooms are deep red and semi-double. R. P.

The branch of rose plant was so withered and dried up that it was impossible to identify the variety.

Identification of a rose by leaf or branch is a difficult matter, even when the specimen is in good condition. In order to secure proper identification, the rose must be seen in its growing state, so that all its characteristics can be noted. RIBES.

GRAFTED STOCK.

Carl Peterson, a successful forcer of roses, at Hartford, recently told the Connecticut Horticultural Society how he does it. In part, he said:

"For the growing of roses I prefer grafted stock, instead of the own root plants, and I know from experience that grafted roses have a more vigorous growth and produce larger flowers than those on their own roots. Among the stocks I have tried to graft on I have found Manetti the best for indoor culture. This stock we import from Ireland or France, receiving them in the fall, when we pot off in 2½-inch pots, place them in a house about 40 or 45 degrees, and syringe them once or twice a day. When they begin to have root action, and break, they are ready for grafting.

"The way we do is to use the splice graft—make a clean cut about three-fourths of an inch, match the two parts together and tie it firmly with raffia, and put them in the grafting frame. This frame is made so that the temperature can be kept, as required, from 80 to 82 degrees, and is placed in a convenient position in the greenhouse. Leave the newly-grafted plants in this frame six or seven days without ventilation, and never allow them to get dry or the sun to shine on them. Gradually open the sash on the frame, so that the plants will grow accustomed to the air. After two weeks they will be ready to be taken out of the frame, which will be three weeks in all. Never allow a rose plant to get potbound—shift from 2½-inch to 3-inch pots, and, if necessary, give them another shift into 4-inch pots. After six or seven weeks they will be ready for benching out.

"The next thing to do is to pull out the old roses, clean the benches and whitewash them, then fill them with soil from the compost you have prepared in the fall. The soil we use is heavy loam, or grass sod, taken from the pasture, piled up with three parts of soil and one of cow manure. This must be worked over some time in the winter, after which it is ready to fill into the benches. Add 150 pounds of bone meal and a bushel of air-slaked lime, and 100 pounds of sheep manure to a house 20x100. Mix the whole thoroughly fine and break up all the lumps. The benches are then ready to be filled with plants.

"After planting give them a good watering and syringe them twice a day during the hot weather. Give them all the air possible, day and night, during hot weather. When fall and the cooler nights come, more attention to the ventilating and watering is necessary to prevent black spot and various other diseases which are apt to come. The temperature should be kept as near as possible at night to 56 or 58 degrees, and during the day with air up to 75 or 80 degrees—even to 90 degrees on some warm and bright days.

"Mildew is one of the worst pests of roses and can be avoided by putting sulphur on the heating pipes.

"Red spider will become troublesome, but syringing very thoroughly every bright day will keep them away.

"Greenfly is another enemy of the rose grower, but is easily kept away by fumigating with nicotine.

"If the plants get into strong, vigorous growth, a mulching of half soil and well-rotted manure during the early part of November, should be given. If they keep on growing, a watering of liquid manure every week should also be given. This treatment should carry the plants successfully through their blooming season."

WINCHESTER, KY.—Shearer says the Easter sales of cut flowers were almost double those of last year, but that the business in blooming plants was not what it might have been. He distributed a handbill to every house in town, announcing a special Easter opening, and sold out clean on cut stock. He says there now is more inquiry for bedding plants than at any time in the last four years.

SOIL AND THE FLORIST

Proper Drainage.

The discussion of the composition, structure and availability of plant foods in soils (see page 13 of the REVIEW for December 26) brings me to consider a principle underlying proper land drainage. It is very important that when rain falls upon a field the excess water remain only just long enough on its way through the open water passage to saturate the soil; anything longer than this provides time and opportunity for the most valuable plant food materials carried in the water films about the soil grains to diffuse out into the moving water and so become lost in the drainage. Thus we have an explanation of a seeming paradox—namely, properly drained fields lose less of their soluble plant food by under-drainage than do those poorly drained.

Next in importance to the internal soil surface, among the physical factors which determine the productive capacity of soils, is the segregation of their soil particles into granules, crumbs or kernels. Without it, all but the extremely sandy soils must be sterile, even though they carry an abundance of plant food. Without segregation we have the puddled clay, but with segregation highly developed we have the light, deep, tractable, mellow, fertile loams so congenial to the widest range of crops.

Lack of Available Moisture.

The low-producing power or absolute sterility, so invariably associated with puddled soils and with those too close in texture, we believe to be due primarily to a lack of available moisture, notwithstanding the seeming paradox that they are carrying an excess of it. It is a familiar fact that crops wilt and cease to grow in close-textured, clayey soil still carrying eight to twelve per cent of water, while they may grow luxuriantly in a coarse sandy soil possessing but one to three per cent. So, too, we often find desert types of vegetation growing in humid climates on extremely close-grained clayey soils and, more strangely still, in peat swamps where the water content is excessively high. To understand these facts it must be remembered that there is a certain thickness of water film which is held so firmly to soil grain surfaces as to be wholly unavailable to the crop. Portions of this layer cannot be driven off completely, even at the temperature of boiling water. When all of the facts shall have been worked out and demonstrated, we believe it will be found that the thickness of the unavailable layer of water about the surface of soil grains is essentially the same whether these be large, as in the coarse sandy types, or very small, as in the finest clays; and if this is the case the absolute amount of unavailable water must increase as the internal surface of the soil becomes greater and as the diameter of the soil particles decreases.

Sandy and Clay Soils Contrasted.

The coarse sandy soils, with their relatively small internal surface, carry a correspondingly small amount of unavailable water and hence in them small rainfalls in dry times have a relatively high efficiency. So, too, must soluble plant food and fertilizers, when applied to them, and for the same reason, have a relatively high efficiency. But in the finest clay soils, especially if they are not strongly granulated, the amount of unavailable water is very large and hence it is that heavier rainfall during drought periods and more liberal applications of fertilizers are required to produce the same relative increase, but it is possible to have the finest clay soil so completely puddled, or separated into its ultimate grains, and the effective soil surface thereby so enormously increased by the minuteness of the particles, that nearly the whole of the water, even when the soil is saturated, becomes unavailable to plants and for the simple reason that the water films are too thin and therefore too strongly held to be removed. From the standpoint of plant function we have the paradoxical condition of a sandy soil containing perhaps one per cent of water being effectively more moist than a puddled clay soil containing twenty to thirty per cent, or than a peaty soil containing perhaps forty or fifty per cent.

But when the finest clay soils are put in a highly granular condition, with the kernels having the order of coarseness of the sandy soils, these compound grains may themselves become invested with water films which are thick and therefore available to crops. By such a change in structure, therefore, the clay soils not only retain their enormous surfaces to carry water in which plant food may develop and accumulate, but by the bunching of the fine particles there has been superadded to the already enormous surface an additional large area which now is able to retain much water in available form and so fortunately placed that the plant food from the moisture within the soil kernels can diffuse out into the available film and thus also become available to the crop.

Openness of Structure.

Tilth, or the physical condition of the soil, then, must be of very great importance in determining the productive capacity of fields, first of all because it limits the availability of the soil moisture and through this, at the same time, the availability of plant food itself. Without the coarse-grained texture and openness of structure there must be imperfect drainage, inadequate soil ventilation and a lack of freedom for movement and of room for the proper development of either the roots of crops or the multitude of soil organisms whose activity is so indispensable to the maintenance of soil fertility. The full significance of this openness of structure may be better appreciated when it is stated that exact measurement has shown that when soils of the coarse sandy, loamy and the finest clay types are reduced to their single grain condition the rates of air and water movement through them become as 900 to thirty-six to one; the flow being 900 times more rapid through the coarse sandy soil than through the finest clay type. But in another way, if 2.5 hours are required to remove an excess of rainfall from a coarse sandy soil, then four months would be insufficient to effect the same result in a field of the finest clay type when in the condition of its single grain structure, while some four days would be required for the loamy soils, and this is longer than the average interval between rains in humid climates. More than this, in the properly open soil there are but 2.5 hours between rainfalls during which diffusion can carry the soluble plant food into the water draining away, while in the other conditions this loss by drainage is continuous.

CARNATION NOTES.—WEST.

Planting Out.

Planting out your young carnation stock will now be claiming your attention, and the sooner you get them out after danger of frost is past the better it will be for them. If you have only a few thousand plants to put out, it will be a mere matter of a day or two of work and the hurry is not so great; in fact, you can wait for a favorable spell of weather. But if you have 25,000 to 50,000 or even more to plant out, it becomes a more serious problem. In that case an early start and perseverance are quite essential, lest the last planted ones get out too late to get the advantage of the fine growing weather all through May and early June. That is when the plants get their start which tells in the quality at planting time, especially those for early benching.

It does not pay to get them out too early, thus having them hit by severe frosts, unless they have been well hardened off by running the house cool. This is impractical on most places, because the young plants seldom occupy a house to themselves, but are set on a bench here and another there, in with other stock. So it is best to wait until danger of frost is over and then push the work to conclusion as rapidly as possible.

How to Hurry the Work.

You can facilitate matters considerably if you will make preparations beforehand as much as possible, so that when planting begins you will not need to stop for anything. See that there are on hand plenty of trowels, large field labels, and lines to plant by; also plenty of trays to carry the plants in, as they are dumped from the pots. Make a list of the varieties which are set on each bench in each house, so that when planting, all the plants of each variety can be planted together and no time need be lost in running around hunting a batch which you thought was potted and was not, etc. Go over the plants and top all that will bear topping, and if you can stand them over and weed them, it will save you much time at planting time. These are all small matters in themselves, but collectively they can cause you much vexatious delay later, when time is precious.

Preparing the Ground.

If you broke up the field last fall, the ground will likely be in nice condition after being plowed and harrowed this spring. If, however, it was not plowed last fall and is inclined to be lumpy after plowing, the best implement for pulverizing it is the disk harrow. This is a splendid implement and every grower should own one. After harrowing the ground, go over it again with a drag. This will smooth the surface and prevent the soil from drying out as it would if left rough. Be sure the soil is in proper condition when you plow it. It should crumble readily when turned by the plow; to turn it too wet means ruin to the plants.

Get the plants out just as soon as possible after the field is prepared, while the soil is moist and mellow. When you begin operations, organize your force so that things will move along rapidly. Organization and system are the secret of success in all matters where many hands the soil can be handled, and we never fail to have it done before it is safe to begin planting out. If you have failed to do this job, you can manage to do it in case rain stops planting a few days, providing you will cover the heap with sashes or boards to keep the rain off it. Sashes are better, because the glass will allow the sun to strike the soil and keep it sweet. If you do a spring plant business, you will find little time for this after May 15 until the last of June, and that will make it too late to get the best results.

Many growers give this soil preparation too little attention. Up-to-date growers recognize the fact that having the bench soil in a proper mechanical condition is of greater importance than adding a certain proportion of manure to it. The fertility of the soil is essential, but quantity of fertilizer does not necessarily mean fertility, as a grower should understand that term. A fertile soil is one which contains a liberal amount of plant food in an assimilable condition. The best way to get soil into proper mechanical condition is to keep it broken up and exposed to the weather. When it is spread out in a thin layer this is an easy matter, but when it is piled up the weather cannot reach far below the surface. The lower part of the pile in time will become like the natural soil several feet below the surface, and to prevent this the pile must be turned over and broken up, at the same time breaking up all the unrotted sod and manure.

RATS IN CARNATION HOUSE.

I should like to hear from you in regard to doing away with rats, as they manage in some way to get in and eat my carnation blooms. I have used many remedies, but without success.

W. C. W.

We have been troubled with rats and mice occasionally and have used a number of preparations successfully, some patented and others not. Rat-biskit, Stearns' Electric Paste, Rough on Rats—these are all good. We have also soaked wheat in water poisoned with Paris green or arsenic.

You are no doubt aware that by far the best means of destroying these vermin is a good, hungry cat. Many growers object to a cat around the greenhouses because they are more or less of a nuisance, but if your place is overrun you would better put up with one or two of them for a while. They will soon run the rats out.

Being engaged in growing and sale of plants and flowers, naturally a number of floral papers come to my address, but about a week ago I was handed a copy of by one of your subscribers. After looking it over carefully I have concluded that it is the paper I need and therefore enclose a money-order for $1 for a year's subscription.

are employed on a job. You will notice that most men are more adept at one or two things than the average man. In some cases it is quick action, while in others it is strength and endurance, etc. Place every man where he will accomplish most and see that no man has to wait for another, etc. That is what counts. Let every man be kept hustling to keep up with the next one.

The Compost Heap.

Have you turned your compost heap yet, this spring? We make a practice of doing this every spring, just as soon as

CEMENT BENCHES.

A combination of iron, wood and cement, when properly placed, should make a durable bench and also be free from some of the objections to the all cement bench. Galvanized iron pipe cross-pieces and legs, set in cement, make a good foundation. Fittings that will join the parts together and hold the side boards in position are also needed. Two lines of pipe, carrying the water for the plants' needs, are run on top of the cross-pieces and within a few inches of the side boards, with which they run parallel the length of the beds. A piece of wire netting as a reinforcement is placed on top of the piping after the side boards are fastened in position. A false bottom, built beneath the piping, is removed after the cement is set. If it is desired to have the bottom movable, so that boards or other material may be substituted, the material can be made into slabs and laid across the piping.

In the photograph reproduced herewith will be seen the two styles. In the foreground is the permanent construction, in which the bottom of cement cannot be removed without being broken to pieces. Corn cobs are thrust into the meshes of the wire; this serves to hold the wire just the right distance from the false bottom when the cement is run on, and also leaves holes for drainage after the cobs are knocked out of the dry work.

Just back of this are the cement slabs, some standing on end against the side wall and others being laid across the bench. The man is holding one edge-wise to show the thickness. These are molded very simply, by using ordinary hemlock or cypress boards six inches wide and cut to fit between the side boards. These are laid close together across the bench and a lath placed at every joint. The cement is run on and pieces of fence or ribbon wire are pressed into each section. When dry the slabs can be moved off the boards and be laid upon the pipe supports, spacing them to afford whatever drainage is needed.

One part of cement to three of sand is used, and, where sand can be cheaply procured, the first cost will not greatly exceed cypress lumber, which at the best will last but a few years, while the cement is rot-proof.

The slabs are made more quickly than the permanent bottom. It takes longer to set up the false bottom, and time is also consumed in working around the corn cobs, or whatever is used to make drainage holes. If the laths are uniform in width the slabs will be of uniform thickness, and a plasterer's trowel can be used to smooth the material over rapidly.

USE OF ANESTHETICS.

Forcing Plants Artificially.

Various means are employed to control the dormant period of plants, such as pruning, covering, attention to condition of growing wood in case of woody plants at the beginning of the period, and the like. In recent years attention has been turned to the use of anesthetics such as ether, chloroform, etc., for this purpose, especially with certain flowering and herbaceous plants. This method of treatment has been successfully practiced to some extent in Europe, but has not assumed commercial importance in this country.

Experiments by the Vermont Experiment Station with the use of ether in the forcing of rhubarb has been noted in a bulletin. In a report of later experiments along the same line, W. Stuart says:

W. H. White's Combination Bench.

"The use of anesthetics as an aid in the forcing of flowering shrubs, tuberous and bulbous plants, and herbaceous perennials, has not as yet assumed commercial importance among growers in this country. In Germany and France, however, they are now used extensively in many of the large commercial establishments. Their use at the present time is almost wholly confined to flowering shrubs, such as lilacs, viburnums, deutzias, spiræas, azaleas, etc., which lend themselves most readily to anesthetic influences. This class of plants come into bloom early in the spring, complete their growth at a comparatively early date, and then pass into a state of rest. Normally plants will not start into growth until they have entered into the latter part of the rest period. The largest measure of success, therefore, in the use of anesthetics must necessarily come from plants subjected to the influence of ether or chloroform during the earlier stages of rest.

"The process of treatment is a comparatively simple one. Plants which are either dormant or are entering into the stage of dormancy are subjected to the vapor of ether or chloroform in an airtight room or receptacle, for from twenty-four to seventy-two hours, depending upon the earliness or lateness of the treatment and the temperature, the anesthetic being poured from above into an open vessel within the receptacle. The amount used per cubic foot of air space is largely governed by the temperature, moisture, season of year, and kind of plant to be treated. The higher the temperature and the later the season, the more violent is the effect; hence the amount and time of exposure may be said to vary inversely with the temperature and the season when treatment is given. Apparently there is greater latitude in the amount that plants will stand than is currently believed. The action of chloroform is much more intense than that of ether, and only one-third to one-fourth the amount should be used.

"The relative increase in earliness of blooming period of treated over untreated plants varies inversely to the earliness or lateness of the forcing period. It is claimed that growth is hastened about a month by treatment. The amount of bloom is considerably increased thereby, but on the average a gain of from ten to fifteen days is about all that may be expected."

As a result of his own experiments and of those of other investigators, Professor Stuart believes that "the anesthetization of flowering shrubs, such as lilacs, viburnums, azaleas, deutzias, spiræas, etc., is a feasible and practical commercial enterprise for the florist." He found in his later experiments, as in the earlier, that etherization of rhubarb plants for winter forcing resulted in an increased yield, but that freezing of the rhubarb clumps, at least early in the season, as is generally done in rhubarb forcing, is a necessary preliminary process, since etherization does not seem to perform the same function as freezing. He is of the opinion, however, that actual freezing may not be necessary for late forcing.

The action of ether on asparagus and potato tubers was also studied in the Vermont station experiments.

"There seems to be some evidence of a responsive action on the part of asparagus to ether, but the results secured thus far are so inconclusive as to preclude definite statement. Dormant potato tubers were treated similarly as was the rhubarb, but in no case was there evidence of either beneficial or deleterious effect upon vegetation."

The use of anesthetics would seem to have some promise of practical value in the forcing of plants, especially as an aid in more completely controlling the period of maturing of the desired product, but the details of the practical applications of the method and the limits of its usefulness remain to be worked out.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The greenhouse office of Johnston Bros. was burglarized April 23. The thieves secured nothing but four overcoats.

HILLSBORO, ILL.—F. C. Winklemann says garden work has been backward on account of too much wet weather, but that he has nevertheless had a bigger trade this year than ever.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1908: President, F. H. Traendly,
New York; vice-president, George W. McClure,
Buffalo; secretary pro tem., Willis N. Rudd, Morgan Park, Ill.; treasurer, H. B. Beatty, Pittsburg.

Annual convention, Niagara Falls, August 18 to 21, 1908.

First National Flower Show, Chicago, November 9 to 15, 1908; W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, chairman.

Results bring advertising.
The REVIEW brings results.

E. G. HILL has been invited to visit France this season as judge at the national rose show.

THE Society of American Florists sends out a neatly printed announcement of the national flower show, together with a cordial individual invitation to exhibitors.

It has been decided in the United States circuit court that it is illegal for the express companies to issue franks for the transportation of merchandise in interstate commerce.

SECRETARY FRASER, of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, has issued in pamphlet form the proceedings of the society at its sixth annual convention, held at New York last November. The pamphlet also includes a list of the varieties disseminated in 1907 and a list of the members of the society.

THE LITTLE THINGS.

The REVIEW constantly is pointing out to advertisers and others the necessity for prompt attention to the small details of business. When an order is received it should be promptly acknowledged. If the stock is not on hand for immediate shipment, information should be given when shipment will be made.
In case an order cannot be filled with promptness, the money should be promptly returned. No buyer, whether he has answered an advertisement or whether the order has come through some other source, wishes to be left in uncertainty as to when he is to receive the stock ordered; he is entitled to a chance to order elsewhere if prompt delivery cannot be made.

As bearing on the carelessness displayed by some wholesale florists, Hall & Robinson, Montreal, write: "We sent an express money order for $25, payable at par in the florist's town, asking him to ship plants promptly. Not receiving invoices, etc., as soon as we thought we should, we wrote again, and that time received a prompt reply that he was out of stock and he returned his personal check for the amount, on which we had to pay 25 cents exchange! We called his attention to it and in justice to him we must say that he sent us 25 cents in stamps (United States stamps —we are in Canada). Now, why did he not say at once he was out of stock and return the money order? There is no question that he is perfectly honest, but he is mighty negligent in small matters."

There is an old saying, "Take care of the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves." It applies with equal force to the details of doing business; take care of the little things and the big ones will take care of themselves. It is neglect of the little things that causes the greater part of the friction and loss in business.

Registration of Sweet Peas.

The names of the following winter flowering sweet peas are submitted for registration by Ant. C. Zvolanek, Bound Brook, N. J. Any persons objecting to these registrations, or knowing of any reasons why they should not be made, are requested to communicate with the undersigned at once. Failing to receive any such communications within twenty days from this date (May 1), the registrations will be completed.

Greenbrook, seedling from Mrs. Geo.
Lewis x unnamed seedling, height over six feet, flower white, standard slightly lilac, very large, orchid flowering up to four flowers to a stem, stems average eighteen inches.

Blue Bird, seedling from Walter Wright x Wallace, height over six feet, flowers blue, bearing up to four flowers on 20-inch stems, standard wavy.

Governor John Franklin Ford, seedling of Mrs. Wm. Sim x Spencer seedling, height over six feet, foliage narrow, flower pink, when fully open changing to salmon pink, standard wavy, producing up to four flowers on 20-inch stems.

Notice of Withdrawal of Registry.

Learning that the name Mavourneen had previously been applied to a rose, Alexander Montgomery, of Natick, Mass., withdraws the name Mavourneen and desires that the name White Killarney shall stand as previously registered.

W. N. RUDD, Sec'y.

CROP PROSPECTS.

Crop accounts from all sections of the country are, as a rule, favorable. The regular weekly returns to Bradstreet's indicate that except in Texas and parts of Arkansas crop conditions the country over could hardly be better at this early stage of the season. Winter wheat is in fine shape. Rains in Kansas, Nebraska, California and the Pacific northwest have put the crop in splendid condition.
Spring wheat seeding is about finished with a larger area indicated. Oats seeding is finished and the crop looks well.
The ground is in fine condition for corn plowing and planting. Too much rain in Texas has flooded low lands, killed some corn and will necessitate much replanting of cotton, but the season is still early.
In the Mississippi valley all crops are in good shape. An increased area in cotton is indicated in Arkansas, Alabama and Georgia. Fruit and vegetable crop reports are good the country over. A large southern peach crop is indicated at the present writing.

The Great Central Market.

The week following Easter was one of the most unsatisfactory the wholesale houses ever have experienced. There was comparatively nothing doing locally, and the shipping business was nowhere near able to consume the enormous quantities of stock received. It is asserted that the receipts were greater than for any single week in the previous history of the market, and certainly values were utterly demoralized. Every resource has been employed to move the daily receipts and it has not been possible to find an outlet other than the garbage wagon for a portion of the stock. It is probably true, as asserted by some wholesalers, that the waste of greenhouse-grown stock has been heavier since Easter than it ever has been before. The average returns to the growers cannot have been otherwise than disappointing, for by far the greater proportion of the receipts have been sold in other than the regular way.

To review the various departments is almost without purpose, for the story is the same in each item of stock. If anything, roses have been more overabundant than carnations, but the prices at which carnations have been sold will go one step beyond the worst of recent records. April 24 there was a fair clean-up of both roses and carnations, many thousands going to out-of-town cheap salespeople for Saturday.

The quality of both roses and carnations is excellent and the condition of the stock gives no indication of any early let-up in the overproduction.

It is notable that since Easter there has been an almost total absence of demand for lilies. The wholesale houses are incumbered with them and growers are sending in stock of wretchedly poor quality. There also are large numbers of callas which stay the limit of their endurance and are dumped. Bulbous stock is not so abundant as it was, but there is little sale for that which is received. Valley and sweet peas do better, because a large part of demand is for choice flowers for wedding work.

Violets continue to arrive in large quantities, but the approach of summer is seen in the quality, and it is difficult to realize express charges on many of the shipments from the east. There even are more peonies than are needed!

Smilax is almost the only item on which there has not been an oversupply since Easter. Of other greens there is an abundance.

The current week starts off a little better than the one which preceded it, but shipping trade is still much stronger than local demand, without implying special strength in the former. The weather for several days has been unfavorable to cut flower production and has done something to check receipts, but wholesalers in general would be glad to see warm, bright days, and get the present enormous crops off as soon as possible.

End for End.

OUR prediction in last week's issue as to opening of the season is approximately correct. A few scattering shipments will be made prior to May 5th. Commencing on that date, and continuing until May 27th, the output will increase in volume, declining thereafter until termination on June 5th.

Our own supply is about 200,000 larger than last year, so we expect to be able to fill all orders received prior to May 20th, but early orders are safest.

We suggest standing orders for weekly shipments, especially east of Ohio, where the outside temperatures on April 21st must have done considerable injury. Initial shipments on standing orders will start May 5th to 7th. The following quotations are net, F. O. B., Alvin:

is a frame structure remodeled for business purposes, the peculiar feature being that in the remodeling, the front of the flower store was put in the kitchen and a conservatory added on what was once the parlor and which is now the rear of the florist's premises. The florist's building is longer than the brick building that stands on the corner and access is had to what was once the kitchen door, but which is now the front of the flower store because the area at the rear of the building on the corner is vacant. The side of the house was taken out and a plate glass window substituted, where a first-class display was made for Easter. Of course, the interior of the building was thoroughly remodeled for store purposes. The place is neatly kept and makes an attractive showing.

Various Notes.

E. C. Amling says he was not able to see any bright spot in last week's business until he discovered that his sales were several hundred dollars greater than in the week following Easter last year, even though prices were then much higher.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has been cutting large quantities of special fancy antirrhinum, which has had a good sale.

E. H. Hunt says that, while the market is overstocked with New York violets, the local violets still are good and command fair prices.

J. A. Budlong is beginning to cut in the range of Beauties carried through the winter for summer blooming.

C. W. McKellar says there is a first-class demand for orchids, with light supply. His growers advise that Cattleya Mossiae is just coming into crop and that the supply will be abundant in a few days.

Robert Johnstone, who has been with Vaughan & Sperry for several years, has felt the need of more outdoor employment and will spend the summer with his brother-in-law, F. W. Timme, whose own health is such that he finds it difficult to get about as actively as the needs of the business require.

Peter Reinberg is cutting the heaviest crop in the history of his establishment. The production is fully double what it was a month ago.

A. L. Randall is spending a few days inspecting the peach buds on his farm in Michigan, where he will take up his residence in June.

Miss Tonner, manager of the supply department of the A. L. Randall Co., is taking her summer vacation, spending it at the family home at Galewood. It is worth while noting that it is last summer's vacation Miss Tonner is taking.

J. J. Kruchten says that plans for greenhouse building in Bowmanville have generally been postponed. His father, Nick Kruchten, has two other sons in the greenhouses, whom he had intended setting up in business for themselves this season. The plan was to build a range of houses for roses, and put the boys in charge. The market conditions have caused the plan to be put over for at least another season.

George Reinberg is cutting few orchids at present, but these few are of excellent quality and justify his faith in the orchid department. This is the season of Cattleya Mossiae and it will be remembered that last winter the shipper who supplied Mr. Reinberg with the stock of orchids lost most of a carload of these plants through frost. He was not able to replace the stock at once and hence Mr. Reinberg has much less of the variety than he had planned to have. By next season the shortage will be corrected.

L. Coatsworth is expected home in a day or two from a trip to his property in Idaho. When last heard from he was at Salt Lake City on his way home.

Wiector Bros. are busy replanting, not only Beauties, but tea roses, to get an early start for next fall.

L. Baumann & Co. report that their new building at 118 Chicago avenue is rapidly approaching completion and they are planning their removal for early June. A salesroom will be maintained at the present address, 76 Wabash.

and Miss Mamie Munro will be married May 12. The bride is one of the daughters of John Munro and following the ceremony there will be a reception at the Munro residence.

The E. F. Winterson Co. is receiving candidum lilies in large quantities.

One of last week's visitors was Mrs. W. J. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind., accompanied by her daughter.

W. J. Smyth says that the business this season has been fully as good as 1906, but not by any means up to the record business done in 1907.

A. I. Simmons, who has been ill for nearly a year and who submitted to an operation at St. Bernard's hospital about three months ago, is now thought to be on the road to recovery, though the improvement is extremely slow. He has been removed from the hospital to a private sanitarium.

As indicating something of the extent of the business of the George Wittbold Co., and its facilities in the decorating line, April 19 they had decorations on at fifty-four different places, and at every one of the places stock was to be called for and taken away the next morning.

C. L. Washburn has invested in a Studebaker automobile as a gift for his son, Ned, who recently celebrated his twenty-first birthday.

George C. Hartung, at Kensington, says he is doing a first-class business and at Easter sold every flower in the place.

The Foley Mfg. Co. has just issued a new catalogue, containing half-tone views of some ninety establishments, for which it has supplied building material.

J. F. Klimmer says he has a bench of yellow chrysanthemums in full bloom and more coming on. The flowers are sold in bunches of twenty-five and the Randall Co. says the retailers like them because so far out of season.

At the meeting of April 29 the city council confirmed the appointment of J. H. Burdett, assistant secretary of the Horticultural Society, as a member of the small parks commission.

ALVIN, TEX.

The prospect for the annual crop of cape jasmine buds is better this year than for some seasons. The prospect is fine, not only for quality but for quantity. Cook & Cook say that they think Alvin will ship out a third more good buds this year than last. The crop also is exceptionally early, the southwest having had an early spring and favorable weather for the development of the buds. C. W. Benson says he expects shipping to begin about May 5 and all the shippers agree that the traffic will be on in earnest by May 10.

CARTHAGE, MO.—The Florists' Hail Association has recently paid to Steven Hyde $1,776.97, which is said to be the largest loss the association has been called upon to meet this season.

The Market.

The week following Easter, from trade reports, was not encouraging. The retailers say that things were about as dull as they could be in all lines, not excepting funeral work, which generally comes in as a help-out when other work is dull. From reports of our wholesalers, they were up against it good and proper, as they all had a hard time in disposing of their consignments at any price. So, from the reports of both retailers and wholesalers, we can safely say that the trade here experienced a dull business week.

With the greenhouse men it is altogether different. They seem to have plenty to do, as the planting season is upon them. Today, Monday, April 27, a cold wind is blowing and it looks as though their business will be greatly interfered with, should the cold spell last any length of time.

In looking over the stock received April 27, we see it coming in heavily in all varieties and grades, and buyers scarce. Prices received for some of the shipments would hardly pay express charges; still, they have to be sold or dumped. Market quotations could not be given correctly while this great glut lasts.

According to the daily press reports, there are a number of fashionable weddings to take place next month, which should help out greatly for those who have the orders booked for the floral work.

Various Notes.

C. De Wever, of Clayton, reports that he will build four greenhouses this summer. He is growing a great deal of outdoor stock for summer use, such as asters, tuberose, gladioli, hydrangeas and others.

The St. Louis Seed Co. announced last week, in a large advertisement in the daily papers, that Thursday, April 23, after 4 p. m., it would distribute free of charge 60,000 packages of seed to the school children. All that was necessary was for each child to cut out the advertisement and present it. Each package contained six varieties of seeds. The day set for the distribution it rained all afternoon, but still several thousand children braved the weather to get the seeds.

Jules Burdett reports that he will not have to move his place for the next two years, as his lease still runs that long. The Eggeling lease also runs that long, but the Reese place has no lease and the Shaw estate has commenced the grading at this place.

The Belleville florists had quite a scare Sunday, April 26, when at noon a great amount of hail fell. When your correspondent phoned to E. W. Guy, he reported that the damage was only slight, the hail not being large enough to do any great damage. Only a few lights were broken at his place and not any more with the others. But the scare was enough, with the houses all filled with valuable blooming plants and lots of orders for planting out.

Miss Schnell, of East St. Louis, Ill., reports that her Easter Saturday was extra good, but not as good on Sunday as last year. Still, everything was satisfactory. Large funeral orders helped out during the week.

John Cannon, of Webster Groves, was a caller and says his Easter business was even better than last year. Plants sold better than cut flowers.

Frank Fillmore is cutting a fine lot of candidum lilies, also callas and an extra fine cut of carnations. His Easter trade was good.

Walter Sanders, of the Sanders Nurseries, reports that they had a great plant business Easter, much larger than last year. Lilies sold better than ever. Their sales on these were clean.

Bell Miller, of Springfield, Ill., is consigning to C. A. Kuehn a fine lot of Carnot and Kaiserin roses daily. The

The Market.

Cut flowers are in heavy supply, with demand only moderate at present. The hot weather experienced on one or two days has sent things along with a rush, with the result that prices have taken a considerable slump compared with a week ago. Roses are far too abundant and many are cleared at absurdly low prices. Richmond and Killarney remain the two best selling sorts. A large part of the Brides and Maids arriving find their outlet on the sidewalks through the fakers. Carnations are still of fine quality but are in much the same predicament as the roses, far too plentiful. A few fancies reach $3, but more sell at $1 to $1.50 and some even lower. Violets are nearing the end. Some nice doubles are still seen, but singles will be finished this week.

Sweet peas are good and sell as readily as anything on the list. Lily of the valley meets with an erratic call. Callas are about over and there is a light call for lilies. Spanish iris is good and meets with a fair sale. Bulbous stock is beginning to peter out; sales are still slow and the whole season has been a discouraging one for specialists in this line. Some narcissi from outdoors are now arriving. A few nice Gladiolus Gandavensis hybrids are coming in and meet with a fair sale. There is an uncertain call for other flowers, such as marguerites, snapdragons, mignonettes, stocks, etc. Sales of such plants as pansies, double daisies, forget-me-nots and other spring bedding plants are now active. Bedding geraniums are also making their appearance thus early. The call for flowering plants since Easter has been light.

Club Jottings.

F. E. Palmer's talk, May 19, on the subject "Some Thoughts on the Art of Selling" will undoubtedly attract a large audience. Mr. Palmer is a clear headed, up-to-date commercialist and has been one of the best workers in the club since he joined it.

The interesting collection of seedling liliiums, shown April 21 by Farquhar & Co., attracted great attention from members. These plants were raised from seeds sown in February, 1907. They carried from one to six flowers per stalk. The stem and foliage resembled L. longiflorum closely, while flowers showed strongly the influence of L. Philippense. A peculiarity about these hybrids is their herbaceous character. They continue to throw up flowering shoots. James Farquhar said they would produce four lots of these during the season.

In the discussion on Mr. Sim's paper on sweet peas, the lecturer condemned the practice of drawing soil up to the stems of sweet peas as they grow and believed it was responsible for much of the dying off of the stems. During the season his sweet peas are under glass, he uses either bone meal or sheep manure twice, forking it into the soil. Although he has grown sweet peas in the same soil year after year, they seemed to do better each succeeding season, contrary to the theory held by many. He fumigates with togacco stems twice the same night so as to keep smoke in all night. The forcing varieties do poorly outdoors. Most of the people sow their outdoor sweet peas much too thickly. He believes one pound should sow a 300-foot row.

The club has two invitations for field days in August, one to the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, and the other to the New England Nurseries, Bedford.

Various Notes.

Temperatures of 87 degrees in the shade April 23 and 85 degrees April 26 have brought vegetation on with a rush outdoors. The forsythias, magnolias and other flowering shrubs are now attractive, while bulbous plants in abundance are blooming.

Julius Heurlin says he has had the heaviest sales at the Blue Hill Nurseries this spring since he started in business. The loss in perennial plants from freezing and thawing was quite heavy.

Anderson & Williams are marketing some excellent Bouvardia Humboldtii, which is preferred to gardenias by critical flower buyers.

J. T. Butterworth has started cutting a fine crop of summer Cattleyas Mossiae, Mendelli and Skinneri.

Recent visitors have included Walter Mott, representing A. T. Boddington, New York.

There promises to be a big show of bulbs and other seasonable flowers at Horticultural hall May 9 and 10.

W. N. CRAIG.

ST. PAUL.

The Market.

Easter trade, while not eclipsing all previous records, equaled the best of them and was satisfactory to the majority of the dealers. A glimpse about town shows a good many blooming plants left over. This may be partly accounted for by the rain on Good Friday and partly by the oversupply of good stock. Coming late in the month as Easter did this year, the growers all had ample time in which to get everything into bloom. The volume of sales is, I should judge, about the same as in 1907. Holm & Olson report larger sales, some of the others smaller, while others are non-committal.

All plants sold well except those in baskets, for which there was little call. Lilies were plentiful, but rather short in growth.

There was a good demand for cut flowers and ample supplies, except of violets. Stock was good and there were but few complaints of its being pickled.

Altogether, trade was satisfactory and there should be no cause for complaint on the part of anyone.

Arbutus from the Wisconsin woods has made its appearance, and disappears like snow in June. Weather conditions are ideal for outside plants, and lilacs al-

Club Meeting.

The Twin Cities Florists' Club met at the City park greenhouses, Minneapolis, April 21. Mr. Boeglin had an interesting and instructive paper on bedding plants and exhibited some fine specimens grown at the city greenhouses.

The secretary was requested to confer with the S. A. F. relative to the investigation of fire insurance rates on greenhouses, with a view to obtaining a fair and equitable readjustment of them by the insurance companies.

The next meeting will be held May 18, at Holm & Olson's store, in this city.

Various Notes.

We learn of disastrous competition in Minneapolis, where one of the department stores sold lily plants at 25 cents per pot the day before Easter.

C. S. Ford, of Philadelphia, was a member of Holm & Olson's selling force in Easter week.

A. Currie, Jr., of Milwaukee, spent the week in the Twin Cities in the interest of his firm.

Trailing arbutus is on the market and sells quickly.

P. Clausen & Son, of Albert Lea, are sending in the finest carnations seen here this season.

Jacob Hoffman, of May & Co.'s store, is smiling over the advent of a twelve-pound boy in his family. X. Y. Z.

RAMBLING JOTTINGS.

In addition to their extensive florists' business, Geo. L. Mahoney & Co., of Saco, Me., are large collectors of tree seeds, supplying the seed houses who handle such. For many years they have regularly supplied Vilmorin, Andrieux & Co. They are pleased to note an increasing home demand, one estate owner placing an order for a large number of white pine for restocking purposes.

Chas. S. Strout has a modern plant at Biddeford, Me. Many of the finest carnations seen in Boston this season were from this establishment.

John Butler, Brunswick, Me., reports an increasing business since he took hold of the plant of the late John McManus and expects to make considerable addition to the range of glass.

P. M. Olm, of Bath, Me., intends adding to his glass during the coming season.

John Burr, at Freeport, Me., recalls entertainingly the time when he grew Black Hamburg grapes and shipped direct to Halifax, N. S., and says it caused him fewer sleepless nights than does the handling of diseased lilies. He would like to meet the fortunate person who has flowered 100 per cent this season. Now give us a trailing variety of the same class; it will be a grand acquisition.

Ernest Saunders, of Lewiston, Me., is giving up the nursery branch of the business, finding the greenhouses more profitable. He has a big plant and intends making additions after the spring rush is over.

G. J. Benedict, of Concord, N. H., has the old Colby range, in addition to his own, and is looking for more.

A. G. Hood, of Manchester, N. H., intends renting his houses, finding he cannot give his time profitably to both ends of the business.

BUFFALO.

Easter Business.

Easter week opened with glorious weather, which lasted until Saturday noon. Every indication pointed toward a record-breaker, but the rain on Saturday and Sunday put a damper on the shoppers. It also interfered with the delivery. The stock was perfection with everybody; even the small growers were in full bloom and the result was a little lower price. Medium priced plants sold much the best, as all the stores had the larger stock left on hand. Business on the whole was good, for everybody was well satisfied. Cut stock was plentiful, except sweet peas. Carnations and roses were never so plentiful at Easter and, considering the supply, the price was good. Violets were much better this year than last year and all sold before noon on Easter.

The Ever Ready Pot Cover Co. had a big Easter. The sale of this novelty has far exceeded Mr. Grever's expectations. He had to cancel several orders received at the last minute.

The Wm. F. Kasting Co. received large shipments of lilies for Easter, but, owing to the crowded condition of the market, a large number were carried over.

Joe Streit, grower for S. A. Anderson, was again to the front with an excellent supply. His lilies and azaleas were in superb condition and the result was a clean sale. He also had an excellent batch of calceolarias in all colors. The store window of these made a big hit. Joe's ambition is to become a bowler, as well as a grower, and each Monday he reports faithfully.

Various Notes.

J. Wiese was laid up for a few days, the result of being overworked at Easter.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club is to be held May 5 at Kasting's hall. The officers expect to have an important meeting and hope to see a large attendance.

The Wm. Scott Co., of Corfu, sent a large shipment of sweet peas and snapdragons for Easter, both finding ready sale.

Byrne Bros. are to close the city shop May 1, after which they will devote themselves to the work in the greenhouses at Williamsville.

C. F. Christensen, of Eggertsville, has a fine spring stock for market trade.

R. A. S.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market had the usual relapse after Easter. Prices were cut in half on everything, except lilies, which could get no lower. Perhaps this and the following weeks, with their weddings, may bring them back where they belong, aided by the lessening supply. The aftermath of Easter is not discouraging. Retailers acknowledge a wonderful aggregate of sales and the reasonable prices of plants and cut flowers must have made the margin of profit satisfactory.

The present week opened with almost a summer temperature; in fact, on Saturday and Sunday the thermometer touched 80 degrees. The hot and sunny weather means increased supplies of everything in the wholesale market and it will need a host of spring brides to hold the prices, even at their present low range of values.

Violets are practically on the retired list. A limited number arrive daily, but there is no demand for the common stock, except from the street merchants, and for the few specials 50 cents is not exceeded. The single violets are still popular and abundant.

Great quantities of lilac and arbutus are coming from the south. The streets are ablaze with color. Every variety of flowers now is handled by the merchants du pave, except orchids and gardenias. These will always be immune.

Various Notes.

The early plant market is well patronized and good stock is absorbed by the peddlers at fair prices. By seven in the morning, dozens of wagons may be seen in upper New York, Brooklyn and in the suburbs of the city, loaded with every variety of flowering plant. Then, at seven on Saturdays and nine every other morning the auction sales by the Fruit Auction Co. draw crowds and start another lot of distributions. Tuesdays and Fridays at twelve, at Cleary's and Elliott's, other sources of supply are opened and the suburbanites in hundreds may be seen. So popular has become the auction method of dispensing, the plantsmen around New York may have no fear of surplus hereafter, with all these avenues open and a sure market every day for everything of value they can grow.

Very large importations arrived last week at Cleary's Horticulture Co. The big room was crowded to the doors with cases of evergreens, hardy roses, shrubs, bay trees, etc. The attendance at the auctions always overflows and large sales are made every day of the week to the suburban growers.

Elliott & Sons have moved to their big new store, at 42 Vesey street, and their first auction there took place April 28. This store, with basement and two floors above the main one, is the largest and best center the firm has ever occupied and will doubtless remain their headquarters for a generation. Mr. Elliott says, "Sales are already nearly fifty per cent ahead of last year at this date and the auctions will run well into June."

establishment at Secaucus last week revealed the fact that their business is doubling itself yearly and that large shipments are arriving every two weeks from South America, the finest stock, Mr. Baldwin says, he has ever imported. Mr. Carrillo is now in Venezuela after a long collecting tour with many native helpers, in Brazil, Columbia and Mexico. Two hundred and fifty cases of cattleyas arrived at Secaucus April 25. Before this came many cases of dendrobiums and next week another large shipment will arrive. One order filled by this firm, for cattleyas, amounted to $10,000. Next month will come the lœlias. The firm's cut orchids are handled by James McManus.

Komitsch & Junge, of Secaucus, have two large ranges of glass exclusively devoted to sweet peas, chrysanthemums, Adiantum Croweanum and orchids. The cut of sweet peas is enormous. The entire output of this firm is handled by Traendly & Schenck. The houses devoted to orchids shelter nearly $20,000 worth of the finest varieties, all in the pink of condition. These are now offered for sale, the firm having decided to discontinue that section of its business.

Hippolite Jacqueminot, of Jersey City Heights, an old-time gardener, started from the store of Rickards Bros. last week to fill an engagement with Wadley & Smythe, and died suddenly of heart disease the same evening. The Rickards Bros. speak highly of his character and ability.

ration. The church was entirely in yellow, a most striking effect, and the house display included largely orchids and American Beauties. It was one of the swellest decorations of the winter in the city of churches. Phillips, one of Brooklyn's old-time florists.

In the seed stores business has never been more encouraging than now. Bodington is a busy center night and day. Harry Bunyard says his forty winks daily have to be taken on the cars.

Rickards Bros. declared last Friday the biggest day since they began business. Their counter trade is phenomenal and wholesale orders are far in advance of 1907 to date.

W. E. Marshall & Co. make a similar report and are on the right street for a fine, large retail patronage. April 24 was their best day of the season so far.

Stumpp & Walter Co. make a handsome display in front of their store, now one of the largest and best in New York.

Weeber & Don, Thorburn & Co. and H. H. Berger & Co. all have a good report to make and the wholesale importers, H. Frank Darrow, Ralph M. Ward & Co., August Rolker & Sons, O. V. Zangen and F. W. O. Schmitz, all declare this to be a banner season to date.

Miss Manda, of West Orange, sister of Joseph, A. J. and W. A. Manda, was married last week at the residence of her mother. The young lady was popular and at the New York club outings has carried off first honors for years in the young ladies' class as the fleetest runner of them all. Now she declares she will win in the married ladies' department.

H. Kenney, of Brooklyn, says he has shipped wire designs, since March, to every state east of the Mississippi.

J. A. Fenrich says if every week was as good as the Easter trade with him those two boys of his would be educated for the university and the firm of Fenrich & Sons would be dissolved.

Ford Bros. say all the big daisy plants found refuge at Easter, or immediately after, in church and wedding decorations.

Gunther Bros. say their Easter violet trade was entirely satisfactory.

Samuel Woodrow is just getting his second wind after a day-and-night Easter trade that beat all records.

Perkins & Nelson have had some elaborate funeral work of late and their wholesale department includes a daily visit by the veteran to a large number of Brooklyn patrons.

L. Boehmer & Co. have been incorporated with authorized capital stock of $25,000. The directors are: Vivian L. Outerbridge, 351 Dean street; Ethel Morrow, 146 Schenectady avenue, Brooklyn; Bernard J. Tracy, 1046 Fox street, New York.

The average of 155 for eighteen games, which must be made by the winners of the Traendly transportation privileges, seems a little high after the developments April 24. Doubtless the new alleys are shy, and after the boys get acquainted better records will be made. The strain of the Easter trade was too much for some of the club members. The scores are as follows:

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold its annual meeting May 13 in connection with the exhibition May 13 and 14, at the New York Botanical Gardens, Bronx park. Amendments to the by-laws are proposed, providing for associate members, who shall have all the privileges of membership except voting.

Growers' Sales Agency.

A Long Island grower sends the following statement, with a request for its publication:

A meeting of the proposed co-operative cut flower growers' association was held in the rooms of the Fruit Auction Co., corner of Franklin and Washington streets, April 25, which was well attended by rose, violet, carnation and other growers representing over a million feet of glass. This association is being formed with the object in view of operating a salesroom in New York city similar to those operated by commission men, but on a larger scale; to employ a competent manager and necessary help, under the direction of a board of directors elected by its members. The details of incorporation have not been settled, or the amount of capitalization decided upon, but it is in the hands of a committee which will report at the next meeting.

It is not the mission of this association to try to fix any arbitrary price on its goods, but by concentration and organized effort to reduce the cost of selling and, in all probability, to add a supply department whereby it can reduce the cost of producing. Similar concerns are successfully operated in other lines of business, perishable goods included, and it is claimed that the ability of many of limited capital to combine under efficient management and without incurring liability beyond the amount of their stock subscription has been one of the chief sources of the tremendous industrial growth of this country.

The next meeting of the proposed association will be held in the same place, Saturday, May 9, at 2 p. m.

LOWELL, MASS.—Richard A. Griffiths has been named by Mayor Farnham to be a trustee of public burial grounds for a term of five years, commencing April 9. Mr. Griffiths has served a year as a member of the commission, having been appointed by Mayor Farnham for the short term a year ago, when the commission succeeded the old board of trustees in the management of the Edson and other public burial grounds. Mr. Griffiths was also a member of the old board. His present reappointment was strongly recommended by the other members of the commission.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Conditions in the cut flower market have changed materially from those of a week ago—changed for the worse, decidedly. The warm weather, commencing on Saturday, railroaded an enormous supply of all varieties of flowers into an already weakened market. The result is difficult to describe. The best stock brings listed quotations in limited quantities, but much of the best stock cannot be sold to advantage. The poor stock brings virtually no price at all, proving a source of disappointment to all those interested in it. Lilies continue the weakest item on the list. They have been offered at the most absurd and unheard-of prices, without in the least tempting the buyers. A few sales are made, but many are wasted. Callas have shared in the demoralization of their cousins, but callas are much less plentiful than Easter lilies.

Cattleyas are the strongest item on the list. Mossiae has succeeded Schröderiana as the reigning queen. The supply is limited, the demand excellent. Laelia purpurata shares the orchid honors with cattleyas.

Beauties are probably better value for the money, where a big show is desired, than anything else. They are very plentiful, and may best be described as being cut to order. The quality is superb. Richmond, Bride, and Maid are also in heavy supply. The quality from some growers has begun to show the effects of the heat.

Carnations are in strong supply with some houses, but indications at other wholesale houses point to a diminution of the crop. The carnation market is weak, especially on white. Sweet peas, so popular a week ago, have weakened considerably. The quality is fine, but the market will not stand shipments four times as large as at Easter. The demand for violets has fallen off to such an extent that the wholesalers have been obliged to stop or decrease shipments from the Hudson river district. Greenhouse-grown lilac is practically over. Outdoor bulbous stock is becoming fairly plentiful, tulips and Narcissus poet-icus being the most important factors. With flowers so plentiful and cheap, there is perhaps less demand than usual for the cherry and apple blossoms, now at their height.

The price of Beauties in last week's Easter market report should have read $4 to $6 per dozen, not per hundred, for specials. Many daffodils sent to the market were so soft that the buyers have been asking a rebate. This will make them range from $1 to $3, instead of $2 to $3, as quoted.

Out in Fairmount.

Large crowds are attracted to the neighborhood of Horticultural hall these pleasant spring days. Inside the hall itself the center of attraction is in the east wing, where the Easter display, gorgeous in its color combinations, is still effective. The arrangement of the east wing differs materially from last fall. The stage used for the chrysanthemums is absent. The straight walks are varied by graceful curves, laid out in foliage and flowering plants. The whole arrangement is light and airy. Here some beautiful specimen lilies droop gracefully over the bright purple of the cineraria; there are choice hydrangeas of soft pink shade, or possibly Alice blue, relieved by the deep green of the kentias. Color effect and grace were studied everywhere.

But what I want to write about to everyone who chances to see these lines is the wonderful effect of the parterre or sunken gardens lying to the west of Horticultural hall, the beds in these gardens, which stretch all the way to Belmont avenue, being planted entirely with tulips. The festoons on the sloping banks are filled mainly with white tulips, with a few yellow in the center to relieve the color. The beds in the center contain the brighter-hued varieties, some planted solidly, others with borders. There you see the deep scarlet of Artus, and the soft pink of Cottage Maid; beyond, the varied scarlet and yellow of Kaiserskroon. But everywhere you look you see the silvery white of L'Immaculee. The general effect of the beds cannot be taken in without viewing the festoons as well, and this pure white combined with the velvety green of the early spring turf makes a combination difficult to describe in words. Solid beds of tulips are planted at the east end, each bed springing, as it were, from a carpet of pansies, the color effect in the pansies being studied to harmonize or to contrast with the colors of the tulips.

A change recently made is the removal of the dates, for so many years laid out in the east bank of the hall with echeverias. This year these beds of dates are succeeded by interesting groups of dwarf evergreens, their somber hues relieved by patches of that exquisite early blue phlox resembling forget-me-not at a distance.

Various Notes.

W. E. McKissick received a greenhouse-grown shipment of Paeonia festiva maxima a few days ago. These were used with apple blossoms in a decoration. The effect was unique. Probably this combination has never been made before in this city.

Wm. Warner Harper has received and filled some splendid orders for nursery stock during the present season. Mr. Harper's genial manners and thorough knowledge of his business make him a great favorite with all the landscape gardeners on the eastern seaboard.

The essay committee of the Florists' Club takes great pleasure in announcing that Edwin Lonsdale, superintendent of the Horticultural Department of Girard College, will speak May 5.

John Savage is sending some superb flowers of pink daybreak shade snapdragon to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

William P. Craig states that the Robert Craig Co. is well satisfied with its Easter plant business.

Julius Koehler & Son, of Frankford, report a heavy Easter business. The demand fell off in certain lines, but increased in others.

The Merry Widow hats, so popular with the fair sex today, are perfect flower gardens, indicating an immense demand for the artificial product.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. report a number of excellent Memorial day orders already received. Their factory is busily engaged in making the handsome metallic wreaths for which the firm is noted.

F. Herbert Steinmetz has the reputation of being the first florist in this city to take hold of the Japanese air plant with a will. Mr. Steinmetz is thought to have done well with this novelty.

Walter P. Stokes states that Mr. Mann's committee was very cordial. The seedsmen called attention to raw grass

CLEVELAND.

In the settlement of a seven-year street car fight in Cleveland, April 28, 3-cent fare has been established all over the city, with universal transfers. The public were granted free car rides all over the city for a period of twenty-four hours to celebrate the event.

In recognition of the jollification the J. M. Gasser Co. sent out a box of roses to all its city customers, with a card bearing the legend:

"Free Car Fare,
Free Roses,
with the Compliments of Your Florist."

AMHERST, MASS.

The exhibition of flowers and plants at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, April 24 and 25, was the finest held in this vicinity for several years. The display of carnations was exceptionally good and the college feels deeply indebted to the many growers who co-operated in making this show so successful. The interest shown by the students and townspeople was gratifying, Wilder hall being crowded to its capacity during the hours the exhibit was open. At the close of the show Professor White sent the flowers to the hospitals in the vicinity of Amherst. The following were among the exhibitors: F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.; William Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.;

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass.; S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.; Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass.; H. H. Rogers, South Sudbury, Mass.; H. W. Field, Northampton, Mass.; J. W. Adams & Co., Springfield, Mass.; Pierce Bros., Waltham, Mass.; A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y.; William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass.; Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass. The Massachusetts Agricultural College devoted one room to named specimens of decorative foliage plants.

Friday afternoon G. H. Sinclair, of Northampton, addressed the students of the horticultural seminar on the subject of "The Carnation; Its Culture and Development."

A TRAVELER'S NOTES.

J. T. Clark, gardener to J. E. Thayer, at Lancaster, Mass., is justly proud of the fine crop of the luscious strawberry, Marshall, fruiting in 6-inch pots and averaging a dozen full sized, well ripened berries on each plant. Another splendid thing is Stock Beauty of Nice, flowering in 5-inch pots, perfect specimens. Schizanthus Wisetonensis is a popular pot plant. Mignonette Majesty is grand.

R. Orpet, gardener to Mrs. E. V. M. Thayer, is of the opinion that his favorite flower, the orchid, is destined to take front rank in the floral world.

A. P. Meredith, gardener to Nathaniel

Thayer, is another orchid enthusiast and he predicts the time when this plant will be as popular as the carnation, yet never overdone. I saw an instance of this at Gardner, Mass., where T. W. Murdock was using sprays of Dendrobium nobile in a galax wreath. Five years ago, when he started in business, such a thing was unknown there. Mr. Meredith does not spare the plants when repotting, but cuts off all old roots. He finds that the check is only temporary and the plants seem to benefit by this mode of treatment. I noted an old-time favorite in Rhodanthe Manglesii. This interesting "everlasting" is extensively grown in London, thousands being sold annually in Covent Garden market. It is easy of culture and a profuse bloomer. A house of the Emerald Gem melon, planted April 4, is expected to be in full crop by July 4. Plants have already commenced to vine.

Wm. Anderson, gardener to Bayard Thayer, is busy laying out the grounds surrounding the new mansion. Some of the noblest specimens of coniferæ and deciduous trees are being planted.

Geo. W. Sutherland, Athol, Mass., had a fine lot of lilies, all sold at Easter. He says there is a whole lot in the growing and he believes the plants do better on solid beds than when grown on the bench.

E. A. Richards, at Greenfield, Mass., was rushing around trying to attend to everyone at one time. It is a pity the business is crowded into so brief a space.

A unique decoration was made with lilies, with a fine specimen of Plumbago Capensis as a center.

In Springfield, Mass., everything in flowering stock is at present pretty well cleaned out. The mild weather has necessitated but little wrapping, and all hands, from the messenger boy on the now primitive bicycle to the delivery clerk on the up-to-date auto, are having the time of their lives. Let us hope the records of sales will equal, if not surpass, all previous ones. M.

HARTFORD.

The rose exhibit given by the Connecticut Horticultural Society at its rooms in county building, Friday night, April 24, was largely attended by the members and friends of the society. Carl Peterson, foreman at the Whiting Greenhouses, showed a collection of tea roses.

Mr. Peterson also read a short and interesting account of the culture of roses and was asked many questions about them, which he readily and willingly answered. He received a very hearty vote of thanks.

Peter Zuger spoke of the culture of the hardy roses in the rose gardens at Elizabeth park, of which he has charge and of which Hartford people are justly proud. J. Weber, at Walter Goodwin's greenhouses, produced a surprise for the members by showing a very large single blossom of the William Duckham chrysanthemum, of a pink color, which measured between six and seven inches and was finely incurved. Mr. Weber was called upon to explain how he grew the chrysanthemum so much out of its season. He said

This business was established in 1860, and is known by all seed people the country over, and many abroad, and has an enviable reputation for quality in seeds, plants, etc. This is an excellent opportunity for an individual or corporation desirous of entering into this line of business, which is a very profitable one to engage in. To an ambitious young man, or several of them associated together, it offers a rare opportunity to step into and take up the management of a business that is so thoroughly established, and as well known as this one is. In order to close out an estate, the entire establishment, including 52 acres of testing gardens, office buildings, greenhouses containing 45,000 feet of glass, barns, seven dwellings, a complete and up-to-date printing establishment, in which is turned out all printed matter used, including catalogs, horses, wagons, and entire equipment necessary to carry on this business successfully, will be sold at a sacrifice. Any one interested can have full particulars by calling on or addressing the undersigned, O. Edwin Oyster, Receiver, 507-508 Dollar Bank Bldg., Youngstown, Ohio.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., George S. Green, Chicago; First Vice-pres., M. H. Duryea, New York; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland. Twenty-sixth annual convention at Hotel Pontchartrain, Detroit, Mich., June 23 to 25, 1908.

HENRY F. MICHELL Co., Philadelphia, states that last season its importations of bulbs from foreign lands were close to six millions.

WALTER R. PAXSON, gardener and plantsman, has opened a seed store in the Music Hall block, at Crawfordsville, Ind.

THE Southern Seed Co., Louisville, Ky., has been licensed to do business in Indiana. Its capital stock is $50,000, and the capital represented in Indiana is $3,125.

THE Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, sends out with its mail a reprint of a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture giving information on Dwarf Essex rape.

HICKOX & SON, wholesale field seed dealers at Batavia, N. Y., have caused the arrest of an agent who represented them at Frankfort, Ind., on a charge of embezzlement, he having removed to Iowa with $800 of the seedsmen's money.

PRESIDENT CRARY, of the National Association of Canners, has announced a radical change in the plans for the next convention of the organization, Louisville now being the place instead of Chicago, as decided at the convention in Cincinnati. The convention will be held in the first week of next February. The reasons for this change are not stated and the information will occasion much surprise. It will be recalled that at the Cincinnati convention there was a spirited contest on between Louisville and Rochester for the honor of the 1909 convention and it came to a sudden end when the committee, to whom the matter was referred, announced that it had abandoned both places in favor of Chicago.

ERFURT SEED TRADE.

Scarcity of Certain Seeds.

Business was very brisk last winter, but a good many different articles proved to be rather short and in consequence they had to be bought elsewhere. For instance, clover seed was very scarce and could hardly be got anywhere for money and kind words. Cauliflower, red cabbage, white cabbage, savoy, borecole, carrots, celery, beet roots, lettuce, onions, leek, radishes and melons were plentiful.

Brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, cucumbers, gourds and beans were rather short. The supply of peas was very short indeed.

Coming to flower seed, I must say that asters (sorts with lightly built flowers), winter stocks, wallflowers, poppies and lobelias were plentiful. Asters (with heavier built flowers), balsams (Impatiens Balsamina), Althaea rosea fl. pl., larkspurs, scabiosas, celosias, Lathyrus odoratus, phlox and zinnias proved rather short. Stocks (Cheiranthus annuus), antirrhinum, dianthus, petunias, mignonette, tagetes, tropaeolum, verbenas, Viola tricolor maxima, Viola cornuta, bellis, calceolarias, calliopsis, campanula, centaurea, convolvulus, helichrysum, gailardias, godetias, iberis, mimulus, myosotis, nicotianus, portulaca, senecio and silene proved far too short for the demand.

A Review of the Year.

Of course articles that were not plentiful got rather higher up in price than was the custom in more favorable years. Last year was in a good many ways a bad one for our trade. The rough and wet summer months caused a shortcoming in a lot of articles. But as all of our seed growers had to suffer by the same calamity, none of them had an advantage over his competitors.

The last winter, too, was very trying for our seedsmen. It was a long and rough winter altogether. On January 3 we had to stand —22 degrees Reaumur, or 18 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. In the well known Dreienbrunnen district, where truck gardening is carried on on a grand scale, a great quantity of watercress was frozen out, a thing that had not happened since the year 1870. It was fortunate that we had a lot of snow, so that all plants wintered in the open fields were not quite exposed to the hard frost, of which we had a good bit, especially in January. In this way Savoy cabbage, Brussels sprouts and kohlrabi got over the winter fairly well and promise to be good at the next seed harvest. Flowering plants, viz., pansies, bellis, myosotis, silene, pinks (Dianthus barbatus), Primula veris and P. Auricula, passed the winter likewise in good shape and no doubt will give good prospects.

Burning of J. C. Schmidt's Warehouse.

By the way, I should like to point out that the statement which I have seen in some American trade journals, that the great fire which just before Christmas destroyed a big warehouse belonging to the firm of J. C. Schmidt, of Erfurt, caused a great loss of seed, is not quite correct. This large warehouse had been used as a place for the drying of seeds, but at the time of the fire it contained a lot of cleaning machinery and a great quantity of dried and dyed leaves for the manufacture of bouquets, wall decorations, etc., but really not much seed.

TO REGULATE INSECTICIDES.

April 23 Senator Kittredge introduced a bill in the United States Senate, entitled "A bill for the prevention of the manufacture, sale and transportation in interstate commerce of adulterated or misbranded fungicides, insecticides, Paris green, lead arsenate and other insecticides and for the regulation of traffic therein, and for other purposes." The bill was referred to the committee on agriculture and forestry.

The bill is of considerable length and provides, along the lines of the recent food and drugs act, for the correct labeling of all insecticides and provides penalties for violation of the law. Either fine or imprisonment may be inflicted.

Quite naturally, the manufacturers of insecticides are considerably exercised over the proposed law, for, as has been the case with most of this class of legislation, there are many points which need modification in the view of the representative houses in the trade.

committee appointed at the meeting of seedsmen, held in Chicago April 10, and other seedsmen who came to Washington to attend the hearing before the committee on interstate and foreign commerce April 21.

"Our committee was granted an informal conference with Mr. Mann April 20 and, at this conference, we think we made it clear that the bill would need revision before it could be made a just and practicable law.

"Various changes were urged and most of these were embodied in an amended copy of the bill, which was left with Mr. Mann.

"At the public hearing, April 21, our case was fully presented before the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. Further congressional action on the bill will be deferred until the next session, thus giving more time for careful consideration of all features of the bill.

"I feel sure that much good will result from this hearing in the way of a better understanding between seedsmen and the parties having this proposed legislation in charge.

"I will report more fully on this matter at the Detroit convention, where I hope for a large attendance.

suffered dreadfully. In many places peas came up finely and looked beautiful, when these high winds came along and simply blew the sand onto and against this very young and tender plant until whole fields now look as though fire had run over them, and look exactly as they do after the peas have been moved off and hauled to the canning factory. Of course, these whole fields will be worthless, and some farmers talk of plowing up the fields and planting them in some other truck. This, of course, is not the general rule, but

SWEET PEAS IN ENGLAND.

A writer in the Horticultural Advertiser (England) says: "There is still a big demand for sweet peas, and it is interesting to note how the tastes of the later buyers differ from the early ones. The early folk appear to be exhibitors, and their chief cry is for the newer giant forms, bright colored varieties especially. The late customers appear to be content with older sorts, and cheap collections are in much greater demand now than they were earlier in the season."

"Sweet peas under glass are just beginning to move a bit now, and it is interesting to note the behavior of the new sorts. All those varieties which indicated a bad seed harvest are weakly, in some cases deplorably so. Those firms who had enough stock or strength of will to enable them to clear out all doubtful seeds, have reason to congratulate themselves, for it goes a long way with buyers if seed germinates well."

"Burpee & Co. and Morse & Co. have a strong pull over English firms this season, for the white and cream Spencers and Florence Morse Spencer are tremendously vigorous. Our tests under glass prove a full ninety-six per cent good, and in some instances the plants are remarkably strong. This latter feature can always be traced to extra large seeds. Saint George, too, is extremely good, which is not surprising, seeing what fine seed was offered. I almost find myself doubting its being English grown."

"Eckford's varieties are extremely good, although the new yellow, James Grieve, is giving trouble in some quarters. This is not surprising, for quite a lot of the English grown pale seed is distinctly off this season, more so now than it was when harvested. It is to be hoped that there is no truth in the prophecies as to a worse season than last year, or some of us will be in queer street. Many beautiful seedlings were lost last season owing to the bad weather."

"Speaking of sweet peas, it will doubtless interest our exhibiting firms to learn that the Burpee trophy for waved sweet peas, at the national show, is something worth striving for. It differs from the ordinary bowl or cup, being of elongated shape, with curving extremities which form the handles. Both sides are beautifully embossed with waved sweet peas. It is mounted on an ebony stand and weighs fifty ounces. I expect to see a great struggle for this trophy, for several gardeners are laying themselves out for it, so that traders may calculate on having a hot time. Burpee & Co. have certainly set out to make their novelties well known, for apart from the national, the firm is giving prizes for these varieties at Ulverston, Cardiff and Folkestone."

NASHVILLE, TENN.

In the trade in this city there are several firms whose business has become so large and prosperous as to win for them a national reputation. Among these may be mentioned Geny Bros. and the Joy Floral Co.

The firm of Geny Bros. succeeded to the business which their father had taken many years to build up, they being reared in the work and having a natural aptitude for it. It was only eight years ago, however, that they opened a store in Nashville under their present firm title, the partnership being O. and L. H. Geny. Joy, president; M. Stauch, general manager. The store is at 601 Church street; the greenhouses are on Lischev avenue.

MISSOULA, MONT.

Contrary to the situation in many eastern localities, trade here has been much greater than that of any previous year. The financial trouble has been little felt in this part of the country. I have been out here a year, and find that the climatic conditions are especially favorable here for the growing of carnations. Asters, sweet peas and other outdoor summer flowers reach perfection here, and we are never troubled with the aster bug.

The Missoula Nursery Co. cut a splendid lot of carnations during the winter. The sales on Easter by this firm were the largest ever made in this city. There was a rush all day and as long in the evening as the stock lasted. This year for the first time the home greenhouses have been able to supply the local demand, and there was no stock shipped in for the Easter trade. "We met the demand this year," said Manager Dallman, as he wearily surveyed the ruins of his stock. "It was hard work, but we had it planned about right, and we did the best business in our history."

ROLFE SMITH.

OMAHA.

Business for Easter was excellent; the best we ever had. Fine spring weather helped to make it so, as we had an unusually fine Easter week as far as the weather is concerned. Lilies were plentiful, but one-half were poor stock and prices were accordingly. All the florists report an increase of from 10 to 30 per cent in sales. Potted plants in bloom sold well, especially azaleas, lilacs and bougainvilleas. Made up baskets went slow. Cut flowers of all descriptions were plentiful and of good quality and prices moderate.

small beginnings until now they have between 60,000 and 70,000 square feet of floor space under glass, and two years ago they began opening a new plant in West Nashville, on Morrow road, which plant has now grown to considerable size.

The Joys started business in 1883, with small greenhouses, T. S. and T. C. Joy, father and son, being the first firm. Then followed Joy & Son Co., and in 1900 the incorporated company of the NEW YORK, April 27.—Cucumbers plentiful and weak. Lettuce moving slowly, unless fancy. Mushrooms steady, with a few fancy, large white reaching 65c to 70c. Mint steady. Radishes and rhubarb in fair demand. No. 1 cucumbers, 50c doz.; No. 2 cucumbers, $2 to $2.50 box; lettuce, 25c to $1 doz.; mushrooms, 25c to 60c lb.; radishes, $1.25 to $2 per 100 bunches; rhubarb, $2 to $3 per 100 bunches; tomatoes, 15c to 25c lb.; mint, 40c to 50c doz. bunches.

BOSTON, April 27.—Supplies are heavier and trade rather quiet, with a downward tendency in prices, except lettuce, tomatoes and mushrooms, which are higher. Lettuce, 50c to $1 box; radishes, $1.25 box; beet greens, 65c to 75c box; cucumbers, $1.50 to $5 box; tomatoes, 30c to 40c lb.; parsley, $1.50 to $1.75 box; mint, 75c to $1 doz.; romaine, $1 doz.; escarolle, 75c doz.; chicory, $1 doz.; rhubarb, 4c to 5c lb.; mushrooms, $2.25 to $2.50 basket of 4 lbs.; bunch beets, $1 to $1.50 doz.

FIGHTING RED SPIDER.

I often notice, in the REVIEW, valuable articles on red spider and other subjects, which interest me much. But the inquiry in the issue of April 16, headed "Red Spider on Lettuce" and answered by H. G., I think is misleading. His statement, "They are easily kept down by use of the hose," causes me much wonder. Personally, I do not believe lettuce plants will stand enough pounding with the hose to rid them of red spider.

I have no relief to hand H. L., but please don't hand him out a sure disappointment. I have grown violets for eight years and find that when a plant gets any size and is infested with spider, the best remedy is to take it up carefully and burn it, always keeping a careful watch for the enemy and not letting it get a start or chance to spread.

With all due credit to articles written along that line, I am certain they are not "easily kept down." I am yet in hopes there will be some remedy, in the way of a vapor or similar method, found for this mite. I do not want it to be understood that water is not a help. It is a help, but in any case a very crude weapon. I have a water pressure of ninety pounds, all that anyone could desire.

KOHLRABI.

Among the most easily cultivated and satisfactory vegetables is the kohlrabi. The plant is comparatively little known in America and is generally quite profitable to the market gardener who grows it.

It partakes of the nature of the cabbage and the turnip and is often used as a substitute for the latter. The plant is hardy, often enduring severe frosts and also resisting drouth. The upper part of the stem swells into a large, fleshy head above the ground, resembling the turnip. The edible part ranges upward from the size of an orange. Its flavor resembles both the turnip and cabbage. It can be stored away in winter like turnips.

Kohlrabi is best for the table when about the size of a coconut. It is then tender and of fine flavor, but when it becomes larger it is tough and stringy. In cooking the vegetable it is sliced and boiled until it becomes soft, when it may be served like turnips.

The plant grows best in deep rich soil and for early use the seed should be sown as early as permissible outdoors. When the plants are three or four inches high they are transplanted into rows two feet apart, a foot apart in the row. For a late crop seed should be sown early in May, and another sowing made a month later. The most commonly grown varieties are Early White and Early Purple.

Gardeners who supply vegetable plants are likely to have a call for kohlrabi as the National Council of Horticulture is recommending it in its press service.

WAYSIDE NOTES.

James Mackenzie, gardener to William Maxwell, at Rockville, Conn., has made plans for a large sunken garden. Planting will commence this spring.

Theodore Standt, of Rockville, sold all his flowering stock at Easter and is preparing for a banner Memorial business.

The Fountain Co., at Middletown, Conn., reports the volume of business somewhat less than last year at this time, but owing to the lateness of the season expects to more than make up the deficiency from the seed end.

William A. Dawson, of Willimantic, Conn., says he has not thrown away a good bloom this season, and he notes the steadily increasing call for well grown pot plants.

J. F. Smith, of Norwich, Conn., grows large quantities of ten weeks' stocks and finds it a profitable flower. He has a grand white from a selected strain. Beauty of Nice is the pink.

F. J. Langenbach, of Norwich, is favorably located at the entrance to the cemetery and enjoys a good patronage.

Thomas W. Head, superintendent of the splendid M. F. Plant estate at Groton, Conn., is working on a plan to transform the forest recently acquired, and consisting of 1,400 acres, into a game preserve. The natural conditions are ideal. A fine trout stream runs through the estate. It is proposed to dam a part of the stream and make an artificial lake, to be planted with hardy aquatics. This domain is situated at Lyme, about ten miles from the beautiful home place, where the planting of large trees is still in progress. During the last two years some fine specimens of deciduous trees have been moved, with complete success. An immense rockery is under way. I noted a fine crop of peaches in sight, also figs and grapes, with Marshall strawberries ripening up in fine shape—all under glass, of course. Mr. Head has

A. P. Meredith, gardener to Nathaniel Thayer, at Lancaster, Mass., considers Gladiolus Shakespeare one of the finest for forcing. It throws a perfect spike, the flower being beautifully tinted. Phlox divaricata is another favorite.

Thomas Roland, at Nahant, grows the largest collection of ericas to be found on this continent, including the rare E. Cavendishii, a grand variety, which has long racemes of rich yellow bloom, with deep green foliage. He had a great sale at Easter and is now potting up a large block of Lorraine begonias for summer delivery.

I saw Mark Aitken at Springfield, Mass., putting the finishing touches to a 6-foot casket cross, which took 650 Tulip Vermilion Brilliant; also a 5-foot cross composed of orchids—the richest pieces I have seen for some time. He noted a good sale for medium sized baskets filled with blooming plants at Easter; also for pyramid azaleas.

PACIFIC COAST.

PORTLAND, ORE.

State of Trade.

Let us meditate a while and then we will give you a brief report of the great event which means so much to those engaged in the horticultural profession. First of all, a late Easter with us means more work and less profit, owing to the advanced season and outdoor competition; and secondly, the weather could not be relied upon, as one week before Easter Sunday it was as hot as midsummer and then came a sudden change to rain and cold winds, which lasted all through the busiest days. Nevertheless, we had a remarkable sale, especially on potted plants, and few complaints are heard. The window displays showed rare artistic ability and we are justified in stating that there never was a grander lot of stock shown in Portland at one time. Every store was filled with flowering plants of the choicest, their beauty being enhanced with the necessary trimmings. No one wanted a plant without the dressing. The ever popular Easter lily was seen everywhere, and neither the plants nor the cut blooms needed any boosting. Cut flowers were not overplentiful and were rather limited in variety.

Violets had almost breathed their last, and bulbous stock, with the exception of poet's narcissus, was all in. Sweet peas helped out finely and have paid well. Carnations had done well all winter and were taking a rest. All the growers seemed to have hit it just right on roses, and it was a pleasure to handle such fine stock. We have been instructed to say that while the number of sales was much larger than in former years, prices declined somewhat, which undoubtedly was due to strong competition.

The retail stores fairly outdid themselves in their efforts to attract the public, and the press made note of it. The Martin & Forbes big window was banked with fine specimen hydrangeas and Golden Gate roses, and we have seldom seen their equal. This firm has always taken the lead in rose growing, the credit being largely due to George Spencer, who recently became a member of the firm when the business was incorporated.

Tonseth & Co. found it necessary to rent an annex to accommodate their trade. Their window display was rather unique, being draped with long streamers of beautiful southern moss, which made an effective showing among the lilies and pots of valley.

Clarke Bros. have justly earned the reputation of always having neat and attractive windows. Besides the customary line of plants, we noticed some splendidly flowered rhododendron and lilac. The rhododendrons were of recent importation and their rich blooms caused more comment than any other flower. A heavy crop of Kaiserin, Carnot and Killarny roses added strength to the cut flower department and were the queen of all.

Max Smith says he sold out clean and wished that Easter would come oftener. For a beginner in the retail line, Mr. Smith did well and handled lots of good stock of his own production.

George Betz was brimming over with enthusiasm and managed his growing department so that all his customers had an Easter lily.

We communicated by phone with George Otten and others of Nob Hill, who expressed themselves as thoroughly pleased with the business done.

None were in better spirits than Rahn & Herbert, our wholesale growers of Mount Tabor. These busy people know just what the trade demands, and, as Mr. Rahn said, they "disposed of everything that showed a blossom, and nothing was left but the spring stock and the greenhouses."

Mrs. C. H. Pierce, of Medford, Ore., has just called to say a good word for Medford and the REVIEW. H. J. M.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Easter trade was about twenty per cent less than that of one year ago. The greatest falling off was in the demand for Easter lilies. These were to be had in any number and at prices that were held up fairly well until Saturday, but after that they fell rapidly and could be bought at about half the rates quoted during the week. The pot-grown stock was in the same predicament, and none of the retailers who bought largely was entirely cleaned out. Other kinds of stock sold well, especially light-colored carnations and roses, and these were quickly bought up by the public. There was a scarcity of some of the fancy varieties of carnations, but of the cheaper sorts there was an abundance. Roses were of good quality, owing to our continued bright weather, although there was a shortage of some of the brighter colors.

Azaleas in pots were not at their best, and the demand for any good flowering plants was up to the usual. Some splendid rhododendrons were shown, and these readily found purchasers.

Violets are entirely out of season, and outside bulbous stock, with the exception of some late varieties of daffodils and tulips, likewise.

Sweet peas are coming into market more plentifully than at last accounts. The price is gradually getting lower and the quality of the flowers better. We are still waiting patiently for rain, and we have had but a couple of very light showers during the last month.

Business since Easter has been fair, considering the condition of business generally. Funeral work has been generously divided among the retailers during the last few days.

Various Notes.

The California Nursery Co., at Niles, is sending in large quantities of lilac to the green goods men.

A. R. Porter is in town, after having made an extended tour of southern California and Arizona.

J. D. Brady, of Gill's Floral Depot, Oakland, will leave for Chicago in a few days on a two months' trip.

John Young, of Shasta county, is in town for a few days. Mr. Young is interested in mining since he sold out his nursery interests in Berkeley.

Current Comment.

We are having some hot weather, the parks and suburbs are beautiful, and the early peonies are in bloom. The market is glutted with all kinds of stock. Best Beauties bring $2.50 and $3 per dozen, wholesale. Violets are holding up fine and sell well.

There were quite a few dinners last week. Geo. Cooke had all he could do. Gude Bros. had the decoration for the League of Republican Clubs' dinner April 25. The store windows are decorated mostly with dogwood blossoms, which are exceptionally fine this year. J. R. Freeman has quite a few pink dogwood in tubs.

The florists in the Center market are trying to outdo each other in the way of fancy electric light fixtures.

J. A. Phillips is working his place in Hyattsville for outdoor stock.

A large vase of the new rose, My Maryland, in Gude's window attracted a great deal of attention this week. They will grow a house of it.

E. J. Fancourt and H. Bayersdorfer, Jr., of Philadelphia, were visitors this week. O. O.

GOSHEN, IND.—The Colonial Flower Shop will occupy a new building, soon to be erected at the corner of Main and Jefferson streets.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—In addition to his place of business in the city market, A. H. Dailey has opened a flower store at 511 Prince street. Besides cut flower work, Mr. Dailey does a large business in bedding and vegetable plants.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—James Horan & Son had charge of the decorations for the Canning-Beardsley wedding April 22 and for the Ellis-Eames wedding April 23, and did such admirable work on both occasions as to win much favorable comment.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.
Pres., J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; Vice-Pres., O. M. Hobbs, Bridgeport, Ind.; Sec'y, Geo. O. Seager, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., O. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. The 33d annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, June 10 to 12, 1908.

A LARGE peach crop is expected in the south.

THE Delaware nurserymen are pleased with the prospect of good peach, pear and strawberry crops.

REAPPRAISEMENTS.

The following reappraisements have been announced at New York during the week:

NURSERY STOCK.—From H. H. Hardyzer, Boskoop, exported March 5, 1908; entered at New York. File No. 48500. Inv. No. 19503. Findings of Waite, G. A.: Japanese maples; entered at .30 florin each. Magnolia in var.; entered at .60 florin each. Box bushes; entered at .18 florin each. And similar goods. Add packing. Less freight to Rotterdam. No advance.

EVERGREEN SEEDLINGS.

It has now been definitely decided that Aucuba Japonica, Kalmia latifolia and Rhododendron ponticum, which retain their verdure throughout the year, are "evergreens" within the meaning of paragraph 252, tariff act of 1897; and under said paragraph seedlings of those plants are dutiable as "evergreen seedlings" rather than as "nursery stock."

The decision is that of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, handed down April 14, in a case involving an importation of these plants by P. Ouwerkerk. When the importation was received at the customs house duty was assessed at twenty-five per cent ad valorem, as "nursery stock," but the importer protested that these were evergreen seedlings and should pay duty at $1 per 1,000 and fifteen per cent ad valorem. The Board of General Appraisers held with the importer and the case was carried, by the government, to the Circuit Court of the United States for the southern district of New York.

The theory of the government's contention was that the term "evergreen" is restricted to such evergreen plants as the conifers and box. The Board of General Appraisers held, however—and its decision was affirmed by the Circuit

NEW ROSE

MRS. JARDINE

A FREE, STRONG GROWTH, WITH GOOD FOLIAGE. A VARIETY THAT CAN BE EASILY GROWN. LARGE FLOWERS ON LONG STEMS. DELICIOUS FRAGRANCE. DISTINCT, PLEASING COLOR THAT WILL SELL AT SIGHT. A ROSE THAT WILL HOLD ITS COLOR IN THE DULL DAYS OF DECEMBER AND JANUARY.

MRS. JARDINE has all these characteristics, and, in addition, is of so perfect a form that it can be used either in the bud or half expanded flower. The color is a bright rosy pink, shading in the outer petals to salmon pink, and, even in January, when Bridesmaids and Killarney lose their color, Mrs. Jardine is as bright as in October or March.

We extend a cordial invitation to everyone interested in this New Rose to visit our Nurseries and see it growing.

MRS. JARDINE has been awarded Two Silver Medals, numerous Certificates, and successfully stood the best test which any novelty can possibly have in passing unanimously, in December, the Award Committee of the New York Florists' Club after an exhaustive examination of the growing plants, with a score of 92 points.

Strong Plants on own roots, from 2½-inch pots, $6.00 per doz.; $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1000; 5000 for $1125.00; 10,000 for $2125.00.

Grafted on Dickson's Manetti Stocks, $5.00 per 100 additional.

Court without opinion—that the term is not so restricted, but applies to seedlings of all plants which retain their greenness throughout the year, and that it is sufficient if a plant fall within the general class of evergreens, irrespective of whether it is hardy in a particular locality or under different climatic conditions. The plants in question, being shown to be "evergreen" in this sense, were held to be "evergreen seedlings," as above set forth, not only by the Board of Appraisers and the Circuit Court, but by the Court of Appeals.

THURLOW'S CHOICE.

The mountain laurel, Kalmia latifolia, is about the best evergreen shrub in this or any other country, says T. C. Thurlow, of West Newbury, Mass. The flowers are beautiful (it would get our vote for the national flower) and the foliage, especially when partially shaded, is beautiful, also. It is a good and lasting green for decorating. It is found growing wild in all the Atlantic states from Maine to Georgia, rather sparingly at the north but common farther south, especially on the mountains of North and South Carolina and Virginia. It is seen in the greatest profusion along shaded hillsides or in cool, sheltered valleys, which shows that this, as well as the native rhododendrons, feel more at home in the partial shade of other trees. Notwithstanding the kalmia is so partial to cool, shady places, it will grow in the nursery in full sunshine, as we have grown it that way for years. The foliage is not as good in the open, especially if exposed to the sun in winter, as the leaves often turn brown and appear to be injured; but when the new growth starts they come out all right, blooming more profusely and of a deeper red color than if grown entirely in the shade. The kalmia is difficult to move from the woods or pastures, but if grown in a nursery and transplanted two or three times they have a mass of fibrous roots and will lift with a ball of earth attached, being almost sure to live if transplanted any time in spring or fall. On the limestone lands of the west they do not do as well as in the east, although they are worth trying everywhere.

CARNATION CUTTINGS

We are in unusually good position to supply exceptionally well-rooted, healthy stock. We have such a large quantity of flowering plants that we propagate only from heel cuttings from flowering shoots. Our cuttings are rooted in light, sunny, airy houses, and we are sure will satisfy the most critical buyer.

A prominent carnation grower writes: "You seem to be the only firm in the business that knows how to pack stock and have it reach the buyer in good condition, and I have always found your cuttings cheaper than the same varieties from others at much lower figures."

While our prices may not always be the cheapest, we certainly can give, quality considered, as good value as, if not better than, is obtainable anywhere.

We offer also BEACON and RED CHIEF, from sand, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000. From soil, $7.50 per 100; $60.00 per 1000. Also VICTORY, MELODY, WHITE PERFECTION, from sand, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. From soil, $6.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000. VARIEGATED LAWSON, WHITE LAWSON and RED LAWSON, from sand, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. From soil, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. We can also supply WINONA and AFTERGLOW, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

F. R. PIERSON CO., Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. Y.

WINSOR, which we introduced last year, has proved to be the finest novelty introduced in years. We think it is the most profitable variety grown today, considering its fine color, splendid keeping qualities, and productiveness. When properly grown, it leaves little to be desired, and almost everyone succeeds with it.

WHITE ENCHANTRESS, the best all-round white carnation on account of its large size, long stem, earliness, and productiveness. Our White Enchantress, exhibited at the Carnation Convention at Washington, was the only White Enchantress exhibited that received an award.

Strong rooted cuttings, now ready for delivery, from sand, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

From soil, $7.50 per 100; $60.00 per 1000.

DETROIT.

The Market.

There is little to say of special interest as regards the market. Business in general is none too brisk, although some of the florists are kept busy with special work. Stock of all kinds is plentiful. A large store opening created a big demand for Beauties the first part of last week, and many blooming plants were also worked off in baskets.

Various Notes.

Peter F. Reuss, of Johannesburg, Mich., who has been at Schroeter's since before Christmas, helping out, is to remain until the first part of June.

With Philip Breitmeyer as park commissioner, a mayor who is interested in clean backyards, and a Civil Service League that will offer all kinds of inducements, Detroit is rapidly coming to the front as a clean, model city.

Louis Charvat, who recently embarked in the retail business, purchased a horse from a brother florist. It was just becoming accustomed to its new surroundings when it died from an attack of colic. Louis's friends in the trade circulated a contribution list, and soon enough was raised to present him with a new horse.

That the vacuum system, as installed by the Simonds Heating Co., of Detroit, is becoming more popular every day is evidenced by the growing business of the firm.

The new music house and concert hall of Grinnell Bros. was formally opened this week. The entire six floors, as well as the concert hall, were elaborately decorated with palms, ferns, blooming plants and baskets, by B. Schroeter. Some florists are of the opinion that store decorating does not pay, but Mr. Schroeter has put it on a paying basis; in fact, he finds it pays far better than house decorating.

One of our largest retailers has entered into a conflict with the street florists who fairly swarm on Woodward avenue on a pleasant day. There seems to be no way of compelling them to give up their stands on the street. If this could be accomplished they would have to either go out of business or pay a high rent which would forbid them from cutting prices as they do.

A small fire in a millinery store in the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange building resulted in a slight damage to the exchange.

Hugo Werner, a brother of Mrs. B. Schroeter, died April 26 at St. Mary's hospital.

H. S.

PHILADELPHIA LACE FERN

$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

(5% off, cash with order)

These are good, strong plants that were potted November and December last.

We need the room and must move them.

Also a fine lot of 6½-inch pots at 75c each, 25 or more at 70c each.

This is the most talked about fern of the lot and has been awarded a great many honors, including a medal by the Royal Horticultural Society of London, and the "Kift Cup," by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, for the most meritorious new plant introduced in 1907.

Equally as good as green for cut flowers or pot culture.

The stock here offered is in superb condition.

CINCINNATI.

Current Comment.

I might safely say that never has there been such a large crop of outdoor flowers. Wherever you go you see great bunches of them on all sides. They are in every nook and corner and they are just knocking the regular flower business endways. You can look over your books for this same time last year and see where you were getting 3 cents for carnations and 6 cents and 8 cents for roses, and not enough to supply the demand at that. It makes you feel sort of sick. But it cannot be helped. Conditions this year are just the reverse of those last year. The weather has been ideal for a great crop of outdoor flowers and they have bloomed as never before, and the end is not yet.

How long this is going to last we cannot tell. From present indications there is little chance for a let-up for some time to come, but we are hoping and praying that the unexpected will happen and that at least there will develop enough demand to put some heart in the business and drive away the dismal atmosphere that prevails at present.

And, to top it all, peonies have made their appearance, to add another load for the market to carry. William Murphy has been receiving shipments of this flower from the south, and Huntsman & Co. have been the first to have them in bloom about this city.

Outdoor valley is also coming into bloom. It sells fairly well at from 50 cents to $1 per hundred, but the supply is much too large for the demand.

We are well supplied with green goods of all kinds and this kind of stock is doing fairly well. Good ferns are selling first-class and at a good price. Leucothoe sprays are a close second.

Max Rudolph has already planted one house of carnations from 4-inch pots and expects to plant another within two weeks. He has entirely recovered from his recent illness and looks as well as ever.

Dreer's Hardy Perennials

Largest assortment of desirable varieties. Plants of proper size to give best immediate results. For complete list of varieties see our current wholesale list. :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: :: ::

Many planters not thoroughly familiar with this class of plants have an idea that nothing but a large, field-grown clump will give satisfactory returns for the season. This, as experience has taught us, is in most instances a mistake. A vigorous plant of proper size will, in nearly every case, give quicker and better returns than the best so-called "field clumps" that can be procured. It will be noticed that the majority of the stock offered in this list is described as being 3, 4 or 5-inch pots. This does not necessarily mean that the plants have been altogether pot-grown, but that they have been field-grown and dug and potted up during the Fall and early Winter months, and such stock can be planted, even late in the Spring, with practically no loss, which, in the case of clumps, is often quite serious.

TORONTO.

Current Comment.

Now that Easter is over and we have had some little time to reflect, collect notes, compare expert opinions, and generally size up the Easter trade, we feel that it is up to the wholesale cut flower growers to look after their end of the business, or the plant growers will have swallowed up the lion's share of the holiday trade.

In Toronto, during the last couple of years, plants have been steadily increasing in favor with the flower buying public at holiday seasons, and this Easter was certainly no exception, but only more fully demonstrated the fact that unless the wholesale cut flower growers can supply the retail men at holiday times with cut flowers that are equal in freshness and in keeping qualities to those supplied right along, the cut flower end of the trade will suffer. In discussing the matter with a number of the retail men, I find that it is the general opinion that cut flowers do not keep so well at holiday times as at other times, and it is generally felt that the wholesalers and growers hold up their stock in order to get the quantity. They also hold up the price, thus giving the consumer an inferior article at a higher price. Not so with plants; as a rule, they maintain a steady price, and this seems to be the favorable part of the plant trade.

This year lilies were plentiful and quite a number were left over after the Easter trade was finished. Saturday was wet, the day when the bulk of the trade would have been done. This had an injurious effect, but, notwithstanding even that, a good trade was done in plants, and nearly all the retail men were well pleased with their plant trade. In cut flowers, violets were almost out of the market. Roses were fairly scarce, carnations and bulb stock plentiful. In fact, quantities of carnations were sold at a price that could hardly be considered a fair return for the same quality in February or March.

With the quantity of bloom that was procurable, all the city stores certainly presented an attractive appearance and everything possible was done to tempt the flower buying public.

We note that John H. Dunlop has just been receiving additional Masonic honors, and is now the Presiding Preceptor-elect of the Cyrene Preceptory No. 29 K. T. He also holds a number of other Masonic offices and degrees. D.

—1908—

ROSEA GIGANTEA. This beautiful variety has extra large flowers, which are borne in such abundance that the mass of color on each plant is amazing. Single petals are 2½ inches across; color, a deep, rich rose, almost a coral carmine. Plants make a vigorous growth, producing unusually fine clumps of green foliage. Height, 4 feet. (A great favorite with visitors to our trial grounds.) Strong plants, $2.00 each, prepaid; $18.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

CLADIO-FLORA. Remarkable for the unusual shape of the flowers, which look like large Gladioli. Petals are not long, but short and rounded and so wide they overlap each other, thus giving a very attractive appearance to the flowers. Color is crimson, changing to carmine rose with an uneven edge of gold to each petal. Height, 3½ feet. Price, strong plants, $2.00 each, prepaid; $18.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

METEOR. Meteor is a vigorous grower with healthy green foliage. It is highly valued because of its magnificent flowers, fully four inches across, and abundance of bloom. Color is a deep crimson; very rich; each plant usually throws up five to six trusses of buds, which continue blooming luxuriantly all summer through. Price, plants or dormant roots, 75c each, postpaid; $6.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

WILLIAM SAUNDERS—(1907). The flowers are large, of splendid form and are borne very freely in immense clusters. The color is a deep, rich, shining scarlet, lightly dappled with crimson. Foliage is a rich bronze. Height, 3½ to 4 feet. We believe that Wm. Saunders is decidedly the most perfect canna of this type that has been introduced. Those who tried Wm. Saunders in 1907 say it cannot be excelled. We offer plants only: 60c ea. postpaid; $5.00 per doz.; $35.00 per 100 by express, not prepaid.

MONTREAL.

Current Comment.

Our tempers are improving with, and because of, the weather. We have had two really warm days. In many places the garden plants are beginning to show up after the winter's rest. Under glass, things are not much changed. In most of the local places violets are over, though some fairly good ones continue to come in from the west.

As to the Easter trade, no one seems to grumble. Everything was plentiful, with a large demand. A number of the florists report that the larger plants and expensive baskets did not go so rapidly. The purchasers confined themselves to small plants in many cases. Campbell's did splendidly and were sold out of small plants before Saturday afternoon. They had only a few carnations left to tell the tale.

Miss Carmichael reports a good trade, prices reasonable, everything selling well.

Miss Murray did better than she expected. That means a great deal, as she has perhaps the best selection of customers in town.

Hall & Robinson were rushed all the time and sold nearly everything they had.

Mrs. White did a splendid business. Her windows were exceedingly attractive for the holiday.

P. McKenna & Son had an extra store rented for Easter, and their windows were beautifully dressed every day. They deserve great credit for such splendid and novel displays.

We regret to hear that Miss Murray has been confined to the house since Easter, with a bad cold. TOMMY.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The reports of the florists are anything but satisfactory in regard to their Easter business. Financial returns are far below those of last year. There was plenty of good stuff that went to the dump. There is plenty of bulb stock still coming into the markets. Bedding plants, especially geraniums, are selling well. Sweet peas and lilac are a glut.

The bulb agents are getting the cold shoulder wherever they go and the orders they get do not satisfy them at all. There will be twenty-eight to return home May 1 from New York.

The florists have started a petition to have the fakers removed from the streets adjacent to the markets. There has been much ill feeling on this matter for some time. There are plenty of stalls idle which they can rent, and in this way prices will be regulated to some extent.

Various Notes.

J. Bolgiano & Son started their spring sales of plants April 23 and are doing an immense business, both in plants and seeds. They have about twelve salesmen just to handle the bedding plants. They handle about 18,000 geraniums alone.

Israel Rosnosky, representing the Henry F. Michell Co., was in town Saturday and reports business good, especially with the new lily, Formosa Lilium longiflorum.

The park commissioners have begun to propagate the cherry laurel in large quantities at Patterson park, using about five large houses. They are shipped from down south in lots of 10,000 wrapped in moss. Q.

CLINTON, MASS.—Patrick Burke, employed by Edward W. Breed, has been reappointed by the board of selectmen as forest warden. As yet the town has not made any provision for the payment of the warden and there seems to be some uncertainty in regard to the nature of his duties, although it would appear that the law instructing municipal authorities to appoint forest wardens was enacted especially to meet conditions in towns of small population where there is a large forest area and where the fire fighting forces are not organized.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

ONE of the largest consignments of plants ever received in the United States at one time; namely, 80 cases Cattleya labiata, 100 cases C. Trianae, 40 cases C. gigas, and a fine importation of Cattleya Schroederæ. A very large importation of D. Formosum and D. Wardianum, all in perfect condition.

Will arrive in a short time: C. Mossiæ, C. Gaskelliana, C. Percivaliana, C. Warneri, C. Harrisoniæ, Lælia anceps alba, L. anceps, Oncidium varicosum, Rogersii, O. tigrinum. Intending buyers of Orchids would do well to come and see this stock before buying elsewhere. Our prices are reasonably consistent with good stock. All our goods are collected by our own collectors, thereby assuring our customers the best stock the forests afford. Come and see them. These goods if potted at once will yield abundance of flowers the first year, paying for the cost of the plants in the fall.

We also carry a large stock of established Orchids. Also orchid peat, Sphagnum Moss, Baskets, etc. A trial will prove we carry the best stock that can be secured. Come and see for yourself and be convinced of these facts.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.

The Market.

Easter here was the heaviest in years. All the stores had a large stock of plants and the most of it was cleaned up nicely. Lilies were all sold out by 4 o'clock Saturday. Plant baskets sold well, but the main sellers were azaleas, spiræas, hydrangeas and rambler roses. All the greenhouse people report heavy trade, which would have been still better had Saturday been a nice day, but it rained all day and made deliveries hard.

Cut flower trade came at the last hour and was heavy, carnations taking first place, as usual. Roses moved nicely and, in fact, everything was cleaned up, with the exception of bulb stock, which took a back seat. Cut lilies sold well and were barely enough to go around.

Everyone seems well satisfied with the business done. While prices were lower than at any Easter in years, they made up for it in the quantity of stock handled.

Trade seems quiet since the Easter rush is over, but there is enough doing to satisfy all.

Various Notes.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. secured a vacant storeroom at 68 North High street for Easter week, where a fine display of blooming plants was made. This, with the cut flower branch at 47 North High street, gave an outlet for an enormous lot of stock.

The Livingston Seed Co. secured a storeroom back of the store and used it as a storage room for Easter stock.

E. Metzmaier reports heavy business at Easter, and is still keeping up.

The club members are looking forward to a big time at their ball May 4.

PANSY PLANTS.

500,000 PANSIES.

Best market strain grown; grown from seed of our own raising. This strain is the result of over 25 years' careful selection, and for size, form and substance and wide range of color in clear, brilliant selfs and novel shades and markings, they will be found unsurpassed. The colors are very evenly assorted and the growth is very strong and stocky. Fall transplanted plants, ready to bud and bloom. Price $10.00 per 1000. Larger sizes, $15.00 and $20.00 per 1000. Express only. Cash with order.

I. E. Coburn, 291 Ferry St., Everett, Mass.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION, a new strain, having flowers of largest size, most perfect form and greatest variety of rich and rare colors. Every variety worth growing is in this strain and plants were grown from seed saved from largest and finest flowers of each sort. Fine, stocky, hardy, field-grown, seed-bed plants, sowed thinly, some in bud, mixed colors, $4.50 per 1000; $2.50 per 500. Cash with order. Pansies a specialty for 80 years.

From G. L. W., florist, Stamford, Conn.: "Ship me 1500 of your Pansy Park Perfection pansy plants soon as ready. I want them for growing inside for winter flowers. Those I had from you last year were first-class."

HUNT'S GUARANTEED FERTILIZERS

OUR FERTILIZERS ARE PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR FLORISTS' USE and are analyzed by an expert chemist to see that they are free from all acids. You can depend upon their being just what you want, AND SAFE. You ought to have these on hand at all times, ready for use.

PURE BONE MEAL

The brand we are selling has no superior. It is an absolutely uniform grade of pure bone, guaranteed free from acids, and is sold at as low rates as many inferior brands, which cannot be used with safety in greenhouse work.

Guaranteed Analysis. Per ct.
Ammonia ..... 4 to 5
Phosphoric acid ..... 23 to 26

HUNT'S PURE BONE FLOUR

This is identical with our Pure Bone Meal, except it is ground to a very fine dust or flour, making it especially valuable for use in liquid form or for mixing with other fertilizers when quick action is required.

17 per cent immediately available and soluble in water.

Price

200 lb. bag ..... 4.00      2000 lbs., 1 ton ..... 30.00

BLOOD AND BONE

Preferred by many of our best and largest growers owing to its great percentage of ammonia and available phosphate, which makes it quick acting. It is a mixture of pure tankage or blood and the best grade of Bone Meal in proportions to stimulate root action and bring out the best color in the blooms.

Guaranteed Analysis

PULVERIZED SHEEP MANURE

One of the most effective of fertilizers and largely used by the best growers, both as a top dressing and in the manure tanks. The raw material for Hunt's Sheep Manure is the droppings taken from solid floor sheep corrals. Ordinary manures are largely shoveled up from the ground and contain a large proportion of soil for which you pay, but from which you get nothing except possibly weed seed. A trial order will convince the most skeptical of the superiority of our brand.

PIPING IN NEW JERSEY.

I have some space not in use and have decided to build two connected greenhouses, each 19x32, ten feet six inches to the ridge and five feet six inches to the eaves. The south gables will be of glass to within three feet of the ground. The sides will have sixteen inches of glass. The north gables will be protected by a boiler-shed fourteen feet wide. The sides, and the south gables up to the glass, will be double boarded, with paper between. The north gables will be all double boarded, with paper. The interior will have two side benches, raised, under which I would like to run the heating pipes. The center bed will be on the ground. I expect to grow plumus in the center.

I have a two-horse upright tubular boiler, made by Olney & Warren, New York. Will this give sufficient heat with hot water for this climate, where the temperature rarely goes below zero? How shall I pipe these houses? Please give size and number of pipes.

J. R. C.

The two houses, each 19x32, will require at least ten 2-inch pipes in each house, with hot water, to carry a temperature of 50 degrees during your coldest weather. I judge that a flow with four returns under each side bench will prove as satisfactory an arrangement as you can make. The boiler in question will carry the houses in mild weather, but is too small for best results during cold weather. You should have a boiler rated to carry about 750 square feet of heating surface for best results. Your boiler will carry about 350 square feet.

PIPING IN KANSAS.

I have a small greenhouse, 10x30 feet, inside measure, to which was added during the last year a house 14x30 feet, inside measure. They are joined together and under one roof, as it were. The entire floor is three feet and a half lower than the outside surface soil, being what may be termed a dug-out. The house runs north and south. All the walls are of brick and are four feet high, except the west wall of the original house, which is six feet high. Eight feet of the first house has been cut off by a partition, for a furnace room. The roof of the part 10x30 is three-quarter span, with the sashbars on the east side nine feet long and on the west side four feet three inches. The roof of the section 14x30 is even-span and all sashbars are nine feet long. The entire roof contains nearly 830 feet of glass. five ventilators in the roof, and the whole structure is as nearly air-tight as it is possible to build it.

The present heating system is hot water, and consists of one 19-inch vertical tubular boiler, four feet high, containing thirteen 2-inch tubes thirty inches long. There are two flow pipes, one on each side of the house, and five return pipes, two on the east side and three on the west side. The said pipes are all 2-inch, are located under the benches and have a grade or fall of six inches from and to the boiler, which stands in a pit four feet deep, at the north end. But, finding this arrangement inadequate, my desire is to change it during the ensuing summer, and to now ascertain what additional 2-inch pipes will be needed and how they should be arranged to heat the south end of the building to 50 degrees when the outside temperature ranges from 10 to 15 degrees below zero.

long and four feet deep, built of cement. It is proposed to change the boiler now in use to a horizontal position and, by building a correspondingly large fire box, obtain a greater heating surface under it. What would you advise along this line? The expansion tank is located in the furnace room, and is eight feet six inches above the flow pipe at the boiler. Our fuel is bituminous coal. J. L. B.

The house 10x30 feet should have seven lines of 2-inch radiation and the house 14x30 feet should have eight lines, for the temperature you mention. The boiler in question will not be sufficiently modified in capacity by the alteration you suggest to justify the expense. The boiler you have should give the service required in all ordinary weather; it may not hold up when severe weather continues. Your plant should have about 300 square feet of radiation and the boiler you have should be capable of supplying 340 to 350 square feet. I believe you had best give it a trial on the new basis suggested. Raise the expansion tank and connect it with the main return near the boiler by means of a ¾-inch pipe. L. C. C.

IONIA, MICH.

The visit of twenty florists of Lansing, Grand Rapids and Muskegon to Ionia April 22 was a pleasant incident brought about through the enterprise of the Ionia Pottery Co. Several of the gentlemen arrived at noon, but most of them came at 3:40, and were let off at the prison station, where for an hour they were shown through the state institution.

At about 4:30 the party came downtown under the escort of President Fred Cutler, Jr., and Secretary Harvey Kidder, of the Ionia Pottery Co., being taken to the plant. They were started in at the clay pile and shown through the entire institution. They made an inspection of all the departments—pressing, drying, burning in the modern kilns. Then through the large new warehouse, which at this time is not largely stocked owing to the extensive spring trade, but which is being put in shape for fall manufacture now under way. After a visit to the shipping department they were taken upstairs, where the veteran potter, George Horseman, who has been with the company thirty years, was molding by hand the big lawn vases, and from there to the wire department.

The wire department is a new venture with a bright outlook. Here all kinds of wire frames and wire baskets are made and, although the company has not yet issued a catalogue covering the department, orders are coming in from all over the country.

Arriving at the Bailey house at 6 o'clock, the party was entertained at dinner, after which six or eight local automobiles were enlisted into service and the party given an hour's spin about town, leaving for home at 8:10. Those in the party at the Bailey were the following florists:

Leive Bruinsslot, Wilford S. Hanna, A. Hanna, Henry Smith, William Cunningham, George F. Crabb, Arthur Crabb, Eli Cross, C. F. Tunistra, James Schols, of Grand Rapids; J. A. Bissinger, Lansing; L. Wasserman, Muskegon; N. B. Stover, Grandville; M. Wetterling and D. Vincent, of Ionia.

Others in the party were T. R. Buck, H. B. Webber, W. C. Snell, Fred Chapman, A. G. Bedford, Fred Cutler, Jr., H. E. Kidder, Henry Witzel, George Dy-singer, Robert Baerd and H. E. Spencer.

The pottery is now employing thirty men, the business has increased this

The Market.

Weather conditions were most favorable for Easter trade and stock was certainly abundant, while prices were a trifle lower than last year. There were, perhaps, more sales made, but few individual buyers bought as largely as in former years. Easter lilies were, of course, the leading plants and were in good demand, but the supply did not run out. Some opened too soon, and were put in cool rooms to keep. Such stock brought complaints, and likely was the reason some of the stores sold them for 15 and 20 cents per bloom. There was nothing especially novel offered, but all the old-time favorites seemed to go in fairly good quantities. The churches, as a rule, were not decorated so much as in former years.

Cut flowers were sufficient to go around, carnations being plentiful and the prices not prohibitive. Some dealers had some left over. Roses were also overplentiful. Violets were somewhat scarce and small, owing to the warm weather, and are now about over.

Altogether, Easter seems to have been a satisfactory one generally, and the volume of trade was up to usual dimensions. E. S. K.

WELLSVILLE, O.—The flower store of B. A. Mick, which has been located at 555 Main street the last few months, will be moved to a room on the southeast side of the public square. The room is directly opposite the Reed building, where Mr. Mick's stock was destroyed by fire a few months ago.

LETTERING THE PILLOW.

The accompanying illustration is from a photograph of a 30-inch pillow recently made by J. P. Wilson, of the Wilson Floral Co., Olney, Ill. The pillow is probably more often called for than any other one style of funeral design, and the variations of the design are infinite. In this case the principal point of interest is the method by which the design-maker met the demand for the lettering of three words, each word being of the same value. By throwing two garlands of roses across the ground of carnations, with balancing clusters of roses at the upper left and lower right-hand corners, he succeeded in making appropriate places for all three words, giving each the same relative importance.

WEDDING OUTFITS.

However numerous the wedding decorations may be in May, the real season for this class of work is in June, and every retailer who makes any pretense at being equipped for wedding work should have an outfit of kneeling stools, gates, etc.

The supply houses now offer a considerable assortment of these goods, and they go a long way toward making the decoration satisfactory. The complete outfit will consist of a kneeling stool, satin covered ropes and gates, with electroliers and extensions, which enable them to be used in a great variety of positions and adjusted to the space to be occupied. Since no two decorations will be just alike, the outfit, or some part of it, can be used in each one to advantage, and many of the leading retailers have several such sets in constant use in the busy season.

MEMORIAL DAY.

It is worth while remembering at this time that Memorial day for a number of years has shown a steady advance in its importance to the florists. The trade May 30 has increased so rapidly that the day has taken its place as one of the distinct special flower days, exceeded only by Easter and Christmas. Since the special flower days this season are exceeding those of last year, it is reasonable to suppose that the Memorial day business also will show another advance.

It must be borne in mind that the Memorial day demand is for flowers to be left at the cemetery. For such a purpose the demand is for stock of a moderate price; only those stores which have a wealthy trade can handle quantities of expensive stock on this day. In the average store the demand is for bouquets at 50 cents, $1, or occasionally $2. Best quality is not demanded; what is wanted is a big show for the money.

While the principal call is for bunches, large numbers of wreaths may be sold. In some localities the popular thing is the metal wreath, or the one with artificial flowers, and in certain districts florists handle these in large numbers for Memorial day; also, laurel wreaths, magnolia wreaths, moss wreaths and other arrangements bought of the supply houses are sold in large numbers. But in the leading stores nothing of this kind is seen. What is handled there is the boxwood wreath, with a bunch of cut flowers on one side, or the galax wreath similarly embellished.

Memorial day also affords the retailer an opportunity for some more special advertising in his local newspaper. Don't delay making your plans, either for stock or for advertising. Good advertising in the local paper will do much in the development of the Memorial day business, and, without much regard to what the local supply may be, you can get flowers in the nearest wholesale market. You might not at Christmas be able to satisfy a customer who wanted red roses by offering gardenias instead, but for the cemetery purposes, if you have no roses, your customer will be satisfied with carnations, sweet peas, valley, lilies, peonies or cape jasmine.

THE ART OF WINDOW GAZING.

The first really open days of spring, such as those which we are now having, make a perceptible difference with the congestion of the sidewalks in the overcrowded city, so the policemen say, and others who are concerned with the problem. This may be accounted for by the extra inducement which the weather gives to window gazing; at least the "hurry up" produced by the cold winds has ceased to sound its alarm. To know the shop windows of any city is a liberal education. For a better source of general information the observing person may seek far. If one cares to know the titles of the latest novels or to discern the latest movement in literature—be it Pragmatism or Mental Therapeutics—a glance into the bookstores will suffice. The constant passerby may also gauge the popularity of the writings of the apostle of strenuousness by the progressive markdowns in his collected works.

The jewelers' displays offer scope for the imagination. What may be the destiny of those trays of glittering gems, and what—oh, what!—the use for those curious silver implements? Watch on, and later some far-sighted shopkeeper will have labeled that new device, and the information is yours. No experienced window gazer is ever left to guess the purpose of her wedding gifts. Asparagus forks and sandwich plates, and all their kind, are well known to her. Likewise no novelty in dress is unfamiliar to the connoisseur in these displays. Each latest development has been noted; and forewarned is forearmed. When it comes to actual purchasing there will be no Copenhagen blue—once it was Alice—nor Merry Widow hats for her! Too much familiarity has done its fell work.

The auction shops have fascinating windows. There the gazer may see Charlotte Cushman's fan, gift of the lovely Eugenie, alongside the completest of doll houses, and conjure what romances therefrom he wills. From them, too, as well as from the furniture houses, you may come to know Sheraton from Hepplewhite and Chippendale. Kazaks and Daghestans, Anatolians and Bokharas come trippingly off the tongue—old acquaintances. Big black Hamburg grapes and gayly colored kumquats flank dwarfed orange trees in the fruit shops, while African peaches in December and strawberries in January delight the eye; and is not that sufficient? Who so carnal minded as to set the tooth of disillusion there? And the florists—what shall we say for them? asks the Boston Transcript. The poorest little maid may know half a dozen species of orchids, if she will but look and read. The newest fern, the strangest variation of rose or carnation, along with many a simple and well loved blossom, invite the "seeing eye." Some of the groupings are too lovely to be forgotten easily. Perhaps Wordsworth could best have thanked the artists for their contribution "to that inward eye, which is the bliss of solitude."

As for the picture shops, how well they teach us to know our Rembrandts and Gainsboroughs and all the best—and poorest—of ancient and modern art. Curious engravings, pastels, watercolors and photographs lure the passerby to inquire further. Russian copper, Japanese china, embroidery and bronzes, and all the products of the older nations are spread before us. Nor is there a prominent man or woman—statesman, preacher, author or actress—whose face is not familiar to the seasoned window gazer. If to be wise is to know a little of everything and all of something, opportunities to qualify in the first particular offer themselves at every turn to the stroller on the city's streets.

THE WEDDING DECORATION.

The accompanying illustrations show portions of the decorative work, arranged by the Bell Floral Co., Franklin, Pa., for a recent wedding at the home of Duncan Mackintosh, at Glen Moy, just outside the limits of Franklin.

The large circular bridal table was constructed around a permanent aquarium, in the center of the octagonal palm room. Small palms and ferns, interspersed with azalea flowers, were used to partially screen the aquarium, and crescentic garlands of sweet peas occupied the middle distance, with a liberal garnishing of adiantum scattered between.

The candelabra were showered with lily of the valley, and the intercrossing iron braces overhead were completely hidden by smilax and drooping sprays of pink and white wistaria, while the chandelier was treated with the same material.

The other illustration shows a portion of the library, where the marriage ceremony took place, before the rustic canopy at the wide doorway at the entrance to the dining-room. This canopy was six feet wide, and projected two and one-half feet from the wall, and was draped with Asparagus plumosus, and further decorated with clusters of lilies and a liberal covering of white dogwood flowers.

A curtain, made of strands of asparagus, was let down in the doorway during the wedding, and afterward looped up with bows of white ribbon.

The two front columns of the canopy, to which the wedding ropes were attached, were entwined naturally with Celastrus scandens.

The fixed book shelves at the left were screened with white drapery garnished with wild smilax; and on the projection above were pots of drooping ferns, interspersed with vases of white tulips and pink roses. As will be noticed, the photograph was made before the work was entirely completed.

NEW LONDON, CONN.—Edward A. Smith's Easter business this year was the best in all his experience. In addition to a good trade with individual customers, he had an unusual number of large church decorations, as well as a portion of the floral display for the Templar conclave at the Masonic temple.

O. C. SIMONDS, Chicago, has been at Milwaukee in consultation with those interested in beautifying the river front. He recommends planting trees and shrubs wherever possible, and says: "The glaring advertisements on the rear of buildings, and the billboards should be removed, and the buildings painted some modest, dignified color. The river fronts of the buildings in the central portion of the city are seen by more people than the street fronts, and so should be made presentable." Mr. Simonds also suggests that parkways be formed on the upper river, leading out into the country, with opportunities for boating, bathing, driving and walking along that part of the river. He suggests "Virginia creeper and Japanese ivy for covering buildings and dead walls. Lindens, elms, lilacs, bush-honeysuckles and various other kinds of trees and vines could be used with great effect."

THE USE OF CAST GLASS.

Successfully Tried in Germany.

For several years trials on a smaller or greater scale have been made by German nurserymen with the use of cast glass for roofing their greenhouses. As far as I have been able to discern up till now, all German florists who have during the last few years covered their houses with this glass are well pleased with it, and say they never would make any more use of the old light and thin glass in the building of greenhouses. Having heard so many expressions in favor of cast glass by a great number of German florists, I cannot well understand the fact that American florists have not yet made any trials with this sort of glass for roofing their houses. Why not? The use of this glass offers so many great advantages over the old, thin glass, that it is really surprising to know that florists in the United States of America have up to the present not decided to cover their greenhouses with the cast glass and so get hold of the great advantage it gives in a good many ways over the old glass. American florists, as admittedly good business men, are always quick to make use of anything that gives them an advantage in their methods of work and business. Why don't they try cast glass?

Up to the present I have been visiting a good many German florists' establishments where cast glass has already been used on the houses, and I have had plenty of opportunities to hear the opinions of their owners. No doubt it will be of some interest to American florists to hear some more details about the cast glass, as it is used over here. To start with, I must mention that there are two different sorts of cast glass, the simply clouded sort, without any ribs, and the other sort clouded only on one side and covered lengthwise with straight, fine ribs on the other side. The last mentioned sort, I have found, is much more in use than the first one; it is better, too, in every way.

Points of Superiority.

The advantage of cast glass is to be found in its greater thickness. In consequence it possesses greater power of resistance against breaking, for instance in hail storms. Houses covered with cast glass need only be shaded in the presence of a burning sun, whereas houses roofed with the old, thin glass have to be shaded against the first few feeble sun-rays in early spring. A very great advantage of cast glass lies in the fact that, because it is very thick, panes from four to six feet in length and two feet in width can be used for roofing, by which means, of course, only half as many rafters are needed as hitherto were necessary with the old, thin glass. It goes without saying that the rafters themselves have to be stronger and heavier, on account of the greater weight of the cast glass. It is evident, too, that because the panes of cast glass can be used in greater lengths, the number of joints is reduced quite considerably and in consequence houses covered with this glass will hold their temperature far better and more evenly.

If, of course, the present prices of cast glass are still twice as high as the prices of the old, thin glass, it must be considered that in using cast glass for the building of greenhouses only half the number of rafters is necessary; that, further, this glass is far more resistant against breakage; that the houses covered with it are warmer, and that, of course, a smaller quantity of coal is required for their heating. Furthermore, this glass does not need to be shaded at the first few feeble sun-rays in spring.

Better Light on Cloudy Days.

Another point in favor of cast glass is the fact that on dull, rainy days it gives better and more light to the houses covered with it. This assertion, no doubt, seems a bit unlikely at first sight. It is, nevertheless, quite true and arises from the fact that this glass breaks the rays of light better and throws them out to all sides.

My experiences up to the present with cast glass have shown me plainly that the glass finely ribbed on one side is preferable to the sort simply clouded on both sides, and that it is by far the best method to lay the ribbed side downward, because the panes will keep clean much longer in this way than in the other, where the ribbed side was laid upward and so was exposed to dust, soot and rain, and of course the dirt was not so easily removed.

I should be pleased if American florists would express their opinion on the question of cast glass in this paper and would make trials with it. I am sure it will be worth their while, and I do not doubt that all trials in this direction will bring good results.

STORING PEONIES.

At what temperature should peonies be kept in cold storage? I never have tried storing peonies, but mine are now showing color and I want to keep some for Decoration day, if possible. Please give directions for picking, packing and storage.

C. P. M.

The storage of peonies is not so simple a matter as it appears; experience is necessary in order to secure satisfactory results. The buds should be cut at slightly different stages of development for the different varieties, but generally when they are showing some color while not yet beginning to burst. They should be bunched in twenty-fives, each bud in the bunch being in the same stage of development; if any are farther open than others, bunch them by themselves. Wrap each bunch in paper, being careful to see that the paper does not go down into the water in the pails in which the bunches are placed for storage, else it will draw up water and rot the buds. As little time as possible should be lost between cutting and storage. The storage temperature should be as near freezing as possible and keep out actual frost. Working along these lines some shippers will turn out perfect stock, while others, less observant and less painstaking, will fail to secure results that will make the speculation profitable. H. O.

SOIL AND THE FLORIST

The Need of Organic Matter.

The discussion of the availability of plant foods in soils (see page 13 of the REVIEW for December 26) and of the principle underlying proper land drainage (see page 9 of the issue for April 30) brings me to consider the importance of organic matter in soils.

If a high productive capacity of fields is to be secured and maintained, then, in some manner must all soils be given an openness of structure approaching that possessed by our coarse sandy types. The factor of paramount importance in securing prime tilth, or the best possible structure, is an abundance of organic matter deeply and thoroughly incorporated in the soil; and with this must always be associated ample underdrainage, which fortunately is generally the case where structure is right. For ordinary field conditions this incorporation of organic matter must be secured through deep plowing, which aims to turn under all waste refuse and occasionally green and stable manures. Going with this practice there must be an intelligent rotation of crops, which includes the legumes, to accumulate nitrogen from the air and fix it deeply in the soil in the structure of their tubercle and root growth; which includes also the grasses, with dense root systems which both tend to deeply and finely divide the soil by the close ramifications of their roots and to make the granules so formed more rigid by the cementing action of substances rendered soluble by the carbonic acid transpired through their roots and which accumulate in the granules by diffusion and become precipitated there as the soil is deeply and thoroughly dried by the action of the roots in supplying the plant with water. The cereal, vegetable, fiber and sugar crops exert but a feeble structure-building effect upon the soil. They tend, rather, to weaken the soil structure by the removal of the soluble plant food ingredients which have been accumulated in them, thus rendering them structurally defective and deficient in immediately available plant food. Crops of this class, therefore, are chiefly the earning agencies, while the grasses and the legumes are largely restorative, but may also be earning crops as well. It must be remembered, however, that their restorative effect lies wholly in their power to mend structure and to add nitrogen to the soil. Other plant food elements they never add, but may, to some extent, help to make them more available, and thus permit larger yields to follow them, but whose removal, followed by no return to the soil, hastens its ultimate exhaustion.

A Practical Illustration.

Composition first and structure second are the master factors which determine the productive capacity of fields. I will close by illustrating this by the practice of composting soils preparatory to their use on the benches in forcing houses. With the practical man his first choice is a rich sod, his second a rich, mellow loam. To the soil he adds from a third to half its volume of good stable manure, perhaps supplemented with phosphates, lime and potash. The whole is thoroughly mixed, put in good moisture condition and given opportunity for fermentation under conditions of frequent turning. By this treatment he secures a soil whose structure is ideal and which is at the same time carrying a heavy charge of plant food in highly available form. A strong blue-grass or timothy sod is itself a guaranty of thorough and strong crumb structure. Because the volume of the soil is small, it is imperative that the root system be brought in effective contact with the whole of it, that the available surface shall be as large as possible and that the soil with which the roots come in contact shall be heavily charged with essential plant food. The decay of the manure in contact with the soil grains leads to their becoming highly charged with plant food in water-soluble form. Quite likely, too, at the time of planting, the manure and other substances will be supplemented by sodium nitrate.

It seems idle to think that soils like this, selected at the start because they are in evident good condition and reasonably productive, should require such excessive amounts of manure and fertilizers to simply neutralize toxic principles which may be present in them, and we may be reasonably certain that we are here dealing simply with an abundance of plant food in highly available form, placed under ideal conditions for the crop to put itself in touch with it.

THE READERS' CORNER.

Moles in the Greenhouse.

A. Caspers' experience with moles is somewhat unusual. According to natural history the mole is no vegetarian. Rats are more likely to be the cause of the damage described. Should you have moles working in your benches, a few castor beans inserted in their runs will make them vacate. J. E. ROBERTSON.

WHITE FLY.

Please tell me how to kill or drive away the little white fly. My greenhouse is full of them. They sit on the leaves and in a short time the leaves become yellow and drop off the plants. What shall I do to get rid of them? M. L.

In the first place, you should never have allowed your greenhouse to become "full" of the white fly. You can keep a house clean with less expense and with less work than you can clean it up after it is badly infested. You should fumigate regularly with one of the nicotine extracts; light fumigation is all that is necessary to keep the house free, if a start is made when it is not badly infested. You will now have to fumigate several times and quite heavily to destroy the insects.

Get a can of one of the nicotine extracts and follow directions. Perhaps the easiest way, if steam is on, is to apply the nicotine to the hot pipe with an ordinary oil can. An advertisement in a recent REVIEW said: "When the heating system is steam the compound can be applied on the steam pipes with an engineer's ordinary oil can, with the opening of the tip a little larger than a needle; use twenty to twenty-five teaspoonfuls to each 100 running feet by simply running the spout of the can along the top of the pipe, always walking away from the fumes." Wietor Bros. say they use this method, simply painting the preparation on the pipes just before the steam is turned on. If you cannot now close up your house with the steam on you can vaporize the nicotine over lamps.

Hydrocyanic acid gas is a powerful agent to employ against white fly, or any other breathing thing, but it is dangerous, both to plants and men, when in the hands of inexperienced operators. After repeated experiments the following formula is now generally used: Water, one pint; sulphuric acid, one pint; cyanide of potash, two and one-half ounces, ninety-eight per cent pure. This quantity is for each 1,500 cubic feet of air space in the greenhouse, keeping doors and ventilators closed all night. A number of factors, such as the tightness of the house, state of the weather, etc., will influence the result, but nothing will affect the result to a man if he breathes the gas; it is sure death. K. A.

A paper by Prof. F. H. King, of Madison, Wis., read before the Congress of the National Council of Horticulture.

Establishment of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., Columbus, Ohio.

were sunburn are the spots caused by thrips. It is not a burn, but a drying up of the tissue after the insects have sucked the sap from the cells supporting the tissue. When the sun is weak during the winter, these spots turn white, but when the sun gains more strength they take on a darker hue, until in hot weather they turn quite brown in color. Perhaps you have noticed this.

The buds you sent were quite badly infested and, if the whole crop is as bad, you need expect few more perfect blooms this season. During warm weather they multiply so rapidly that, with a good start, as these seem to have, it would take a long time to get rid of them. Cool weather is the time to fight this insect. By keeping up the preventives religiously during the winter and doubling them when warm weather sets in, you can usually hold them down pretty well; but if you once let them get a foothold in warm weather, you will have a big job on your hands.

Tobacco in any form will kill them, if you reach them. Their mode of operation is such, however, that they are extremely difficult to reach. They get between the folds of the very young foliage and inside of the young buds, and it is just about impossible to reach them there. About the only chance is when the buds develop and they must migrate to another and are thereby exposed. That would indicate that frequent doses should be applied and, if possible, the conditions in the house should be constantly kept in such a state that they cannot exist when exposed to the atmosphere. This is, perhaps, the most destructive pest we have to deal with these days and we do not know enough about him. The scientist who discovers a sure and quick method of destroying him will earn fame, if not a fortune.

The other pest is red spider, and these

CARNATIONS

SOIL FOR CARNATIONS.

Would sod turned over last fall be all right to plant carnations in this spring? It does not appear to be much rotted. A. E. K.

With proper handling you can get your soil into good condition for your carnations by late July or early August, but it will require considerable work. If you want to let it lie on the field until you want to use it, I would suggest that you put on what manure is needed and, as soon as the ground is dry enough to crumble well, put on a disk harrow to cut up all the sod. Let it lie a month, or less; then plow it over again, and use the disk harrow again. Do this as often as the ground settles enough to plow well. Another way would be to rick it up and turn it over several times, each time chopping the sod and breaking up the lumps. I think, however, the first method would prove the more economical in your case.

Carnations like a well decomposed soil, and at planting time you want very little sod in the soil. In this respect carnations differ from roses and many other plants. A. F. J. B.

THRIPS AND RED SPIDER.

I am sending you a little box of carnation buds which have small insects on them. These seem to suck the bud or calyx until it turns yellow and the bud then rots, and if it opens it looks like a sunburn. Please tell me what the insects are and how to clean them out. The plants are fine, large ones. They have given a full crop all winter and promise to continue to do so for a while. I spray with To-bak-ine and use tobacco dust occasionally. It has been only about two weeks since the pests put in their appearance. W. H. F.

The specimens forwarded showed plainly the ravages of two of our most dreaded enemies in growing carnations. The discolorations and what you thought are the cause of that rusty looking appearance of the buds before they show the petals within. These, like the thrips, multiply rapidly in hot weather, and when the plants are badly infested it is a big job to get rid of them. If syringing is done properly as warm weather approaches, they will be kept in check in that way. A sharp spray of cold water is about as effective against them as anything. Keep after them daily and let them have all the force at your command.

A. F. J. B.

A NEW OHIO PLANT.

The illustration on page 7 is from an Easter photograph made at the establishment of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., Columbus, O. This is a new plant, the range consisting of three houses, each 27x400 feet. Two are in carnations, the third in roses, with a glass partition between the houses. The photograph was taken in the middle house and affords a glimpse into the carnation house at the left, with the rose house at the right.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is a new concern. Its officers are: President, C. K. Seibert; secretary and treasurer, G. H. Woodrow; manager, I. D. Seibert. A downtown cut flower branch is maintained, in charge of James McKellar.

SEASONABLE

Fire Heat.

We have reached a month during which the days are frequently hot and the nights quite chilly. Light frosts are not unlikely until the end of the month. Much watchful care is needed to properly adjust temperatures. Except on dark, wet days with a low temperature, some of the houses will need but little artificial warmth. We cannot, however, recommend the entire stopping of fire heat, especially where roses are being grown. We are liable to have spells of cold, damp and sunless weather for several successive days, and houses under such conditions have a cold and ungenial feeling without a little warmth in the steam or hot water pipes. We have always considered it to be false economy to discontinue the use of fire heat at the first signs of genial weather. There are many who, owing to somewhat depressed trade, would fain cut down their operating expenses, and the cutting off of artificial heat naturally occurs to them as an easy way to save a few dollars. Even if you can only have a little warmth in the pipes on cold nights and damp, cloudy days, it will mean much to the growth of your plants.

Field Planting.

The first week in May usually sees a commencement made in the planting of stock in the field. It is yet rather early to plant out anything but the hardiest plants, and even these should have been gradually prepared for their removal outdoors. Violets, both single and double, should be gotten out without delay. Carnations will be next in order and, when once they are out of the way, it means the heaving of a sigh of relief, as they give a good deal of space under glass to many bedding plants, which are now constantly calling for room. Seedlings of any varieties of flowering perennials, if well hardened, will be better in the field. The dividing and replanting of ground roots should also be finished at once. If asters, ten weeks' stocks, pentstemons and antirrhinums are in coldframes, it should be safe to plant them in the open by the middle of the month. Do not attempt at this early date to set out any plants not properly hardened. These tender subjects will not stand a breath of frost, and even if they do, that omnipresent spring visitor, the cutworm, will make short work of them.

Hardening Bedding Stock.

The coldframes are now the best places for a large proportion of the bedding plants. In fact, if there is an abundance of these useful accessories, even the most tender subjects, like coleus and alternanthera, will grow well in them after May 10. Of course, sashes containing the last named, and other semi-tropical kinds, will need less ventilation than those occupied by geraniums or verbenas. They can also be dampened over and closed up early in the afternoon. By bottling up sun heat and having the atmosphere at the same time very moist, you will find that your plants will make an astonishing growth, much better than the same varieties kept in the greenhouses. If short of stock of these or other carpet bedding plants and if you have a genial hotbed, they will root quickly and make nice little plants in a month.

Hippeastrums.

While hippeastrums are not grown so much commercially as they deserve, we note a demand for them at the better class florists' stores, and a few growers are taking them in hand. The hippeastrums, or amaryllis, as most people still prefer to call them, cannot be grown and sold cheaply. If raised from seed, a period of two years and occasionally more will elapse before flowering size bulbs are produced. Sometimes flowers may be had in eighteen months, but with the majority a year longer elapses. The flowering season being ended, it will not pay to neglect the bulbs. These should be kept on a bench in a moderately warm greenhouse, given full sun, occasional doses of liquid manure, and encouraged to make vigorous growth. Seedlings started early in the new year should now be in 3-inch pots. If planted outdoors a month hence in a warm, well enriched piece of land, and watered occasionally in dry weather, these little seedlings will make quite large bulbs in one season. In the fall they should be carefully lifted and potted and should not be dried off until they arrive at their flowering period. Seedlings may be grown on in pots all the time, but we find that those planted in frames or the open do better.

Dahlias.

The demand for dahlias seems to be ever on the increase, and no commercial grower can well afford to be without them. Dry roots planted outdoors now will give excellent results for home trade. As dahlias are killed by a very light freeze, those with green tops will be better under glass in the northern states for three weeks yet. The cactus varieties, while they produce the most attractive flowers and seem to take the public's eye, are not nearly so well adapted for bedding purposes as the pompons, shows and singles. The fault with the cactus varieties is that the flowers are almost hidden on many of them, while in other sections they stand up boldly. Plunge your pots containing rooted cuttings in frames to economize in watering. They will grow much faster, as indeed will any other bedding stock similarly treated.

Hardy Nymphaeas.

The hardier varieties of nymphaeas can now be planted. These are already starting to grow quite freely, the warm sunshine of the last part of April starting them into activity. A good compost for these water lilies is one containing two-thirds good pasture sod and one-third cow manure. The more root run you allow the plants, the better they will do. Boxes four feet square and a foot deep are none too large. Plants will thrive in a body of this size for two seasons, but will succeed better if it is changed annually. The water should be two or three feet deep. Allow not less than fifty square feet of water surface for each plant. A few good, hardy nymphaeas are: N. Marliacea chromata, yellow; N. Marliacea rosea, pink; N. odorata, white; N. odorata rosea, pink; N. odorata sulphurea, yellow; N. Laydekeri rosea, rosy pink; N. tuberosa, white, which requires seventy-five to 100 square feet of water surface.

Nelumbiums.

Nelumbiums are all hardy in the north and are a striking feature in all aquatic gardens. They need a good, thick bed of rich mud to grow in. While growth the first year will be somewhat sparse and flowers few, they will make rapid headway in succeeding years, and a sheet of water covered with them is a striking object during the flowering season. So rampant growing are they, that they will encroach on the banks where there is moisture enough below for their roots. From May 15 to June 1 is a suitable time to plant the nelumbiums. A few of the most reliable sorts are: N. speciosum, the Egyptian lotus; N. album grandiflorum, N. kermesina and N. Pekinensis rubrum.

Rambler Roses.

At this very strenuous season, when operations of all kinds crowd us, it is easy to overlook the rambler roses. Probably you have a few plants left to be utilized at Memorial day. The stock for forcing another winter should demand our attention now. We hope that strong field plants have been secured and potted as suggested a few weeks ago. It is not yet too late to do this if you have forgotten it. Pot the plants firmly, soak well with water, cut down close to the pot and grow along in a light, sunny greenhouse. If too many shoots start from the bottom, rub out the weaker and unnecessary ones. If you keep these plants under glass, you will get a much better growth and one freer from mildew than if you grow them in the open. The last Easter, it is reported, pink rambles outsold the crimson ones. Bear this fact in mind when potting up your plants. Also remember that Easter, 1909, comes ten days earlier than this year.

Rhododendron Delicatissimum.

Brief Reminders.

Plants of variegated vinca will now do well in a coldframe. Young stock can be planted in the field by May 15.

Make an additional sowing of asters. Such varieties as Victoria, Semple's and Comet are all good.

A second planting of the gandavensis type of gladioli will now be timely.

Thin the sweet peas in the open if they have come up too thickly. Use brush or wire supports without delay.

Plan to reserve a sufficient stock of bedding plants for your own needs. Pull out the single stocks in the benches as soon as they show themselves. They are of little value as cut flowers and will not sell if any double ones are to be had.

Iris Hispanica is a useful flower for Memorial day. If the spikes are pushing up by the middle of the month, they will be in season. Try to hold a good batch of Gladiolus Colvillei The Bride, Blushing Bride and Peach Blossom for the same festival.

Choose, if possible, cool, cloudy days for moving evergreens and be sure the roots are moist before covering them.

Clear away all lumber and ash piles about the houses, mow the front lawns and try to give your place an inviting appearance. Slovenly kept places are but poor advertisements for the owners.

See to it that the seedlings of smilax and Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus are potted off before they can become crowded.

Note the spring bulbous flowers now in season. Jot down the names of desirable sorts for another season.

Ericas, boronias, camellias and acacias, if properly hardened, can be planted out by the middle of the month.

Now is a good season to increase your stock of Ficus elastica by ringing the shoots with moss, which must be kept constantly moist in a warm house.

HARDY RHODODENDRONS.

That rhododendrons are becoming more and more appreciated each year on private estates and in public parks is evidenced by the steadily increasing demand for them. While the native R. maximum and R. Catawbiense are being heavily planted, in fact rather overdone in some instances, the hybrids of European origin of the latter species are even more valuable for the adornment of home grounds. In Great Britain, with its moist climate, comparatively mild winters and absence of summer torrid heat, rhododendrons are a feature on every estate, growing with a reckless abandon which gives us a feeling of something akin to despair after struggling with them through a series of New England winters. But even here, where good evergreen effects are desired, on the edge of avenues or woodlands, in the woods themselves, or to set off some architectural feature, rhododendrons are valuable. On the shore of ponds and lakes they are splendid.

For massing effects an excellent showing can be made at once by planting large specimens of the two native kinds named. If these are carefully lifted, roots burlapped and planting done expeditiously when received, the percentage of loss will be small. We have never given these any winter protection, but occasionally in severe winters, such as we had in 1903 and 1904, the flower buds are killed. The variety R. Ponticum, used so extensively in Europe for covert and mass effects, is not hardy here except in some of the southern states. All rhododendrons love some shade, particularly from the morning sun, although clumps of healthy plants are sometimes seen where they get little shade, but in all cases these are kept moist at the root and heavily mulched.

In preparing beds for rhododendrons, either native or hybrids, if the best results are desired, the soil should be excavated to a depth of two and a half to three feet. These plants do not root deeply, but want a soil which is at once moderately porous and continually moist. All stones and gravel should be removed and good loam added, also one-fourth well rotted cow manure, some coarse leaf-mold and sharp sand. If well mixed, this will form an ideal compost. Planting should be done not later than the middle of May and the soil cannot be too firmly tamped about the roots. If at all dry, soak the balls before filling in the holes. A mulching of partially decayed leaves should be left over the surface all summer. These should be of sufficient thickness to keep the soil constantly moist. During long droughts it may be necessary to water the plants with the hose or by hand. Scrape away the leaves, make a ring around each stem and soak the ball well, then replace the soil and mulching. Hosing overhead in hot weather are beneficial.

A few really ironclad varieties of R. Catawbiense, which can be depended upon, are: Delicatissimum, white tinted pink, one of the best; Everestianum, light lavender; album grandiflorum and album elegans, both beautiful white varieties; roseum elegans, deep rose; purpureum elegans, purple; Charles Dickens, deep scarlet, the best of its color; H. W. Sargent, carmine; Caractacus, deep crimson; atrosanguineum, rich, deep rose; Lady Armstrong, pale rose, and Kettledrum, magenta. The foregoing I have found to be a reliable dozen. They have withstood minimum temperatures of 20 to 30 degrees below zero on several occasions. For any person desiring half a dozen I would suggest delicatissimum, Everestianum, Charles Dickens, roseum elegans, album elegans and Caractacus.

A heavy mulching of leaves should be given before winter sets in. This should be of sufficient depth to exclude frost. Much of the injury done broad-leaved evergreens in winter is caused by dryness at the root. This is intensified if the ground freezes about the roots, keeping out the winter rains and extracting what moisture the soil contains. If we could be sure the roots were thoroughly moist before giving them the winter mulching and that we made the covering heavy enough to keep out frost, we would hear much less about rhododendrons being tender. Some covering overhead with pine or hemlock boughs is essential, especially during the last part of the winter, when injury from sun is really more harmful than from frost. This is often discontinued when once the plants are established, and indeed, if they get some shade from buildings or trees, it is unnecessary with the really ironclad sorts. Too much protection makes the plants delicate and is really more harmful than no covering at all.

About eight years ago we transplanted a quantity of large rhododendrons in August. Every plant did well and we would not hesitate to adopt late summer planting during cool, moist weather, where the plants are only to be moved short distances. W. N. CRAIG.

"Little Pet is another rose that is well grown. When this was grown for market, some years ago, it found but little favor, and growers gave it up, but since the red varieties have been introduced and have sold so well, Little Pet has been taken up again, and is much more appreciated than formerly."

BEST HARDY CLIMBING ROSES.

William C. Barry recently prepared some notes on hardy climbing roses, for a rural-life publication, and these have now been printed in a handsomely illustrated booklet by the Ellwanger & Barry Co. Climbing roses, says Mr. Barry, constitute some of the most useful and valuable material for creating picturesque effects in the garden and about the house. When grown over pergolas, porches, pillars, or summer-houses, they lend a grace and charm to structures not obtainable with any other means.

They may also be successfully employed to cover screens, shutting out from view unsightly objects and buildings, and they form admirable hedges.

An arched garden walk or arbor covered with a variety of climbing roses is one of the many ways to make a garden original and beautiful.

The arch is admirably suited to the growth of the shoots, which form wreaths and festoons, and the flowers borne on them appear to the best advantage supported in this manner. I cannot imagine a more fascinating spot or resting place than a succession of arches with these climbers hanging from them. It presents to the eye a graceful mass of bloom—delightful to gaze on, as well as to impress on one's memory. Trained on pillars and trellises, and the sides of houses, climbers are also very effective and ornamental.

The old and well-known kinds, Baltimore Belle and Queen of the Prairies, noted for their hardiness and vigor, have in their day received their measure of appreciation and are still valued by many, but since the advent of the Crimson Rambler, a Japanese rose, fourteen years ago, they have to some extent lost their popularity and been superseded by the new variety.

Indeed, from its introduction up to the present time, the Crimson Rambler has won admirers everywhere, until now, because of the frequency of its use in some localities, it has caused a monotony which should be avoided. This can easily

ROSE APPLE BLOSSOM.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a snap shot photograph of the new single pink rose to which the name Apple Blossom has been given. The variety originated at the establishment of Charles Lenker, at Freeport, L. I., and is supposed to have been a sport from the Crimson Rambler. A considerable stock has now been worked up and Anton Schultheis, of College Point, has acquired an interest in it. The variety was recently given a preliminary certificate by the New York Florists' Club. Its dissemination in the trade is to take place next year.

NEW ROSES FOR EASTER.

A correspondent of the Horticultural Advertiser speaks as follows of a visit to the establishment of H. B. May & Sons, who are among the largest growers of Easter plants for the London market:

"Among newer roses in pots for Easter, I noted some well-flowered plants of Climbing Liberty; the plants were of a distinct climbing habit, having long growths which were flowering from every joint, and young stock were showing the same distinct character, and it should prove a valuable rose. I do not know if the same sport has occurred with other growers, but May & Sons' stock originated with them. Among other roses, I noted the dwarf polyantha varieties. Here the Baby Dorothy and Phyllis were growing side by side, and there was a decided difference, Phyllis growing rather taller, the flowers deeper in color, but not quite so full as in the Baby Dorothy.

"Princess Ena, the single sport from Mme. Levavasseur, is a favorite; the parent is also grown well and in large quantities. Some plants which were in flower were being kept over for the second crop of bloom, the stronger shoots from the base being already well advanced and showing large clusters of bloom.

Bench Construction Employing Split Tiles.

be done by planting some of the newer sorts brought out in recent years, which, while possessing the prominent and important characteristics of the parent, such as rampant, rapid growth, have the additional merits of new and beautiful shades of color—so that a very interesting collection may be drawn on.

The principal reason for the widespread popularity of Crimson Rambler is its rapid growth and profusion of bloom, a plant covered with great trusses of flowers, being an object of such beauty as to attract the attention and command the admiration of the most indifferent observer. Its valuable qualities will continue to increase the number of its admirers for years to come, and whether it be used for covering pillars, posts, pergolas, screens or arbors, its many charms will induce planters to employ it generously in all planting schemes.

In view of the desirability of enjoying a greater variety than has hitherto been employed, I would suggest some of the following sorts:

Helene, a seedling of Crimson Rambler, having the same rampant growth and bearing large, well formed white flowers with a violet tint.

Rubin, another excellent variety, having ruby red flowers, and Queen Alexandra, with rose-colored flowers, may be suggested with confidence as valuable additions.

Leuchtstern, or Starlight, is a unique German sort bearing single cineraria-like flowers, distinct in every way and beautiful. Waltham Rambler, one of the latest claimants for popular favor, is of similar style, but with larger and showier flowers and pronounced superior to the last mentioned.

Tausendschon, meaning A Thousand Beauties, is one of the latest productions, bearing abundantly the largest flowers of any in the class, of a beautiful pink shade. It is a very handsome and distinct variety, and is certain to become a great favorite with rose lovers.

So far I have named kinds belonging to the polyantha family, only. During the last ten years many crosses with the Wichuraiana have been effected, and the results have been most gratifying in the production of new varieties.

The type Wichuraiana is a Japanese trailing rose of vigorous habit, having rich, glossy foliage, and the crosses have this merit in addition to charming blooms.

Dorothy Perkins is a beautiful pink, which can not be overpraised. It is a true pink, clear, delicate, and the flowers are borne in the greatest profusion.

Farquhar is another of almost the same shade, yet distinct in the formation of its flowers.

Lady Gay is still another American sort, cherry pink in color, and producing immense clusters in the greatest abundance.

Hiawatha is a single scarlet, one of the most distinct and effective varieties, and brought out only a year ago.

There are several others which could be added to the list, but in this article I have purposely mentioned only some of the most noteworthy.

Certainly, with the abundance of material herein suggested, there is no reason why our gardens may not be enriched and embellished with novel and beautiful climbers and grown in a variety of forms producing effects difficult to describe, and striking beyond our most sanguine expectations.

Rose Apple Blossom.

TILE BENCH CONSTRUCTION.

I have noticed a number of articles in recent issues of the REVIEW, giving illustrations and descriptions of various styles of concrete bench construction. From what I have read, it appears that the sectional benches of concrete are somewhat expensive because of the quantity of cement and the amount of labor required, while there are various objections to a one-piece bench of concrete. Now, as my contribution to an interesting discussion, I want to describe a tile bench that to me appears to have merits not possessed by any other style of bench; in fact, I like this bench so well that, as fast as my wood-bottomed benches rot out, I am replacing them with these tiles.

The tile I use is specially made for the floor or bottom. It is two inches thick, twelve inches wide and two feet long. I secure this tile and split it myself, and support the same on a wooden frame, but the Camp Conduit Co., Akron, O., which makes the tile, has recently perfected a post and crosspiece, as shown in the accompanying illustration, so that the entire bench may be made of tiles if preferred. I have used wood, 2x6, for my supports. At the joints of the tiles I run a coat of mortar to keep the drip off the wooden support. The tiles make a nice, level surface. The drainage is perfect and my plants are thrifty. Tile has been known for years as one of the best materials for growing plants on, because of the way it lets the air at the soil and roots.

The Camp Co. says two men can erect from 700 to 1,000 square feet of bench, including the splitting of the floor tile, in a day. Judging from the experience I have had in splitting and setting the tiles, I am quite certain that their claim is not exaggerated, but even though it should take a little longer, yet the cost of erecting the bench is so low that the bench should meet with great favor among the growers. These people also have a tile bench arranged for sub-irrigation and I think they will be glad to send a circular to anyone interested, or give them any information about tile construction.

There seems to be much interest shown by growers all over the country in some permanent bench material to take the place of wood. It is evident that a permanent bench that can be easily put up is what is called for. Tile bottom floors laid on various kinds of framework have been used successfully for years and are not new, but in my experience are good.

EDMUND SCHWERTFEGER.

WESTERLY, R. I.—S. J. Reuter & Son are working overtime, both here and at New London, Conn., in an attempt to keep up with the demand for their stock. Their Easter trade was unusually large, and seldom in the past has business kept up so well after the Easter rush. In the landscape department, also, they are doing more work than ever before.

THE WEEKLY
FLORISTS'

is printed Wednesday evening and mailed early Thursday morning. It is earnestly requested that all advertisers and correspondents mail their

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1908: President, F. H. Traendly,
New York; vice-president, George W. McClure,
Buffalo; secretary, Willis N. Rudd, Morgan Park,
Ill.; treasurer, H. B. Beatty, Pittsburg.

Annual convention, Niagara Falls, August 18
to 21, 1908.

First National Flower Show, Chicago, November 9 to 15, 1908; W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, chairman.

Results bring advertising.
The REVIEW brings results.

THE report comes from England that kentias in medium sizes still are selling fairly well, but larger sizes go poorly.

HAIL insurance in England is conducted by a stock company for profit.
It now has insured an area of 35,500,000 square feet of glass.

THERE are still a great many growers and small florists who manage to get along without a printed letter-head. But it either is neglect or false economy.

It is not possible for everyone to do business on a strictly cash basis, but it is no more than good management to require regularly the prompt meeting of obligations.

GROWERS should not forget that in the periods of low prices the stock of best quality always has the advantage.
Don't slight your work just because flowers happen to be cheap.

SECRETARY Rudd has issued the annual volume of the Society of American Florists, containing the complete proceedings of the Philadelphia convention.
It makes a closely printed book of 240 pages.

THERE is beginning to be the usual call for extra help for the spring rush, but the slack times in some other lines have led many men to return who had been called away from gardening by higher wages paid in some other lines, and experienced labor is less scarce than usual at this season.

CYCLAMEN.

The cyclamen is not a difficult subject to cultivate, and a bench of seedling plants will always provide a good selection of colors. Sometimes these plants will produce flowers of a particularly pleasing shade, and in some instances these special colors are perpetuated until, by selection, the variety comes true from seed. By such means has been produced the beautiful salmon-colored variety shown by Messrs. Hugh Low & Co. under the name of Low's Salmon, to which an award of merit was recently granted by the English Royal Horticultural Society.

Of equal value to the colored varieties to the florist in winter are the pure white kinds, such as are represented in Ed.
Webb & Sons' new Mont Blanc variety.

Joseph Repath.

Joseph Repath, an employee of Mrs.
Fred J. King, at Ottawa, Ill., was found dead upon the floor of one of the greenhouses, Sunday morning, April 19, shortly before 6 o'clock. The body was lying face downward, and its condition seemed to indicate that life had been extinct for several hours. An inquest was held and a verdict was returned stating that the evidence showed he had probably died of acute indigestion.

Mr. Repath had removed from Auburn, N. Y., to Ottawa, less than two months ago. He had stated that he was a single man and that his parents lived in England. He was 33 years of age.

Mrs. H. H. Taylor.

Mrs. Taylor, wife of Dr. H. H. Taylor, of Joplin, Mo., owner of the Galena Greenhouses, at Galena, Kan., died at her home in Joplin, April 23, at the age of 67 years, and was buried April 25. Many of the Joplin florists sent tributes, as also did the Budd Park Greenhouses, of Kansas City.

George Williams.

George Williams, of 152 Henry street, Hempstead, L. I., formerly employed as landscape gardener on the Kernochan estate, the Meadows, and lately engaged in growing flowers, was found dead April 28, under a horse shed on the Hempstead Manor property. A common sash cord rope was around his neck and fastened to a beam in the shed. Despendency or temporary aberration of mind is believed to have led him to kill himself. He was about 55 years of age.
He left a widow and grown-up children.

Charles Smith.

Charles Smith, of Boundbrook, N. J., one of the old-time and successful florists of Long Island, who a year ago bought his new establishment in Jersey, making it his home and bidding fair to enjoy many years of prosperity, was suddenly called to join the silent majority, by pneumonia following an attack of nervous prostration, after the hard ordeal of the Easter trade. He leaves a large family to mourn his loss.
His sons will continue the business at Boundbrook and Woodside, L. I.

Mr. Smith was one of nature's noblemen, genial, devoted to his calling, thoroughly expert as a grower and abreast of the times in every way. A little over 60 years of age, he had all the enthusiasm, hopefulness and cheerfulness of youth, and a host of friends sorrow because of his untimely end. The day before Easter he was at the market early, as was his custom, in the best of health and spirits and with no evidence of illness. The funeral was attended by many of his florist friends, and beautiful floral tokens of sympathy attested the general esteem in which he was held by all who knew him. J. A. S.

BEAUTIES

Our Beauties have been fine all season, and especially so this spring, but the present crop is, if anything, a little better than any we have cut to date. They are splendid value at current prices.

SWEET PEAS

The special quality of our peas is known from Pittsburg to Omaha and from Duluth to New Orleans. It is quality gives us the sweet pea business of the west. Try some of our peas. Order a day in advance if fancy colors are wanted. Plenty of pink and white.

PEONIES

We handle only one lot of peonies, put up by the oldest and most experienced grower in the country. You are sure of the right peonies when you order of us.

TEA ROSES

Large supplies of all varieties. As good stock as money will buy, or short roses if you can use that kind.

CARNATIONS

We can hold up our end on carnations with any house in this country—quality and quantity. Order of us.

GREENS

Smilax and fine long, heavy strings of Asparagus; also Sprenger, Adiantum. Extra fine ferns. Boxwood by the case our specialty.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

In the later days of last week the market experienced decided improvement. The first of the week the supply was unwieldy and as a result most houses made special effort to secure the orders of the big buyers who hold special sales on Saturdays. The result was an enormous volume of cheap shipping on Friday, with the effect that the market was well cleaned up and Saturday and Sunday saw more nearly normal conditions than have prevailed at any time since Easter. This week started off fairly well, because of comparatively light receipts. The weather for more than a week has been unfavorable to cut flower production, not only in the vicinity of Chicago, but throughout the shipping territory, with the result that the demand has, as usual, greatly increased as the supply has gone down. Local business also has improved with the retail stores, but those catering to strictly transient trade are not doing as well as usual, because of unfavorable weather.

The carnation market has shown the greatest change. There are abundant supplies for the legitimate demand, but the sacrifice of goods to the bargain-sales people is not at present necessary. Some growers report their crops as decidedly off, with no immediate prospect of any increase in cut, but others say it is only a matter of a little sun to again bring in large supplies. However, there already is speculation as to the crop for Memorial day, at the end of the month. It promises to be a specially good Memorial day, because it falls on Saturday, which means practically two days for cemetery decorations. It is remembered that last year carnations brought as much for Decoration day as for Easter and there are those of the wholesalers who think that this year they will bring considerably more than they did at Easter.

The rose market shows no special change, the only effect of the dark weather, apparently, having been a deterioration in quality. Roses continue to sell cheaply. The larger part of the city demand is for short stock for funeral work, and those who buy in quantity for special sales will never pay more than the price of short roses, even if the goods they get are of much better grade. Bride has presented a greater problem than any other variety, and now Kaiserin is being cut in considerable quantity.

The after Easter glut of lilies has been worked off to a considerable extent, but there still are plenty of both lilies and callas. Fancy sweet peas are selling excellently. Violets are less abundant than they were, but still selling at low prices. Bulbous stock is passing off. There is an abundance of white daisies, which are wanted for weddings, but the occasional calls for yellow find the market without a regular supply. The call for greens is normal and the supply equal to all requirements.

pare favorably with that of last year. In certain houses there is report of an increase in sales, but as Easter was in March last year, April should, by rights, show an increase for everyone, and this it does not do; those who have made an increase have done it by virtue of additions to the supply in one way or another.

Comparing the combined business of March and April this year with the same two months last year gives no more favorable report. For the two months the market handled a great deal more stock than it did a year ago, but did not make as much money out of it.

Bankruptcy for Thompson Co.

In the United States District Court May 5 a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co. by Gridley, Culver & King, attorneys in the New York Life building, representing these creditors:

Thomson & Burton, coal.....	$515.40
Ernest Oram, teaming .....	73.04
Pittsburg & Indiana Coal Co.....	23.60

The petition alleges that the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co. is, and has been for six months, insolvent, and that February 8 an act of bankruptcy was committed in that, while insolvent, payment of $315.40 for coal was made to the Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota Railway Co., with intent to prefer such creditor as against the other creditors. A similar act of bankruptcy is charged in a small payment made February 6 to the Standard Oil Co.

Peony Prospects.

A large grower of peonies at Sar-coxie, Mo., writes that the peony crop there this season will be the lightest in many years. He says an unfavorable season has been crowned by a heavy frost April 30. E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., who has a peony farm higher than in 1907; the average for the month for thirty-eight years is 46 degrees. May 1 the accumulated excess from January 1 was 423 degrees. The rainfall was 2.81 inches, the average being 2.72 inches. The wind movement, not now so important to growers as it is in the winter, was 12,454 miles. There were eight clear days, eight partly cloudy and fourteen cloudy.

Various Notes.

The J. S. Wilson Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia., has been incorporated, with $25,000 authorized capital stock. J. S. Wilson, of Western Springs, will become the active manager of the business.

Bassett & Washburn have begun to cut from their stock of Kaiserin, some of the plants being ten years old. These, of course, are carried only for summer bloom.

A number of the growers already have begun planting carnations in the field. We have had cold nights since the plants were out, but not enough frost to do damage.

Vanghan & Sperry report the arrival of their first southern Illinois peonies May 3. Shipments from Tennessee have been coming for several days. They have growers all the way from Tennessee to Minnesota and anticipate a long peony season.

Leonard Kill celebrated his thirty-fifth birthday anniversary May 5.

A. L. Randall, who spent last week in Michigan, reports a better prospect for fruit than for several years. He planted twelve acres of grapes last season.

Florists' Club will be held at the Union restaurant, tonight, May 7.

C. A. Samuelson reports a good week's business, including a large decoration for Mrs. Marshall Field May 5.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. began cutting May 4 on the season's crop of Gladiolus Colvillei Blushing Bride, otherwise known as the baby gladiolus. The sale is always brisk when the first come in.

George Wagner, who has the old E. Hobb's place on Indiana avenue, says business is good. In general, it is not up to last year, but the cheaper prices at which he gets stock this season have made his profits fully as good as ever, because in his locality there has been no necessity of reduction of retail prices. Mr. Wagner says he had the best Easter business ever experienced, using practically as much stock at retail as he has retailed and wholesaled in previous years. The wholesale end consists of bulbous stock in pans, etc.

Weiland & Risch are again cutting heavily of Killarney and Bride. They grow only a few Maid.

George Walther says business is good along Sixty-third street and that he has no complaint to make on the season.

At J. A. Budlong's, Phil Schupp says he sees another evidence of the value of grafted roses in the present condition of the stock. He says the own-root roses have deteriorated during the bad weather, while their grafted stock, and they now grow practically nothing else, has maintained its quality much better.

George Asmus reports that work was begun May 4, clearing the ground for the new Schiller store on West Madison street.

E. C. Amling says there is an excellent demand for fancy sweet peas; so good, in fact, that the best are bringing as much as $2 per hundred.

Louis Witthold has added to his list of inventions by devising a mixer for nicotine and water, to be used in spraying. It can be adjusted to give any proportion of nicotine desired, simply loading the mixer, attaching to the hose and going ahead with the spraying.

Ole Johnson is no longer selling on commission, but is in the employ of the Chicago Rose Co.

At E. H. Hunt's they report the general supply business a little quiet since Easter, but a good demand for To-bak-ine and for fertilizers.

The E. F. Winterson Co. says the cut flower business has been good since May 1, but that the rains have put a damper on the counter trade in the seed and plant department.

C. W. McKellar says that the call for orchids indicates an abundance of wedding work.

O. J. Friedman this week sent out a number of large wreaths of boxwood and azalea blooms.

Peter Reinberg says that in a few days he will be cutting the finest crop of the Mrs. Field rose yet produced, and

The concern has built up an excellent business in the comparatively few years it has been in existence.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Flower market conditions remain far from satisfactory. It is difficult to quote even approximate prices. On some days a demand creates a little flutter, but an immense amount of stock is being either cleared at absurdly low prices or not sold at all. Roses are hard to move. As usual, the better grades sell the best, and short-stemmed flowers are a veritable glut. Carnations, if anything, are now in an improved condition as compared with roses. Prices are low, but some growers' crops are rather off at present. Sweet peas sell moderately well. Some nice gladioli, which include both the Gandavensis and Colvillei type, are selling quite well. The varieties Blushing Bride and Peach Blossom take the best. Single violets are done, but several growers will have doubles until the middle of May.

Quite a lot of bulbous stock is now arriving from outdoors, including tulips, Trumpet and Pheasant's Eye narcissus of the ornatus type. Mignonette, antirrhinum and wallflower are all of poor quality. Lily of the valley is in light demand, as are stocks. Spanish iris sells moderately well, but marguerites are too abundant. Pansies are in heavy supply. In choice flowers gardenias are more abundant. While the scarcity of cattleyas is broken by a good supply of C. Mossiae, other sorts,

Various Notes.

April weather in Massachusetts presented some interesting features. In Boston the maximum was 85 degrees and the minimum 24 degrees. The mean temperature was 47 degrees, or one degree higher than normal. Precipitation was light, amounting to only 1.70 inches, against a general average of 3.49 inches. It was a windy month, the total movement being 9,491 miles. Nine days were clear, eleven partly cloudy and ten cloudy.

The warm weather of last week sent vegetation ahead with a rush and early flowering shrubs are now attractive. Owing to the mild weather, there has been little injury to trees and shrubs and there promises to be a wealth of bloom such as we have not had for a number of years. Never were forsythias so fine in the parkways and arboretum. The magnolias, prunus, Cornus Mas, and other early subjects are also splendid. Toward the end of the present week the numerous pyrus or ornamental apples will be a great feature, while the lilac display will be finer than ever. The andromedas still are handsome, while rhododendrons seem to have escaped all winter killing for the first time in a number of years.

Edward L. Beard, until recently a member of the now defunct Shady Hill Nursery Co., and who has been conducting a nursery exchange and landscape gardening business with offices at 155 Milk street, made an assignment April 28 for the benefit of his creditors, to Francis M. Smith. A meeting of creditors will be held at 155 Milk street May 9.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

We have had all kinds of weather during the last week, including summer, cyclones and snow, and the wholesale market looks as if it had received a jolt from every one of them. Never in its history, declare the veterans of twenty-five years' experience, has such a condition existed at this season of the year. With weddings innumerable and a veritable host of sidewalk merchants to use the surplus, the market remained glutted all through the week, and disposal of the accumulations became impossible. Saturday's market was slightly better—not in prices, but the usual week end demand cleared the decks and gave promise, with the cooler temperature, of some improvement.

Why some violet growers persist in shipping is one of the mysteries. Last week great quantities of violets were left unsold. Even the pavement distributors turned up their Grecian noses, and would have none of them. So ends the violet season in anything but a blaze of glory. It has been a hard winter for the growers, even with their increasing markets in other cities than New York. The probable result will be a much smaller aggregate of building up-the-state for violet raising than for many years, and a better average of values the coming fall and winter.

Beauties actually fell to 10 cents last week, for the best, and Maid and Bride and even Killarney and Richmond sold in boxes, all grades, high and low, at $10 a thousand. Weddings and balls could not lift valley above $1.50. Orchids held because the supply is light and brides will not consent without a wedding bouquet of the aristocratic flower. Everybody who is a retailer has a book full of May and June weddings. If this does not stir the stagnation, then the patient is in a hopeless state and there will not be any need of the big aggregation of growers, concerning which we hear much of late. Meantime the regulars will go right on doing business at the old stands and the optimistic ones are moving to Twenty-eighth street and fitting up their handsome new establishments as though they had faith in the future. There will be room for all, and profit for all legitimate effort.

Little need be said of the other items in the market. Great quantities of southern lilac are handled by the green goods men, reaching often to a thousand bunches daily. The quality is excellent. Sweet peas are at their best, but the supply is far in excess of the demand and prices are not satisfactory to the experts who grow them. There are plenty of lilies and prices are low. All bulbous stock is a drug and the lesson of the year will not be forgotten. Next year there will be a scarcity, for purchases from the foreign bulb growers have not averaged twenty-five per cent of the commitments of other seasons.

Carnations never were better than now, and prices never lower. Great quantities of the finest were cleared to enterprising Brooklynites as low as $5 a thousand and sales of 10,000 at a clip were made to Trepel, Hanig and Abrams, while a van was none too large for the purchases of Johnnie Weir.

Various Notes.

John Donaldson is the newly elected director of the Cut Flower Exchange and president of the association. Messrs. Siebrecht, Leach and Bakman were re-elected directors and Phil Einsman, of Astoria, treasurer. From December to March it was decided to open the market at 7 a. m. and the balance of the year at 6 a. m.

E. Schumann has sold his store at 305 Bleeker street to Messrs. Kennedy & Simons, who are practical florists.

M. A. Bowe had some large orders from the national base ball organizations and some prominent sportsmen for the funeral of Mr. Chadwick, the father of the national game, who died of pneumonia last week at the age of 85. A broken column at $100 and an immense ball of carnations and roses were among the offerings sent. Mr. Bowe has a motto in his store that may well be copied by many of his competitors. It reads: "Quit talking hard times! Get busy." There is no better cure for the blues than work.

Suburban Life has moved its editorial offices to Harrisburg, Pa., and P. T. Barnes, the horticultural editor, will go this week, so the new bowling club loses one of its most enthusiastic members.

The Horticultural Society of New York next Wednesday, May 13, will hold its exhibition at the New York Botanical Gardens Museum building, Bronx park. A large attendance is assured. At 4 p. m. a lecture will be given on "The Foundation of Successful Violet Culture." A meeting of the new orchid section of the society will be held the same day and some notable exhibits of orchids made, for which gold, silver and bronze medals will be distributed.

In June the American Rose Society will hold its summer exhibition in the same building in connection with the meeting and display of the Horticultural Society, at which time W. C. Barry, of Rochester, will deliver an address on garden roses, and Leonard Barron will give a stereopticon talk on rose gardens.

Sunday, May 10, is to be known as Mothers' day and will be of especial interest to florists because every person who desires to honor his mother is expected to wear a white carnation on that day. The idea originated with the Federation of Women's Clubs and promises to become a national institution.

Emil Steffens, for many years in the florists' supply business on East Twenty-first street, has sold his place to Weigel & Ujfalussy and the new firm has taken the store at 138 West Twenty-eighth street.

The May meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held at the Grand Opera House rooms, at Eighth avenue and Twenty-third street, Monday evening, May 11. Exhibits may be sent in care of John Young, the secretary, at 51 West Twenty-eighth street. On Thursday, May 27, the ladies will be entertained at the club parlors with a fine musical program, dancing and a collation that the head caterer, Will Rickards, intends to make worthy of the club's well won reputation. Visiting and out-of-town florists are cordially invited.

One of the metropolitan dailies featured the Grecian population May 2 and especially gave the nation credit for its showing in the florists' business in New York city. There are now 150,000 Greeks in this country and sometimes at the early cut flower market you would think the most of them were here. Most of the Greeks work in hotels, confectionery and flowers, and in each of these enterprises are proving ability to compete with all. They are surely an energetic people, patriotic, loyal to each other and to the history and traditions of their country. Ask George D. Nicholas about them. He is the Demosthenes of the Greek-Americans and an earnest worker for their advancement.

Next week A. J. Guttman will be moved and settled in his big new store at 34 West Twenty-eighth street, close to Broadway, and with room and facilities for an extensive business, far in advance of anything he has heretofore enjoyed. The move is a brave piece of enterprise, when the present condition of the trade and the strenuous season that is closing are considered. It shows unlimited faith in the future and personal confidence that deserves reward. Mr. Guttman's career has demonstrated the possibility of rapid progress and is a standing lesson to all young men of good habits, clean lives and faith in themselves and the certainty of success this city yields to those who deserve it. Mr. Guttman has a country home at Summit, N. J., and a rose plant of nearly 50,000 square feet of glass and is well known from the Atlantic to the Pacific by his successful dissemination of the Victory carnation.

J. AUSTIN SHAW.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

National Flower Show.

About forty members attended the meeting of the committee of fifty in the Art Institute, Chicago, March 26. Chairman W. F. Kasting presided. Reports, showing that great interest prevails in the show, and that rapid progress is being made in preparing for it, were made by W. N. Rudd, chairman of the premiums committee; E. G. Hill, chairman of the foreign exhibits committee; Otto Koenig, chairman of the special features committee; Philip Breitmeyer, chairman of the American exhibits committee, and J. C. Vaughan, chairman of the local management committee. A report from the treasurer showed that a large number of the guarantors had paid a first assessment of twenty per cent on their subscriptions. Chairman Kasting appointed Albert T. Hey, of Springfield, Ill., a member of the committee in place of the late P. J. Hauswirth.

The secretary reported that 1,300 preliminary premium lists had been mailed, and more were on hand and ready to be sent to all who addressed a request to Room 1411, First National Bank Building, Chicago. The American Carnation Society, the American Rose Society, the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the Horticultural Society of Chicago have offered their medals liberally as special prizes. W. N. Rudd, chairman of the premium committee, reported that $2,336 in special premiums had been offered by various private persons and firms, together with about $800 in medals and cups. The premium list offers a total of $11,023 in prizes.

Committees have been appointed by the various chairmen as follows:

Executive and finance—W. F. Kasting, chairman; Philip Breitmeyer, E. G. Hill, W. N. Rudd, J. C. Vaughan, Otto Koenig, August Poehlmann, J. A. Valentine.

American exhibits—Philip Breitmeyer, chairman; Frank Traendly, George Asmus, S. S. Skidelsky, Elmer D. Smith, Robert Craig.

Special features—Otto Koenig, chairman; Theodore Wirth, Leonard Kill, S. S. Skidelsky, Harry Papworth, J. F. Sullivan, W. L. Rock, A. J. Guttman, John Bertermann.

Auditing—J. A. Valentine, chairman; E. B. George, Roy F. Wilcox, Otto Koenig.

Local management—J. C. Vaughan, chairman; August Poehlmann, J. B. Deamud, W. N. Rudd, C. Cropp, Elmer D. Smith, J. E. Hauswirth.

Exhibits, foreign—E. G. Hill, chairman; J. D. Eisele, C. Cropp, E. B. George.

At a meeting of the executive committee, held the following day, Mr. Kasting appointed George Asmus chairman of the publicity committee. James H. Burdett was made permanent secretary and newspaper representative of the committee. The question of manager was discussed and the local management committee was authorized to engage one.

It was determined, after a lengthy discussion, to give visiting florists, not members of the S. A. F., in good standing, the privilege of purchasing a season ticket to the national flower show for $1. Several amendments to the rules were proposed to the premium committee, the most important being that in all classes where it is deemed permissible an entry fee of $1 be exacted from each exhibitor. J. H. BURDETT, Sec'y.

HILL AND THE PARIS ROSES.

It has been reported that E. G. Hill has been invited to act as judge of a French rose show and the following item has appeared in a number of daily papers in Indiana:

"E. G. Hill, the Richmond florist, has been invited by the city of Paris, France, to act as judge at the trial of roses in 1908, and also to send a collection of his new roses for the contest. The contest will take place in the great rose gardens laid out by M. Jules Gravereaux, owner of the world-renowned department store, Bon Marche. This garden is said to contain about 11,000 varieties of roses."

Referring to the above, the E. G. Hill Co. says: "The clipping was probably copied from the Indianapolis Star of recent date, and is a true statement. M. Jules Gravereaux, the owner of the big department store, Bon Marche, has presented to the city of Paris a wonderful rose garden, and each year the municipal authorities add to his collection of meritorious novelties from all over the world. Each year, at a specified time, judgment is to be made on these new varieties by a jury appointed by the municipality, and our Mr. E. G. Hill has the honor of being appointed from America for the contest. He will hardly, however, be in a position to accept, much to his regret."

BLUFFTON, IND.—Wm. Trefinger has resigned the management of the Wiecking greenhouses to Herman Wiecking, Jr., and will remove to Lawrence, Kan.

NAME OF FERN.

Will you please tell me what variety of fern the enclosed sample is? Small tubers form on the roots; some of them are three-fourths of an inch through. Can they be propagated by these tubers, or what is the best way to propagate them?
A. H.

The fern in question is Nephrolepis cordifolia, also known as N. tuberosa, a species that is quite widely distributed in various parts of the world, being found in a wild condition in Mexico, Japan, New Zealand and possibly some other countries. This fern may either be raised from spores, which germinate quite freely, or may be increased in the same way as the Boston fern, by planting out some stock plants on a bench and removing the young plants as they form on the runners. N. cordifolia is a pretty species, and easy to grow, but is not quite so good a house plant as the Boston fern.

W. H. TAPLIN.

PARSONS, KAN.—Wm. J. Wirt, manager of the Wirt Floral Co., says that, in spite of what people call dull times, business with them is "away better than last year."

CHELSEA, MASS.—B. B. Smalley had the church decorations for the recent Eaton-Shurtleff wedding at Revere. The wedding was a large and fashionable one, and the decorations, consisting chiefly of lilies and palms, were correspondingly elaborate.

PALMS ARE MODERN.

Though palms now form a regular feature in Covent Garden market, in London, at all seasons of the year, the only one common there forty years ago was Livistona Chinensis (Latania Borbonica), which, owing to its somewhat heavy habit of growth, has since become more or less ousted in favor of those kinds that form lighter and more elegant specimens. In those days the kentias, now the most popular species, were unknown. The Gardeners' Chronicle says that one of the earliest to cultivate palms in large quantities for market was the late Hermann Herbst, of Richmond. His knowledge of Brazil enabled him to obtain seeds of many species, which he thought likely to meet with popular appreciation.

Fortune at once smiled on the enterprise, for with the commencement of the Franco-German war many wealthy people came to England from the Continent, where foliage plants in those days were popular. They soon singled out palms as especial favorites, and the taste for them quickly spread. The result was satisfactory to Mr. Herbst, who, having a large stock of salable plants, enjoyed a great advantage over his competitors, as the raising of palms from seeds requires a considerable time.

In order for a palm to be popular with the public it must possess certain definite characteristics. In the first place, it must not be exacting in its cultural requirements, for if a considerable, amount of heat and atmospheric moisture are necessary to keep it in good health it is next to useless for general decorative purposes.

The plant must be free from formidable spines, as these may not only prove a source of danger, but they injure other plants that may be packed with it. For this reason the beautiful forms of dæmonorops, now known as calamus, have never become common. It is also necessary that a palm be of fairly quick growth, and therefore be capable of making well-furnished specimens in comparatively small pots.

Kentia Belmoreana and Kentia Forsteriana may be quoted as ideal market palms, but the private owner prefers at least a certain amount of variety, as a continual repetition is apt to pall.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Business is bad, so bad that the most conservative judges say they have never seen its equal for badness at this season. The weather has been rather unusual, the hot days bringing in so heavy a supply towards the close of last week that even the cooler weather at the opening of this week seems to have had little effect in checking overproduction. The quality has been benefited, the havoc anticipated from the warm spell not being realized. The only bright spot in the market locally has been the children's festival in the Catholic churches on Sunday, calling for much stock of fair quality the day previous. There have been some good shipping orders scattered throughout the last six days, but all the orders, both local and shipping, seem but as a drop in the bucket.

Beauties are not so strongly in crop as a week ago. The quality continues excellent, with quite enough to satisfy the demand. The number of fancy flowers in other varieties of roses is somewhat reduced. Kaiserin is off crop. Killarney is preferred to Bridesmaid as a warm weather rose.

The listing of carnations in fancy, select and ordinary grades is somewhat misleading at this season, the large majority of the stock coming to town being of first grade. Its price, when sold, depends more on whether the buyer requires a quantity and is not particular as to color, than on the quality of the stock. In other words, fine stock can sometimes be bought at the price of ordinary.

Cattleyas are more plentiful, Mossiae being reinforced by gigas, and in lesser quantity by other varieties. Sweet peas are still fine and bid fair to continue in good form, should May be cool, until the arrival of the outdoor stock. Lavender is the scarcest color. Indoor pansies are about over. Outdoor bulbous flowers are in moderate supply. White lilac is popular. Dogwood is being freely used where opportunity offers. Greens are quiet.

A Chat About Schizanthus.

Edwin Lonsdale spoke before the Florists' Club May 5 on the above subject. Mr. Lonsdale has been growing Schizanthus Wisetonensis for some years at Girard College. It is a beautiful plant, effective in the decorations required at the college on Founders' day, May 20. The seed is usually sown in the fall, October or early in November, in order to have the plants in full bloom this one plant of a compact type entirely different from any of the types with which growers of this plant are familiar. The seed of this compact plant was carefully saved and sown. Now Mr. Lonsdale has twenty-five plants, all true to the new type, with flowers varying from white to delicate pink and lavender. The appearance of the new type was so striking that Mr. Lonsdale invited the novelty committee of the Florists' Club to examine it and they visited the college and reported favorably at the May meeting. Mr. Lonsdale is to be congratulated on securing what promises to be an acquisition to this family.

Arthur A. Niessen will read a paper at the June meeting of the Florists' Club, on the subject of coöperation between retailer and wholesaler in times of overproduction. A general discussion, following the paper, is invited.

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer will sail for Europe Thursday, May 7, on the S. S. Grosser Kurfuerst, to secure novelties for the coming season.

George Auegle, with the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., says that a sour face never helps to sell flowers. This assertion stamps Mr. Auegle as a true philosopher.

Robert Kift's public statement that the grower has more responsibility at Easter than either the wholesaler or the retailer is an extremely handsome utterance when you consider that he is on the other side of the fence.

Daniel D. L. Farson, of Ardmore, Pa., is seriously considering offering a calendar or some suitable prize to every purchaser of plants who carries the purchase away.

Among the novelties at the Overbrook Nurseries are some well grown Lilium candidum; perhaps not strictly a novelty, but certainly a rarity today.

M. Rice & Co. are showing the Acme cemetery vase and bouquet holder, which looks like a good thing.

William J. Baker was so much pleased with the quality of the sweet peas he handled that he put a few on his supper-table on Saturday night, leaving them shut up Saturday and Sunday nights.

On Monday morning they appeared as firm and brightly colored as one could wish.

Edward Reid received an order for 25,000 carnations April 29. Mr. Reid believes that this is the largest single order for carnations that has ever been shipped out of Philadelphia.

William Languth is the name of a dwarf variegated geranium with double scarlet flowers that was tried last season and will be planted more extensively this season at Girard College. It is said to be one of Peter Henderson's introductions.

Thomas J. Oberlin, of Sinking Spring, Pa., has begun his shipments of choice outdoor flowers to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

The hardy blue phlox mentioned last week in "Out in Fairmount" is Phlox divaricata.

A competent judge estimates that one-fifth of the carnations coming into the market today are consumed by the stores, three-fifths go to the street, and one-fifth is wasted. This may seem like an extreme view, but it indicates clearly the weak condition of the market.

The planting out season is about to open in earnest. Beds of early tulips are being cleaned up for the cannas, geraniums, sage and the sturdier soft-wooded plants.

trate Wrigley on charges brought by James Doyle. The florist alleged that March 29 Miles secured $10 worth of flowers, which he said were to be used at a reception given to the pastor of Old St. George's Chapel. When the florist tried to collect his bill he found that no one at the church knew Miles and that, of course, the flowers had not been delivered.

THE BEST LILACS.

Flowering shrubs are enjoying a marked advance in favor and not least popular in the list is the lilac; in fact, wherever the better sorts, for which credit is mostly due the French, are seen, they always create a demand for stock. An English writer gives the following sorts as all being excellent:

Among the white double-flowered varieties we have now several to choose from, Mme. Abel Chatenay is one of the best; it has immense spikes of pure white blossoms. Mme. Lemoine is an extra good variety, giving huge panicles of pure white flowers; this is a good variety for growing in pots. Mme. Casimir Perrier is newer than the preceding, and is in every way a charming variety. Of varieties of more recent introduction Miss Ellen Willmott is one of the finest, giving large trusses of snowy whiteness. Jeanne d'Arc is another of quite recent introduction. Taglioni, porcelain white; Banquise, and Mme. de Miller are also quite new. The latter is a dwarf-growing variety.

Of the double-flowered colored sorts the following are desirable: Alphonse Lavallee, large panicles, blue, shaded violet; Charles Joly, dark purple, the finest of dark colors; Countess Horace de Choiseul, creamy white, shaded rose; Comte de Kerchove, rose, free; Doyen Keteleer, pale rosy-lilac, large spike; Emile Lemoine, flowers large, panicles of fine globular form, color lilac; La Tour d'Auvergne, flowers double and large violet-purple; Mme. Jules Finger, satiny-rose, fragrant; Souvenir de L. Thibaut, light red, reverse of petals white; President Carnot, large panicles, pale lilac; Leon Simon, coral buds, changing to blue; Condorcet, large spikes, blue; Mary Micheli, clear lilac-blue; Renoncule, pale mauve; Michael Buchner, pale lilac with pink margin; President Grevy, cobalt blue with rosy edging.

Among quite new double varieties Dr. Troyanowsky has enormous flowers, blue, changing to azure. President Loubet, deep purple red, buds carmine, is one of the darkest. Maurice de Vilmorin has large flowers, blue with a white eye. Waldeck Rousseau has extra large flow-

Of single-flowered varieties the following are good: Souvenir de Louis Spath, long panicles, individual flowers large, dark purple, one of the best lilacs in cultivation; Marie Legrave, an exceptionally free flowered white sort, valuable for forcing; Ville de Troyes, dark purple, distinct; Mme. Briot, bright red; Gloire de Lorraine, red buds, changing to lilac; Philemon, dark red; Prof. Stockhart, blue-lilac; Triomphe d'Orleans, light blue, good habit; Gloire de la Rochelle, rose-lilac, changing to a pale blue; Beranger, blue-lilac, free; Duchesse d'Orleans, pale blue, free; Mme. Kreutzer, large spikes of vinous red flowers; Toussaint Louveire, dark crimson, changing to dark violet; L'Oncle Tom, deep violet-purple, large spikes; Pasteur, erect trusses, large flowers, color wine-red, changing to mulberry-red.

THE BARBERTON DAISY.

Although many years have elapsed since Gerbera Jamesoni, the Barberton daisy, was introduced to English gardens, and some thousands of plants have been distributed in the meantime, there is still little evidence of their becoming permanent inhabitants of gardens. One therefore feels impelled to regard Gerbera Jamesoni as a greenhouse plant that will, under peculiarly fortuitous conditions, occasionally thrive in the open air.

Studied purely as a greenhouse plant, and liberally treated the while, there is much in gerberas to admire. Plants grow readily in rather roomy receptacles, preferably six to eight in a deep pan partly filled with limestone chippings and turfy loam in equal parts, raising the plants slightly above the rim of the pot or pan. Old plants under cultivation have thick, fleshy roots that are readily injured by excess of wet.

The magnificent orange-scarlet flowers are superlatively attractive always, and with the aid of a little rational treatment should be forthcoming in quantity. A writer in an English trade paper says a buoyant atmosphere and a temperature ranging from 35 degrees minimum to 80 degrees maximum, as the two possible extremes, will keep the plants thrifty.

The REVIEW brings results.

TORONTO, ONT.—George J. Brown, who was until recently with J. H. Dunlop, in company with Fred C. Brown, has started the Florists' Supply Co., at 20 Wellington street, West, to do a general wholesale business in cut flowers and supplies.

FERGUS FALLS, N. D.—August Anderson, nephew of S. N. Mehl, the florist, has just arrived from Sweden. He is a graduate from one of the national agricultural colleges in the latter country and has made a specialty of landscape gardening.

MASON CITY, IOWA.—The Kemble Floral Co. has begun building operations on its new property, in the college addition, by erecting a two-story residence. When the dwelling has been completed, it will be followed as rapidly as possible by the construction of the new range of greenhouses.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., George S. Green, Chicago; First Vice-pres., M. H. Duryea, New York; Sec'y and Treas., O. E. Kendel, Cleveland. Twenty-sixth annual convention at Hotel Pontchartrain, Detroit, Mich., June 23 to 25, 1908.

THE season in the Santa Clara valley is about normal to date.

THE weather over a large part of the country has been unfavorable for business in the last week.

THERE is a lull in the demand for the canners' varieties of sweet corn. It is hoped that canners will need more later on, as there is said to be a surplus still available.

THE bean growers are still busy in some sections looking for enough acreage to put seed into. It seems to be just as hard as usual to make contracts, but in most cases less land will be needed than was used last year.

UNFAVORABLE weather at Chicago has shut off the planting of seed for onion sets. Most of the growers have yet a considerable portion of their acreages to seed. May 10 is about the limit for safe sowing for a set crop and it is hoped that the weather will clear soon; if it does not, the set crop may be shortened considerably.

THERE does not seem to be any boom in any line of the seed business at present. Apparently the weather is unfavorable in all parts of the country. Fill-in trade with the jobbers has fallen off somewhat and mail orders are said to be less than ordinary for early May. Market gardeners are waiting to see what the seeds already planted are going to do before they order more, and in general there is a tendency to hold off for more seasonable weather. The rush will come again before long, however.

It is reported that H. W. Fisher is leaving Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago, June 1, and rumor has it that the seed department will be discontinued. The seed business does not work in well with any other line and the seedsmen have felt all along that sooner or later all the big general mail order houses would conclude, as did Sears, Roebuck & Co., after one year's experience, that the energy necessary to maintain a seed department might more profitably be applied to other lines. If Montgomery Ward & Co. have not, as reported, now come to this conclusion, mail order seedsmen think they will arrive there sooner or later.

TRADE so far for May is generally reported to be short of what it was last year.

SEED corn is scarce and at the present time orders are also shy. A spurt is looked for later.

THE mail trade naturally begins to let down by May 1, but too much rain and cold has cut off a lot of counter trade in the last week.

WE couldn't do business without the REVIEW; it is the only paper that keeps one posted as to trade news in the seed line.—A. W. GILMAN, Rochester, N. Y.

REPORTS from the pea growing sections are not as favorable as at this time last year. It is early yet, but the ground is unseasonably cold and wet and the plantings so far are not coming along as they ought.

THE congressmen are not forgetting to send the usual packages of free seeds to the seed merchants who vote for them. Three citizens interested in one Chicago firm received packages this week. It is evident that the congressmen are not inclined to show any favors in the distribution.

ing, from the editorial column of the Democrat, of Paducah, Ky.:
"It is to be hoped that congress will pass the bill designed to protect the public against adulterated or misbranded seed. A pure-seed law is as important as the pure-food law. Vanderburg county farmers may wonder why they are unable to get blue grass of the luxuriant growth found in Kentucky. In most cases it is because they buy Canadian blue grass seed under the name of Kentucky blue grass. Such an imposition would be impossible if laws are adopted by congress and the legislature like the measure proposed by Mr. Mann, of Illinois. A report on the bill says," etc.

RUFFLED GLADIOLI.

An Epoch-making Event.

The advent of the ruffled form of the gladiolus should be a matter of interest to all growers of this flower. To my mind, it is one of the half-dozen epoch-making events in the history of the gladiolus as a cultivated flower, and it is one that presents some special characteristics of its own.
I would not characterize it as a "triumph of the breeder's art," as no doubt some will, or as another of the "wonderful results of hybridization," for I think its appearance can better be accounted for on other grounds. I hardly think it is a result of any mingling of heredities by cross-fertilization, but is the outcome of other forces altogether.

Not Entirely New.

It is not entirely new. It was slightly noticeable in the variety Snow White and plainly evident in White Lady or Weiss Dame, and I have in my collection, among the seedlings originating here and held for trial and development, a frilled gladiolus which has been in bloom for at least four years. It is listed in my field notebook by the name "Fuss and Frills," and has been inspected when in bloom by a number of growers and others who have visited my place. Its unusual appearance attracts attention quickly. It is a pure white flower. While vigorous enough, it has the trait, common to all white varieties, of being a sparse producer of cormels and hence is of rather slow propagation.

Not Primarily Due to Heredity.

I have intimated that I do not consider this form as being, in the first instance, a variant produced by seed-heredity, though after its advent I should most certainly make use of that means to intensify and perpetuate the peculiarity. I feel sure that if the ruffled strains of Mr. Kunderd, and my own as well, were to be lost, neither he nor I would have any definite idea as to just what parent stocks to use in the attempt to reproduce them from seed. I should have no hesitation in classifying them as sports, a form of variation unusual, it is true, in gladioli, but which cannot be denied to the species. Probably a true and permanent instance of a well-defined sport in gladioli is as yet unknown, unless we except the redundancy of petalage in some varieties, which has raised hopes of the production of a genuine "flore pleno" sort, but no one can say that sports will not appear here, as in other sections of plant life.

The Power of Intensive Culture.

Now, I think it will be conceded that the potent factor in the production of a sport is not seed-variation, but rather intensive, high culture. Under this stimulus the plant, impelled far beyond the range of its ordinary routine, responds by a redundancy, a real extravagance of growth unknown before, and breaks into new manifestation of form, color or habit. That which had for ages been bound up in the heart of the plant, as heretofore simply an innate "capability of development," becomes, under the stress of the unaccustomed environment, a "developed capability," and, if fostered and fixed, becomes a new form or strain. There is no need to seek for other causes than simply this one of intense, persistent high culture—every need of the plant supplied to the utmost and all its capacity of development urged to responsive activity, until it breaks over the bounds of its ordinary limitations in the very exuberance of its increased vitality.

There is also, I believe, a cumulative power in such high culture, gaining strength as successive seasons pass, until the time is reached when the conservative forces of plant life give way before its insistence and produce variants from its ordinary type, just as a pendulum is set widely vibrating by the repeated impact of a breath that at first would scarcely disturb its repose. A case in point is that of the Boston fern, which may be cited as an illustration. A remarkable number of variants from the type have appeared within a short time, not one of which is put forth as a seedling, but all as sports. And the fact of their origin being so nearly simultaneous indicates, as I have pointed out, that a period had been reached when the inherited vital forces of the plant, which conserve its homogeneity, gave way before the insistence, the unyielding pull, of long continued high culture. The same is true also of the sports from some strains of carnations.

Illustrations from Farm Life.

Such results are, of course, more readily attained and more to be looked for under greenhouse conditions than in the open field, but who will say that the rule is not the same for each? I remember still an instance from farm life, in the selection of ears of corn after a fixed standard, from the field, when at least nine-tenths of the amount selected as coming up to the ideal was obtained from a small portion of the field that had been most highly fertilized and most carefully cultivated. The seed from which it was produced—and hence the possibility of development—was the same for all the field, but these capabilities lay dormant except where brought out by high culture. It is a matter of record that the creation of the short-horn breed of cattle was accomplished fully as much by a system of high feeding, which amounted almost to forcing, as by any fixed method of mating. Certain it is that without this high feeding the noble breed would not have come into existence as it did.

Now, I would not depreciate the use of the forces of heredity locked up in the seed, and the mingling of these by hand-pollinating, but I feel that other factors should not be neglected. There is a tendency at the present time among growers, dazzled by achievements of others in this line, to attribute everything to the influence of seed-heredity and the supposed skill of the so-called hybridist, and to forget that high culture is at least as potent a factor in the evolution of the unattained. There are unsuspected possibilities in all forms of plant life, but, obliged in their native habitat to struggle for mere existence, with adverse conditions and often mid unfavorable surroundings, these possibilities, while not lost, still remain embryonic, and it is left to the hand of man to supply the conditions under which they may manifest themselves.

Breeding without feeding is a vain expenditure in the animal world. Is it not equally so here? The term hybridization has become almost a "name to conjure with," when in truth there is almost nothing of the sort done. There are few true hybrids in existence, and I doubt if there is a single instance in gladioli. What passes for hybridizing is simply cross-breeding, nothing more. This does not militate against its value, but should lead us to avoid placing all our reliance upon this one source of improvement, to the neglect of others.

WILL BEAR IT.

An English market growers' publication says: "Our American contemporaries report that gluts of bulbous flowers in the markets of the United States have made buyers rather cautious this season, and consequently our Dutch friends have not filled up their pocket-books with such large orders as usual. We shall be able to bear this with equanimity if it means that we shall get more favorable quotations than of late."

PRIMULA KEWENSIS.

Primula verticillata is a peculiar species producing sweet-scented flowers that are borne on long, slender stalks. The foliage, which is tomentose, somewhat resembles that of P. cashmeriana, but is longer and not quite so wide. It is not quite hardy, but it is most valuable for the greenhouse or a shaded place in the garden. The flowers are tubular, and of a clear canary color, not by any means showy, but their fragrance reminds one of the common primrose.

Primula Kewensis is a superb hybrid originated from the last-named, but differs from it considerably, the flowers being larger and of a brighter color. This is a charming plant for the greenhouse, as its free flowering habit makes it most useful and effective. The long tubular flowers, borne on stout stems, are carried well above the foliage. According to the Gardeners' Magazine, treated in the same way as P. verticillata the plants will grow strongly and bloom most profusely, giving a wealth of flowers that is sure to please the most fastidious.

The Market.

The cut flower market is dragging along about the same as the week previous in both retail and wholesale circles, and the prices seem even lower than at any time since Easter. The four wholesale markets have been loaded up last week with all kinds and all grades of stock. A few of the retailers say they had a fair week, but it was all funeral work. The downtown storemen were trying to undersell each other last week, roses selling as low as 15 cents per dozen and carnations 10 cents. These sales generally have a bad effect with the trade in other parts of the city. Then, the bad weather all of the last week had a great deal to do with bad business. Even the greenhouse men had to stop planting out, fearing frost.

man, Chicago, is in the city. He was connected with the German Theater Co. last winter.

George Waldbart says that he never did such a large plant business as this Easter. His several thousand lily plants did not fill all his orders. Cut flower trade, too, was as good as ever.

John Steidle, who is state vice-president for the S. A. F., will be on hand at the next meeting of the Florists' Club with reports on his work for the next convention. New members for the society will be referred to him.

A. G. Greiner, the cactus specialist, who claims to have the largest and most costly collection in this country and who can supply any variety known, is entertaining a large crowd of visitors each Sunday, who call to inspect his collection.

J. F. Wileox is consigning to Smith & Co. large lots of good Brides, Maids and carnations. The overstocked market since Easter caused these to suffer in price.

Trade in the plant line was not good last week, owing to the cold weather. This week promises to be better and the bedding plant men will be loaded up with business, as they have plenty of orders ahead to keep them busy all of this month. Business in this line promises to be large this year.

The Florists' Club's regular monthly meeting will take place next week, Thursday afternoon, in the new hall, 1023 Locust street. Some important discussions are to come up. The last reports of our pottery committee and of the annual outing committee will also come up. President Young is looking forward to a large attendance.

The St. Louis Horticultural Society's executive committee held its monthly meeting in the rooms of the Missouri Athletic Club April 29. The meeting was called to make preparations for the annual flower show. In connection with the Shaw prizes, a large number of other cash prizes will be offered. A committee was appointed to select a hall in which to hold the exhibition. C. C. Sanders is chairman of the executive committee. The meeting was well attended by its members. J. J. B.

COLLINSVILLE, ILL.—Henry J. Rissi expects to double his glass capacity during the coming summer. He has sold a large number of pansy plants this spring, but says that vegetable plants have not been moving lately, owing to the cold snap. He looks for a boom as soon as warm weather comes.

GREENHOUSE VEGETABLES.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Cucumbers, 25c to 75c doz.; leaf lettuce, 10c to 12½c case; watercress, 10c doz.; radishes, 15c to 30c doz. bunches; mushrooms, 35c to 60c lb.

BOSTON, May 4.—Supplies of rhubarb and asparagus grown outdoors are now arriving freely. Trade is fairly good. Cucumbers, $1.50 to $4 box; parsley, $1.50 to $1.75 box; tomatoes, 30c to 40c lb.; lettuce, 50c to $1 box; mushrooms, $2.50 4-lb. basket; mint, 75c to $1 doz.; escarole, 75c doz.; romaine, 75c to $1 doz.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Mushrooms in light receipt and steady for choice. Cucumbers plenty and dull. Lettuce in some accumulation and weaker. Radishes steady. Rhubarb dull. No. 1 cucumbers, $2.50 to $3 box; No. 2 cucumbers, $1.25 to $2 box; lettuce, 25c to 75c doz.; mushrooms, 12c to 50c lb.; radishes, $1.25 to $2 per 100 bunches; rhubarb, $1.50 to $2 per 100 bunches; mint, 25c to 50c doz. bunches.

LETTUCE IN SOLID BEDS.

Lettuce growers generally use solid beds, but in one or two vegetable forcing districts, notably the one north of Chicago, where leaf lettuce is grown, raised benches still are used. On the subject of which is the better, William Turner, of Oceanic, N. J., who is a widely experienced grower, recently had this to say in an address before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society:

"The demand for lettuce is ever increasing and, without doubt, this is one of the main winter crops. Monstrous houses have been built for the lettuce industry within the last few years, which probably twenty-five years ago would have been thought madness. Years ago lettuce was grown on raised benches. It was thought of much benefit having the plants near the glass, but certainly a mistaken idea, for those cool-blooded vegetables. In the first place, it is too hot for the roots; and, second, the plants require too much water on the benches. One great advantage in solid beds is, the crops don't require water very often. In fact, if the surface soil can be kept on the dry side, providing there is plenty of moisture below, the roots then will have a tendency to work down, giving the plants health and vigor, which is all-important for best results, but a thorough good watering just as they begin to head will help increase the size and quicken maturity. Airing plays an important part, regards success or failure with this ever-popular vegetable. The most dreaded fungus or disease is commonly called sunburn, although this is erroneous, as the disease spreads more readily in a spell of dull weather than when it is bright. One thing is certain, when a crop is badly infested it is useless; better throw it out, take the top soil out and replace with fresh or sterilize the soil, as the only safeguard to eradicate the evil.

"Probably there is no vegetable more improved by growing under glass than cauliflower, requiring the same treatment in every respect as lettuce, as regards temperature, solid beds, etc., but the soil used may be of a trifle heavier nature and it is perfectly safe to feed them considerably more than lettuce, as they are strong-rooting vegetables. Yes, even during the short days this vegetable will respond readily to liberal treatment. I would not advocate starting plants before, say, the first week in September. Sow seed according to the number of plants required. Transplant once about four inches apart, then in about three weeks transplant again where they are to mature, in rows eighteen inches apart and fifteen inches in the rows. The first crop should be ready to cut from the first part of December on. For a succession sow seed two weeks apart. Cauliflower delights in rich compost, and, without doubt, a liberal supply of hardwood ashes is a capital fertilizer for this crop. I question if there is another vegetable forced that will take as much nitrate of soda to good advantage as the cauliflower."

wheat fields. Business has been fine with Mr. Tosini ever since he made his start a few years ago, and the autumn of 1907 was the best to date. He looks forward to 1908 as marking a still greater increase in his trade, for Sioux Falls is prosperous. It exists largely on the money derived from the natural resources of the country, and the farmers are flush. They have no debts and have money in the bank.

Naturally Mr. Tosini grows a great variety of material. Besides cut flowers in variety, he grows large quantities of bedding stock and has each spring a good sale for vegetable plants. He does quite a shipping trade in cut flowers to the surrounding towns.

PACIFIC COAST.

VICTORIA, B. C.

Current Comment.

We did not expect much extra trade here at Easter, but I fancy there was a better demand for good pot plants than we have before experienced. Everyone seems to have had his share. The Fairview Greenhouses were the only establishment that had lilies in quantity. The others had a great deal of disease to contend with. At Flewin's Garden there was a loss of seventy-five per cent in this way, and the balance gave about one miserable flower each.

Wollaston & Wallace shipped a quantity of daffodils, and tulips are now coming in.

J. T. Higgins, of Fort street, has sold out. The real estate value of his holding was too tempting. The present owner has rented the premises to two young men, Messrs. Laing and Hall, who should make a success of the undertaking.

The city is being much improved. Boulevarding work has been much in evidence and more is being clamored for.

Mr. Thompson, the head gardener at Beacon Hill park, has resigned.

The city is calling for a park and boulevard superintendent, at $90 per month.

We are not enjoying this cold, long drawn out spring. Everything in the vegetable kingdom is backward.

E. A. W.

The Market.

The anticipation of the coming of the fleet has put everybody on the qui vive, and the elaborate window decorations around town have taxed the green goods men and made a heavy demand for some kinds of cheap stock. Smilax is scarce and long-stemmed asparagus has been used lavishly in its stead. Palms and ferns of good size have been disposed of in large numbers in the better classes of stores and the demand for decorative stock of all kinds is better than for a long time.

With cut flowers, however, the bottom has entirely dropped out of everything. Never have carnations or roses been cheaper than at the present writing. An effort is being made by the sweet pea growers to keep up the rates on that article, but from present indications, although the demand for that flower is good, the quotations will be low next week. Carnations can be had in any variety and quantity at from 50 cents per hundred upwards. The continued warm weather of last week brought in an avalanche of stock and the roses suffered as well. There is no surplus of Beauty roses, but the list ends here, GERANIUMS, 2½-inch pots, all kinds, $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

SCOTTII FERNS, 2½-inch pots, $3.00 per 100.
CARNATION CUTTINGS, leading kinds, $2.00 and $3.00 per 100.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS, $1.50 and $2.00 per 100.

and it might also be added that there is no particular demand, either.

What the effect of the visit of the fleet next week will have on the general condition of trade, aside from the decorative standpoint, is hard to tell, as the dealers seem quite divided on that subject. Funeral orders have been fairly heavy, and country orders have occupied quite a deal of consideration in some quarters.

Over in Oakland there has been a fair amount of business during the last few weeks and the anticipation of the coming of the fleet has much the same effect as in San Francisco. Generally speaking, however, trade is less than it was a year ago, but the next few days may make the month of May a banner one.

Various Notes.

The Oakland Floral Co. has entirely reconstructed its building on Seventh street, Oakland, giving much larger and more agreeable quarters.

Japanese nurserymen at Hayward report the disappearance of 50,000 young tomato plants on the night of April 28. There has been a heavy demand for replanting, owing to the continuous drought in that neighborhood, and the indications are that the thieves drove up to the tomato frames in a wagon and helped themselves.

A regular meeting of the Society Hortensia was held in Alameda on Saturday evening last.

The plant collection belonging to the Delger estate, of Oakland will be offered for sale during next month. Henry Witt is in charge of the grounds.

E. A. Briggs will leave on a two months' eastern trip within the next few days.

ASCLEPIAS DOUGLASI.

This plant is seldom seen in gardens, yet its noble appearance certainly renders it a valuable subject for introduction into the herbaceous border, the English gardening magazines considering it well worthy of culture for its foliage alone. It will often exceed six feet in height, and its entire leaves are, in strong plants, a foot in length and four and a half inches in breadth. A well-grown specimen is an extremely handsome object. Its flowers are not to be compared for effectiveness to those of Asclepias tuberosa, whose flat heads of brilliant orange-scarlet blossoms form glowing spots of color in the border, but they have a quiet charm of their own.

It blooms in the month of August, bearing numerous rounded heads of small blossoms, some of the flower clusters having a circumference of close on twelve inches. The corollas, which are less than half an inch across, are of a yellowish tint, and the reflexed petals are of a dull reddish hue, the flower heads appearing at a little distance to be flesh-pink in color. About 200 blooms are contained in a single flower head. The blossoms are perfumed, and attract innumerable bumble-bees and other insects, which soon become stupefied by the nectar and remain inert on the heads of blooms. It is a native of western America, and is hardy. It is tenacious of life, and if a plant is lifted shoots will be continually springing up from portions of the roots that were left behind when the specimen was shifted.

ENCLOSED you will find $1, for which you will please renew my subscription to the REVIEW for one year. We might as well be without the plants as be without the REVIEW.—HAROLD E. KREBS, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

PEORIA, ILL.—For the first time in nine years the venerable James Cole, aged 87, pioneer florist of the state of Illinois, visited the business section of town Friday afternoon, April 24. The occasion for the journey was the Shriner parade, which was of absorbing interest to Mr. Cole, owing to the fact that James Nelson Cole, Jr., aged 22, conceded to be the youngest thirty-second degree Mason in the world, was in the parade as a member of the Mohammed Temple patrol.

DAYTON, OHIO.

State of Trade.

Perhaps the somewhat slow business of last week was due to the unfavorable weather, which was nothing but continual rain every day, and perhaps what little business there was, was due to the limited number of funeral and wedding orders.

The demand for stock was somewhat spasmodic; one day business would be extremely quiet and the next day it would brighten up. Business took a gradual drop after Easter and prices also came down with it.

Carnations are not any too plentiful, but there is a good crop of roses, which come in nicely for the spring weddings. Longiflorums and callas move a little more rapidly than last week, and the market is not so crowded with them.

There is an exceptionally good call for Boston ferns and bedding plants of every description are selling better every day.

There is a good call for smilax, plumosus, Sprengerii and all greens in general, which are used extensively for decorations.

Various Notes.

Owing to the inclement weather, the Dayton Florists' Club was obliged to postpone its regular monthly business meeting, which was to have been held at Mrs. Young's store May 4.

Up to last week our florists were busy planting carnations in the field, but due to the present rainy weather, this work has had to be postponed until brighter days.

The Miami Floral Co. is cutting a fine crop of Brides and Maids, for which it finds immediate sale.

The engagement of Miss Ruth Matthews, daughter of one of Dayton's florists, has recently been announced. Miss Matthews is to be married in June.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYRIMEN.

Pres., J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; Vice-Pres., G. M. Hobbs, Bridgeport, Ind.; Sec'y, Geo. O. Seager, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. The 33d annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, June 10 to 12, 1908.

THE season in Minnesota and the Dakotas is fully a month earlier than last year.

W. VAN KLEEF, JR., of W. Van Kleef & Sons, nurserymen at Boskoop, Holland, visited Chicago this week.

THE nurserymen of the north are being favored by an unusually long season, where the trade in the south was cut off by early summer.

C. R. BURR & Co., Manchester, Conn., who recently leased the Pickles farm at Buckland, are rapidly developing the farm into an up-to-date nursery.

THIS has been one of the largest seasons with the nurseries at West Chester, Pa. Labor, also, has been more abundant than usual in the spring rush.

A. L. ROSE, landscape architect, who has had ten years' experience in that profession in and about Boston, has recently removed to Minneapolis, being identified with the landscape department of the Hoyt Nursery Co.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin entitled "Self-Boiled Lime-Sulphur Mixture as a Promising Fungicide," which will be of interest to nurserymen, especially those whose interests are with the fruit growers.

SHRUB JOTTINGS.

Rhododendron Dahuricum is the earliest blooming of this attractive family, coming into flower in the Arnold Arboretum, Boston, this year, the first week in April. The violet purplish flowers may be less showy than those of many other shrubs, but anything blooming so early is welcome. The foliage is deciduous and by many people this is mistaken for an azalea. In fact, it was formerly classed as such. R. mucronulatum is a form of R. Dahuricum. Its foliage takes on a brilliant hue in the fall. These rhododendrons are natives of Siberia, Kamchatka and northern China.

Magnolia stellata has never flowered better than this season. It was at its best in the vicinity of Boston about April 28. All the magnolias in replanting need lifting with good balls and spring is the best season for this operation. Four years ago several plants of M. stellata were moved in October, and all did well; however, with some winter protection.

Spiraea Thunbergii is the earliest of the family to bloom, being in full flower in eastern Massachusetts April 30, this year. It is a low-growing shrub, rarely exceeding four feet in height. Its delicate, drooping, yellowish-green foliage takes on beautiful autumnal tints. This is one of the easiest of all shrubs to grow and a well-rounded specimen in flower is a beautiful object.

Cerasus Japonica rosea pendula, the lovely Japanese pink weeping cherry, is a striking picture in southern New England at present. During severe winters the flower buds are sometimes killed, but at present every branch is literally smothered with these light rose-colored blossoms. There could be no finer low-growing tree for a lawn specimen. Even when not in bloom the plants are attractive, making one of the best of weeping trees.

PRIVET FOR HEDGES.

Will you please tell me how to treat California privet from the start until it makes a good hedge? I have just planted a half carload of them and they had been on the road for some fifteen to twenty days. They are 3½-foot to 4-foot bushy stock, three times transplanted.

The roots were quite dry. We at once watered them and they soon looked well. I made a trench twenty inches deep and fourteen inches wide. I put about three inches of cow manure at the bottom, and on this about two inches of soil. Then I planted the hedges, two rows, one on each side of this 14-inch trench. Then I threw in the best soil from the top; this made the trench about half full. Then I filled it with water. After the water had disappeared I put in half cow manure and soil.

These hedges were planted one foot apart in the row and with fourteen inches between the rows. They were planted eight inches deeper than they were formerly. That put the main branches below the ground at the joint. Was this not well, so as to get them to root there and grow quickly from the bottom? Now, after planting them, is it not best to wait until they start to grow and until the ground is more packed down, before I cut them off evenly? The hedges now stand out of the ground from a foot and a half to two feet. How long shall I cut them, and when? How can they best be cut straight? Is it not wise to put on them about eight inches of cow manure late in the fall, so as to keep them in good condition during the alternate cold and sunshine in the winter time?

How long will it take for the above to start to grow? They were planted in the middle of April. WESTON.

NEW ROSE

MRS. JARDINE

A FREE, STRONG GROWTH, WITH GOOD FOLIAGE. A VARIETY THAT CAN BE EASILY GROWN. LARGE FLOWERS ON LONG STEMS. DELICIOUS FRAGRANCE. DISTINCT, PLEASING COLOR THAT WILL SELL AT SIGHT. A ROSE THAT WILL HOLD ITS COLOR IN THE DULL DAYS OF DECEMBER AND JANUARY.

MRS. JARDINE has all these characteristics, and, in addition, is of so perfect a form that it can be used either in the bud or half expanded flower. The color is a bright rosy pink, shading in the outer petals to salmon pink, and, even in January, when Bridesmaids and Killarney lose their color, Mrs. Jardine is as bright as in October or March.

We extend a cordial invitation to everyone interested in this New Rose to visit our Nurseries and see it growing.

MRS. JARDINE has been awarded Two Silver Medals, numerous Certificates, and successfully stood the best test which any novelty can possibly have in passing unanimously, in December, the Award Committee of the New York Florists' Club after an exhaustive examination of the growing plants, with a score of 92 points.

Strong Plants on own roots, from 2½-inch pots, $6.00 per doz.; $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1000; 5000 for $1125.00; 10,000 for $2125.00.

he obtained was bushy stock. That being the case, it would seem that he made a mistake in planting them so deep that a considerable portion of the branches was buried. It would, I think, have been much more satisfactory had he planted them only two inches lower than they were formerly. Had the plants been bare and lanky, there might be some excuse for planting them so deep, but putting nice, bushy plants underground appears a needless sacrifice.

Privet, without question, likes rich and somewhat moist soil; but other considerations compel us to treat the plants somewhat stingily, the principal reason being that when they make growth of moderate size it is likely to ripen or mature earlier and more thoroughly than growth that is rank, which is usually the result of planting in rich and heavily manured soils, and it goes without saying that matured wood is less liable to winter killing than soft, half ripened wood.

Privet planted in a single row, with a space of ten inches to fourteen inches between the plants, makes a nice hedge; but if it seems desirable to have something more in the nature of a fence, with corresponding power of resistance, a double row will perhaps fill the bill more fully. When planting the privet in a double row, it should be done so that the plants in one row are, though running parallel, planted opposite the vacant spaces of the other row. If the soil is poor, some manure should, of course, be added, but not to the extent practiced by the correspondent.

Even if the roots of the privet appeared dry at the time they were received, if they were kept covered, there does not appear to be any reason why their vitality should be impaired in so short a time at that season.

The proper time to cut back the hard wood of privet, as of almost everything else, is when that wood is as nearly dormant as it ever is. Then, in case the plants are lanky and there is a desire to cause them to break out from the bottom, they should be cut back before they break out in leaf early in spring, or late in fall or in winter. A growing hedge should be clipped at least twice a year—in the latter part of June and again in August or September.

All that is needed in evening a newly planted hedge is to take the shears and clip off as much as is necessary to make it so. A garden line fixed to sticks stuck in the ground may be of assistance in the work, but a competent man would not be seen having recourse to such help.

A mulch of loose manure is undoubtedly of benefit to privet in the winter, both in the nutriment it furnishes and the protection it affords from severe freezing and thawing.

DAVID MCINTOSH.

PROGRESS AT AURORA.

A deal was consummated at Aurora, Ill., May 1, by which the Aurora Nursery Co. purchased the twenty-one acres of land at the corner of Montgomery and Garfield avenues, now occupied by it, from H. H. Evans. The consideration is given as $10,000. In addition to the purchase of the twenty-one acres, the company has leased seventeen acres adjoining the property on the east.

Plans are now in hand for rearranging the grounds and the erection of a number of buildings. An office building and tool sheds have already been completed, and work will start soon on a packing shed 60x100 feet, two large greenhouses and three storage cellars. Men are now at work installing a sewerage system. The capital stock of the company was recently increased, and this year has proven to be a most prosperous one.

CARNATION CUTTINGS

We are in unusually good position to supply exceptionally well-rooted, healthy stock. We have such a large quantity of flowering plants that we propagate only from heel cuttings from flowering shoots. Our cuttings are rooted in light, sunny, airy houses, and we are sure will satisfy the most critical buyer.

A prominent carnation grower writes: "You seem to be the only firm in the business that knows how to pack stock and have it reach the buyer in good condition, and I have always found your cuttings cheaper than the same varieties from others at much lower figures."

While our prices may not always be the cheapest, we certainly can give, quality considered, as good value as, if not better than, is obtainable anywhere.

We offer also BEACON and RED CHIEF, from sand, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000. From soil, $7.50 per 100; $60.00 per 1000. Also VICTORY, MELODY, WHITE PERFECTION, from sand, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. From soil, $6.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000. VARIEGATED LAWSON, WHITE LAWSON and RED LAWSON, from sand, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. From soil, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. We can also supply WINONA and AFTERGLOW, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Buyers will find transplanted stock offered from soil well worth the difference in price.

F. R. PIERSON CO., Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. Y.

WINSOR, which we introduced last year, has proved to be the finest novelty introduced in years. We think it is the most profitable variety grown today, considering its fine color, splendid keeping qualities, and productiveness. When properly grown, it leaves little to be desired, and almost everyone succeeds with it.

WHITE ENCHANTRESS, the best all-carnation on account of its large size, long stem, earliness, and productiveness. Our White Enchantress, exhibited at the Carnation Convention at Washington, was the only White Enchantress exhibited that received an award.

Strong rooted cuttings, now ready for delivery, from sand, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000. From soil, $7.50 per 100; $60.00 per 1000.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

There has been only a slight improvement in business. The weather has been about as bad as could be possible. Cold, wind, rain and snow have alternated nearly all the week and stock has been shortened considerably, but there is plenty still coming in.

Most of the growers have their carnations out and felt some alarm when, with a couple of inches of snow, a cold rain set in and the thermometer dropped to the freezing point. However, no bad results are noticeable and the plants look well. Of course, the effect may show later in stunted growth. The fruit buds, however, seem all right and early cherries are about as big as a pea.

Among the retailers, things look quiet, with no rush or excitement anywhere along the line, although one does not hear any complaints. The street men were the worst off, the weather being against them.

Various Notes.

That there is still money in this city is evidenced by the fact that the grand opera was crowded all the week, with tickets selling at $3 to $6, and one of our local retailers, who advertises, sold 20,000 roses Saturday at three dozen for $1. From this it looks as if the trade should keep awake and get what is coming to them.

The Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. has just finished its spring housecleaning and looks very nice in the new spring dress. Hoo-Hoo.

AUSTIN, TEXAS.

Olaf Olson is building two more carnation houses for the coming season.

Harry West, the amiable treasurer of the Park Floral Co., for a long time a sufferer from asthma, has recovered, so that he is now fat and happy.

Sweet peas are plentiful and outdoor grown stuff is going to waste. High winds are damaging outdoor roses.

PHILADELPHIA LACE FERN

$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

(5% off, cash with order)

These are good, strong plants that were potted November and December last.

We need the room and must move them.

Also a fine lot of 6½-inch pots at 75c each, 25 or more at 70c each.

This is the most talked about fern of the lot and has been awarded a great many honors, including a medal by the Royal Horticultural Society of London, and the "Kift Cup," by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, for the most meritorious new plant introduced in 1907.

Equally as good as green for cut flowers or pot culture.

The stock here offered is in superb condition.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Trade conditions the last week have been slow, but there has been no over-supply of stock, as the cold weather has put a decided crimp in the cut of all flowers.

The quality of stock received is of the best, for this time of the year, especially in roses, which are up to the mid-winter average. Carnations have also improved in quality and are coming in finely. Lilies are being received in heavy shipments, but there is practically no demand for them.

Sweet peas are in good demand and are cleaned up each day. violets have seen their day; there will be no more eastern doubles this season.

Various Notes.

C. A. Bramley, of Superior avenue, has been handling large quantities of Boston ferns in small pots, buying in lots of 1,000 and more.

The F. R. Williams Co. is sending in a fine cut of valley these days and it is selling well.

The Cleveland Cut Flower Co. is handling some fine peonies from the south. They are in good demand.

It is with regret that we report the death of Mr. Williams, father of the Williams brothers, Lorain, O.

Smilax in this locality is scarce, it being almost impossible to obtain enough to fill orders.

F. Schueren has been sending in a fine cut of single daffodils, which are good for outside grown stock.

C. B. Knuth, of St. Clair avenue, has a large quantity of geraniums for Decoration day trade. B.

GREEN BAY, WIS.—Charles De Clerc has opened a flower store at 107 North Adams street.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Mark Aitken grew about 25,000 lily blooms from giganteum bulbs, imported from Japan, for this year's Easter trade, and among them appears one perfect flower which is a decided novelty, in that it has ten petals instead of the usual six, two pistils instead of one, and twelve stamens instead of six. Linwood Morgan, who has charge of Mr. Aitken's greenhouses on Osgood street, states that in all his long experience he has never before seen a perfect double lily bloom of this sort.

BALTIMORE.

General Conditions.

We are having cold weather for this time of the year. The temperature has gone down to 34 degrees on several mornings and was kept from going lower only by a strong wind, which has been playing havoc with the flowers on the stands in the market. There is little planting going on, except carnations, which are nearly all planted. There will not be as many planted this season as there were last. Carnations were overdone this season and the returns have been poor, for a great many of the growers. There have been a great many bedding plants grown this year and the street peddlers are going from door to door with them and seem to be doing well.

The park superintendents have started their men planting the squares and parks with geraniums and cannas, of which they grow a great many. Each superintendent has to produce enough stock for his district.

Various Notes.

Prof. Corbett, of Washington, gave an interesting talk on soils and their various uses to a large gathering of members at the last meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at its rooms in the Baltimore Florists' Exchange building. F. C. Baur exhibited one of the finest vases of valley that has ever been seen here. It contained twenty-five spikes and every one had from twenty-two to twenty-four bells and measured eight inches from the first bell to the top bell. It created quite a sensation. Mr. Baur has been improving his valley for the last four years and has had excellent success. He also grows a great many seedling lilies and has a whole house planted with them. There is not one that has any sign of disease. He planted a large tract with them last fall and every one has come up and is about six inches tall. He had a fine collection of amaryllis exhibited also. John Cook exhibited two vases of his new rose, My Maryland, and another one that has not been named. It is a very pretty shade of pink and surely will make a hit when it is exhibited this fall. Q.

WHITMAN, MASS.—Maurice L. Belcher is a voluntary petitioner in bankruptcy, with liabilities amounting to $967 and assets valued at $40.

MOONVINES

Watch and be careful you don't buy Morning Glories for Moonvines

We grow only the best varieties, hybrid, or Ipomoea Noctiflora, for which we have had, for the past 20 years, a world-wide reputation. We ship every season, May and June, 20,000 to 25,000 plants into every state and territory in America, and in Cuba and Mexico. This moonvine is much earlier than any other variety in existence; blooms freely, with very fragrant pure white waxy flowers, and as large as a saucer. Price, 4-in. pots, nicely staked up, 30 to 36 inches high, $12.00 per 100; 2½-in. pots, $5.00 per 100.

Kentia Belmoreana, 5½-in. pots, 20 to 25 inches high, 40c to 50c; 4-in. pots, 20 inches high, 35c. Belmoreana or Forsteriana, just arrived from Europe, 6-in., $1.00 each.

Araucaria Excelsa Glauca, spring of 1907 importation. Only specimen plants left. 7-in. pots, 6 years old, 5 tiers, 25 to 30, 35 to 40 inches high, same in width, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00 to $4.00 each.

A. Compacta Robusta, 35 to 40 inches high, 5 tiers, $2.00 to $3.00 each.

Just arrived, per steamer, May 1, 5000 Araucaria Excelsa plants with 3 tiers, 8 to 10 inches, 40c; 10, 12, 14 inches at 50c; larger plants 60c to 75c.

Boston, Scottii and Whitmani ferns, large plants from 2½-in. pots, ready for 4-in., $7.00 per 100.

Rose bushes, imported from Holland last fall, such as Paul Neyron, Mrs. John Laing, Magna Charta, etc., in 6-in. pots, 3 feet high, 30c, 35c, 40c. Baby Ramblers, 5½-in. pots, 30c and 35c.

Clematis Jackmani, the best variety of all clematis, 3 feet high, 6-in. pots, 35c and 40c each.

HYBRID TEA ROSE KILLARNEY

Dreer's Offer of Select Roses

STRONG TWO-YEAR-OLD PLANTS in 5 and 6-inch pots, specially prepared for outdoor planting.

The Roses which we here offer are field-grown stock, either American grown or plants that have been imported from England and Ireland. We handle no Holland grown Roses.

These plants are all potted up during December and January, and were stored in cold houses; they are now growing freely and are in prime condition to sell to your retail trade; all are in 5 and 6-inch pots, according to variety.

Hybrid Perpetual, Moss and other Hardy Roses. Strong two-year-old Plants, nearly all in 6-inch pots.

OWENSBORO, KY.

The Nanz Floral Co. has announced that it will give away to the owners of corner lots bedding plants to go in the triangle at corners between the sidewalk and the curb. These plants will be given to any owner of a corner lot, anywhere in the city, who will call for them and agree to care for them after they are planted. Before a lot owner can secure the flowers it will be necessary to secure an order from Mayor O'Bryan. The idea of the Nanz Floral Co. is to aid in the work undertaken by the civic improvement committee of the Woman's Club. There is usually little grass growing in the triangle at corners and the planting of flowers in such places will go far toward beautifying the streets.

ORANGE, N. J.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held at its rooms May 1. The floral display included exhibits from Lager & Hurrell, of Summit; Thomas Jones, of Short Hills, and Joseph A. Manda, of West Orange, besides the usual complement from near-by estates.

The address of the evening was by J. B. Davis, on "Cartography Applied to Landscape Work," illustrated by many maps and pictures from the speaker's collection.

It was decided by the society to have a summer recess. J. B. DAVIS.

HOOSICK FALLS, N. Y.—Arthur O. Curtice has purchased land at the corner of Wilder avenue and Snow street, on which he will build greenhouses.

WASHINGTON.

Capital City Notes.

Business was much better than last week. Funeral work and dinners were more numerous. Stock is plentiful. Window-boxes are making their appearance everywhere. Blackistone has some, made of cedar bark with a mixture of plants, advertised at $2.50 each. J. H. Small & Sons have just completed the boxes at the New Willard hotel. These boxes make the best showing in the downtown district. John Robison is a busy man, and also Willie Kimmel, the landscape artist.

Geo. Shaffer has about completed arrangements to buy the Shellhorn greenhouses and market stand. He will reside on the place, and his cousin, Mr. Shaffer, the grower from Alexandria, will have charge of the houses.

F. H. Kramer reports a good season. His funeral work has been unusually heavy.

Thomas & Sly in the market report business good since Easter.

The Gude Bros. have a fine display of Spanish iris.

The Washington Florists Co. is cutting some good Spanish iris. Mr. Fisher, in charge of the Fourteenth street store, has left for the season.

A bill to come up in the house of representatives this week to close all business places on Sunday is interesting to some of the local florists. All the leading stores are in favor of it, but some of the nosegay florists object. As all must close if it becomes a law, no one will be the loser. It will only help to increase the Saturday sales and help the poor devils behind the guns to give thanks to their Creator for a day of rest. O. O.

WILLIMANTIC, CONN.—The greenhouses at the Connecticut Agricultural College are now practically completed and are not only modern in construction, but quite handsome in appearance. Adjoining the greenhouses is a two-story building, the second story of which will be occupied by the florist and his family, while the space on the first floor will be used as a work-room and the basement will be used as a boiler-room. The foundations of the horticultural buildings, near-by, are nearly finished.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business last week was just about as poor as you can imagine it. There was scarcely anything doing and the stock piled up day after day until the wholesale houses were well crowded. On Saturday some demand began to be felt and what stock was fit was closed out at a low price; the balance found its way into the dump, and in that manner the wholesale houses were cleaned out.

Sunday's cut sold out in good order and Monday also saw some fairly good business, with the market well cleared out, especially in carnations. It begins to look as if a turn for the better had arrived, but we have had our hopes bolstered up so many times recently by like indications, only to have them shattered, that we are in no hurry to make cheerful predictions. Still, when one takes into consideration the bad growing weather we have been having recently, it would look as if we were right in thinking that there is going to be a shortage for a week or so at least, and during that time we will be able to get prices back to somewhere near what they ought to be. The next few days will tell the story, and with a continuation of the dark, cloudy and chilly weather, we can look for a continued shortage all along the line.

Various Notes.

April 28 we had quite a snow storm and the temperature went to about 28 degrees. Little damage is reported, however. Perhaps cherries and early strawberries will be pretty well used up, but it is doubtful if anything else is hurt.

Ben George is receiving congratulations. It is a 10½-pound girl, and it arrived May 2. This young lady will make the eighth addition to Mr. George's family, there being three girls and five boys.

E. G. Gillett is handling some fine outdoor valley and it is coming in by the thousand. It sells fairly well, but at a low price.

Wm. Murphy is handling a large number of blooming and vegetable plants at his Main street store. He has them in many varieties and reports a good demand.

Ernst Mack, of Price Hill, is busy superintending the erection of a new home. It will be completed soon. He then intends to tear down his old home.

Myer Heller was a visitor, and B. F. Hensley, accompanied by his wife, spent several days visiting friends here.

—1908—

ROSEA GIGANTEA. This beautiful variety has extra large flowers, which are borne in such abundance that the mass of color on each plant is amazing. Single petals are 2½ inches across; color, a deep, rich rose, almost a coral carmine. Plants make a vigorous growth, producing unusually fine clumps of green foliage. Height, 4 feet. (A great favorite with visitors to our trial grounds.) Strong plants, $2.00 each, prepaid; $18.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

GLADIO-FLORA. Remarkable for the unusual shape of the flowers, which look like large Gladioli. Petals are not long, but short and rounded and so wide they overlap each other, thus giving a very attractive appearance to the flowers. Color is crimson, changing to carmine rose with an uneven edge of gold to each petal. Height, 3½ feet. Price, strong plants, $2.00 each, prepaid; $18.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

METEOR. Meteor is a vigorous grower with healthy green foliage. It is highly valued because of its magnificent flowers, fully four inches across, and abundance of bloom. Color is a deep crimson; very rich; each plant usually throws up five to six trusses of buds, which continue blooming luxuriantly all summer through. Price, plants or dormant roots, 75c each, postpaid; $6.00 per doz. by express, not prepaid.

WILLIAM SAUNDERS—(1907). The flowers are large, of splendid form and are borne very freely in immense clusters. The color is a deep, rich, shining scarlet, lightly dappled with crimson. Foliage is a rich bronze. Height, 3½ to 4 feet. We believe that Wm. Saunders is decidedly the most perfect canna of this type that has been introduced. Those who tried Wm. Saunders in 1907 say it cannot be excelled. We offer plants only: 60c ea. postpaid; $5.00 per doz.; $35.00 per 100 by express, not prepaid.

BUFFALO.*State of Business.

The warm weather was suddenly broken by a terrific snow storm, which was followed by rain. It has interfered greatly with the landscape men, who are especially busy now. Business in the cut flower department has been rather quiet, with not any too much stock. Bulb stock is nearly over, and with a few warm days we will see no more of it.

Various Notes.

The Society for Beautifying Buffalo has created a position in Buffalo for a landscape man, or rather an expert on trees. The position calls for a man to care for all trees in Buffalo which are on the city property. John F. Cowell has been named for the position, but the board does not feel that it can get another man for the position Mr. Cowell now holds and for this reason he may not be able to take the position first mentioned. There are several men mentioned in the city who are after the position, but it has not been officially announced who has the job.

Walter Mott called on the trade May 4 in the interests of Arthur T. Bodding-ton.

Joseph H. Rebstock, who for many years had a store on Main street, has given up the same and will conduct the business at his greenhouses on Elmwood avenue. Mr. Rebstock has a well established business in the residence section and will save the high rent of the downtown district.

HUNT'S GUARANTEED FERTILIZERS

OUR FERTILIZERS ARE PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR FLORISTS' USE and are analyzed by an expert chemist to see that they are free from all acids. You can depend upon their being just what you want, AND SAFE. You ought to have these on hand at all times, ready for use.

PURE BONE MEAL

The brand we are selling has no superior. It is an absolutely uniform grade of pure bone, guaranteed free from acids, and is sold at as low rates as many inferior brands, which cannot be used with safety in greenhouse work.

Guaranteed Analysis. Per ct.
Ammonia ..... 4 to 5
Phosphoric acid ..... 23 to 26
Equal to bone phosphate..... 50 to 60
12 per cent immediately available and soluble in water.

Price

100 lb. bag..... 2.00
200 lb. bag..... 3.50
1000 lbs., ½ ton..... 15.00

HUNT'S PURE BONE FLOUR

This is identical with our Pure Bone Meal, except it is ground to a very fine dust or flour, making it especially valuable for use in liquid form or for mixing with other fertilizers when quick action is required.

17 per cent immediately available and soluble in water.

Price

50 lb. bag.....$ 1.35      500 lb. bag.....$ 9.00
100 lb. bag..... 2.50      1000 lbs., ½ ton..... 16.00

BLOOD AND BONE

Preferred by many of our best and largest growers owing to its great percentage of ammonia and available phosphate, which makes it quick acting. It is a mixture of pure tankage or blood and the best grade of Bone Meal in proportions to stimulate root action and bring out the best color in the blooms.

Guaranteed Analysis

Ammonia ..... 6½ to 7½      Per cent
Bone phosphate ..... 25 to 35

Price

50 lb. bag.....$ 1.35      500 lb. bag.....$ 9.00

PULVERIZED SHEEP MANURE

One of the most effective of fertilizers and largely used by the best growers, both as a top dressing and in the manure tanks. The raw material for Hunt's Sheep Manure is the droppings taken from solid floor sheep corrals. Ordinary manures are largely shoveled up from the ground and contain a large proportion of soil for which you pay, but from which you get nothing except possibly weed seed. A trial order will convince the most skeptical of the superiority of our brand.

Guaranteed Analysis. Per ct.

Ammonia ..... 3¼ to 4
Available phos. acid ..... 1½ to 2
Actual potash..... 1¾ to 2½

NEW ALBANY, IND.

A. Rasmussen will this season add nine large greenhouses to his already extensive establishment on Vincennes street, which is now the largest in this section of the country, covering nearly two acres. Mr. Rasmussen embarked in business for himself about eleven years ago, with four small greenhouses. Since then his business has steadily grown, requiring more room than he had at his former location, and he secured the large tract of land on Vincennes street, where he has been located for several years.

This season he will grow about 15,000 rose plants, 20,000 carnations, 2,000 American Beauties, 2,000 violets and numerous other cut flowers and will not handle bedding plants, such as geraniums, cannas, verbenas, hardy roses, etc., devoting his entire attention to the production of cut flowers and to retail cut flower work.

Mr. Rasmussen wholesales large quantities of cut flowers and supplies many of the stores in Louisville. He also ships largely to the smaller towns in southern Indiana and Kentucky and the increase in his greenhouses will give him the facilities for a considerable increase in this department next season.

DETROIT.

There is no danger of a stringency of bedding stuff this season, as all the florists are well stocked up. Some exceptionally fine geraniums can be seen, such as should be sold for at least two for 25 cents.

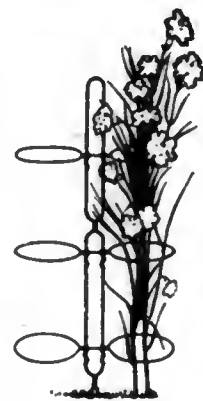

There is little bulbous stock left and there seems to be no complaint, either, on the part of the florists. The two old standbys, carnations and roses, will have their way again for some time.

Green of all kinds is plentiful, smilax especially so.

Greenhouse Heating.

THERE is nothing more important in the management of greenhouses than properly installed heating apparatus. The REVIEW will be pleased to answer any inquiries with regard to the installation of boilers and piping.

TO MAKE A RUST JOINT.

Please tell me how to make a rust joint with 4-inch iron pipe, with which my greenhouse is equipped, without the use of sal ammoniac. It seems to me that sometime in the past the REVIEW gave instructions as to the making of such a joint, but as I have not kept a file of the papers, I would be thankful if you would repeat the information.

W. C. H.

A paste sometimes employed for the purpose is composed as follows: Soft coal ashes, two parts; common salt, one part; add water enough to make a paste and apply at once. Another is: Iron filings, four parts; pipe clay, two parts; powdered potsherds, eleven parts; make into a paste with strong brine.

L. C. C.

PAINTED OR GALVANIZED PIPE.

Can heating pipes in the greenhouses be painted to keep them from rusting, and what do you consider the best preparation for this purpose, steam heat being used? Do you consider the use of galvanized pipe an advantage? H.

As a general proposition, it is not desirable to paint or otherwise coat radiation pipes for greenhouses. The rough surface of the rusty pipe increases its efficiency as a heating medium. Galvanizing acts the same as coating with paint and renders the pipe less efficient. Sometimes main risers or flow pipes are painted with asphaltum varnish or even covered with asbestos, but in all cases such pipes are not considered as part of the radiation, but merely as conveyors.

L. C. C.

A. J. Hilton, of Amsterdam, N. Y., finds that his plant is not large enough to accommodate increasing business and will add during the coming season.

At the swell wedding of Miss Gebble to Mr. Bellinger, in St. Johnsville, N. Y., last week, the decorations were described in the local press as surpassing anything yet attempted, showing "exquisite taste, which is equally removed from meanness and tawdry profusion." J. C. Hatcher was the fortunate decorator.

William Mathews, of Utica, N. Y., has been kept indoors with a heavy cold, caught during the Easter rush, and his son, Harry, is having a strenuous time to keep up with the heavy call for funeral work.

Frank Baker, of Utica, is compelled to have office hours, since the heavy calls made upon his time in his aldermanic capacity: Drummers, 6 to 7:30 a. m.; old friends, 8 to 11 p. m.

J. C. Spencer, of Utica, is rustivating at Rome, N. Y., where he assisted E. J. Byam during the Easter rush. Mr. Spencer is an ardent follower of Izaak Walton; the gurgling brook has a peculiar charm for him. Mr. Byam says he will have to give up and go south. He has a capital plant and lucrative business for a hustler with a little of the necessary.

A. Stoeckle, of Watertown, N. Y., finds he made a good move by opening an up-to-date store downtown, and will have to increase his glass area to accommodate increasing business.

C. Beckstedt, of Oswego, N. Y., has no fault to find with the season's business, excepting that Easter, coming so late, crowds stock intended for outside planting. He has a well grown batch of the new lobelia.

P. J. Campbell, of Oswego, has added a seed branch to his business and is looking around for more room. He expects to locate on an island near-by, to be approached by a rustic bridge.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The cut flower trade was good last week. Funeral work is plentiful, with a good supply of flowers to work from. Carnations retail at 50 cents per dozen, and roses at $1.50 per dozen. Tulips and daffodils and other bulbous flowers sell at 50 cents per dozen retail. Sweet peas of good quality are now coming in. They sell at 75 cents and $1 per hundred retail. Large quantities of pansies and daisies are now being offered. The price they bring is from 25 to 35 and 50 cents per dozen.

James Cleary, on Pleasant street, had a big showing of pansies and forget-me-nots in baskets May 2. Mr. Cleary's palms were damaged at Easter to the extent of $100 or more, through renting them out.

Davenport & Son are making a big showing of bedding plants at their store on Purchase street.

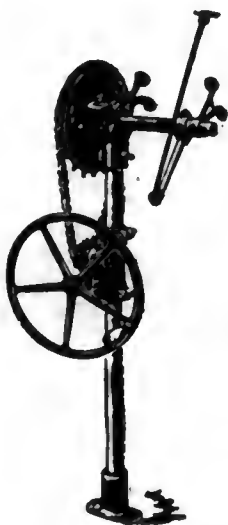

William P. Pierce has an attractive window at all times. This store handles a choice line of cut flowers and plants.

Stock for Memorial day is coming along finely. From present indications outdoor flowers will be much in evidence this year. W. L.

HARTFORD, CONN.

Peter Zeuger, the city gardener, says that the work of planting out the bedding stock in the parks is unusually well advanced this season, owing partly to the earliness of the spring. In this division of the park work there have been great improvement and development recently, in spite of serious obstacles. While the greenhouse space has not been enlarged, the park department is now growing fully three times as many plants for bedding as it was six years ago, the number this year being not far from 150,000. This increased number is possible through improved methods in handling the plants in the available space. A way to gain more space for hotbeds is being tried at Elizabeth park. This is to place coldframes on the piles of manure as fast as the latter is dumped in the rear of the greenhouses.

Among the new roses that will be tried in the parks this season are Christine Wright and Tausendschon.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held Friday evening, April 24, with President Angus in the chair. Three nominations for membership were received. James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and William Brown, Ossining, N. Y., were elected active members of the society.

We are gratified to say that donations to our prize fund are still coming; and, to date, five silver cups have been offered for the November exhibition.

The James W. Smith prize for the best two flowering plants was won by Thomas Aitchinson, gardener to Henry Siegel, Mamaroneck, N. Y., with a large plant of pelargonium in bloom, and calceolaria. Both were well grown specimens.

The feature of the evening was the talk on "Water Gardens," given by Charles H. Tibbits. Mr. Tibbits is connected with the park department of White Plains, N. Y., and has had very satisfactory results with aquatic plants. He kept his hearers listening with pleasure to his remarks.

The subject for next meeting will be "Shrubs and Hardy Perennials."

A LARGE DESIGN.

The wreath shown here was made by the Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O., for the funeral of John Joyce, president of the Green-Joyce Co., sent by the employees of that firm.

The size of the wreath was six feet, and it contained 400 white roses, 300 lily of the valley, 200 American Beauties and 1,000 double violets, with Whitmani fern fronds and maidenhair around the edge, with a large cluster of sago palm leaves.

The design was made by Mr. Gibson, of the Livingston Seed Co., and was one of the most artistic large designs ever made in Columbus. The photograph did not do the design justice, owing to the dark weather. The selling price of the design was $200.

FUNERAL WORK.

Notes on Set Pieces.

So much has been written about sprays, wreaths, casket covers, etc., that it seems to me some of the old standbys have been entirely forgotten.

There are times, of course, or rather seasons of the year, when the less call we have for set pieces, as the harp, anchor, lyre, etc., are commonly called, the better we like it, but these are of short duration. Usually there is a lot of stock that can be worked up nicely into such designs, with a good profit for the florist and value received for the purchaser. For instance, during the aster season, chrysanthemum season and at times when light-colored carnations are a glut on the market. When carnations are plentiful you can often buy enough for $1 to furnish the setting or background for a design that sells for $5.

Florists differ as to the prices on set pieces. Of course there are times when a design can be made up cheaper than at another time. But this would only make a difference of from two to four inches on the frame. Why is it, then, that some florists will make up a 20-inch to 22-inch pillow for $5 when one of that size, well made of all flowers, should bring $8 to $10? There are several ways of accounting for this, but as long as there are florists there will be difference in the prices charged, so we will drop this part of this subject.

What to Suggest.

As stated in a previous article, it is not good policy to talk too much when a customer is making inquiries concerning funeral work; still you will probably be called upon to make some suggestions. Let your prospective customer give you some idea of what is wanted and then, if necessary, offer some suggestions.

If, for instance, your customer wants a broken wheel for the funeral of a young man who has been living by himself and whose death in no way broke up a family or made a break in any club or social circle, tell him, in a friendly way, that some other design would be more appropriate, but if he seems intent on having the wheel, give him the wheel by all means.

We will suppose, though, that a customer wants a large design and wants purple and white flowers to predominate in its make-up. You are short on purple stock and have a nice stock of pink roses ready to use. Here is where tact plays an important part. After Mr. Customer has told you his idea, do not the trimming you must use good stock. If the design is a low-priced affair, give $2 or $3 worth of good, fresh flowers, as the case may be.

Individuality of Designs.

Some florists make all designs in just the same way, the only difference being in the shape, and the wireman supplies this. My experience has taught me that almost every design we are called upon to make has some individuality which the designer must carry out; some little touch not associated with any other design.

Of course the general work, or body of the work, is the same on all designs. In a recent article I went into details as to putting the foil, moss, etc., on a frame, so we will not repeat this.

One of the most important things to remember in making a design is to always make the outline first, thereby assuring good shape. When it is possible to do so it is always a good plan to use some small flower as an edging.

Beginning with the anchor, we will run down purple and white, but in a nice way try to sell him white and pink.

Use Fresh Flowers.

By all means use fresh flowers in all your work. This does not necessarily imply flowers that are only one day old, but means such flowers as you know are fresh. One or two old, faded flowers in a design will spoil the appearance of the whole. Of course for the flowers that go to form the background of the piece you need not be so particular, but in just run through a part of the whole list of designs and see how we can bring out some of the special features.

Anchor.

Some designs have more special features to look to than others. In making up an anchor, see to it that the crossbar tapers a little at the end. On a large anchor the prongs can be given a good shape with a little care. By placing a flower of a different color than the rest of the design in the center of the top you can give it the appearance of being an open ring.

Bibles or Books.

Bibles or books allow for little trimming. The plainer they are made the better they will look. In the first place, to get a good shape the wire frame should allow a little extra space where the pages would begin, for the flowers meet here and will look crowded if this is not done. Some white flower is best to represent the pages. This should be set off with probably a pale yellow or delicate pink at the slanting edge to show where the edge begins. The top and lower part can be left in green or, still better, fill in with the same yellow or pink. If you have but little lettering to go on the book, then arrange it on one side and put a nice small spray of flowers on the other to balance the lettering.

Broken Column.

A broken column is meant to represent a column of stone that has been broken off at the top. Naturally one made solid of white flowers and then trimmed would come nearest to the real column, but in most cases a florist does not get enough for a column to make one of all white, so galax, ivy or some such stock has to be used. After you have covered the column with the leaves or flowers, trim

MOTHERS' DAY.

The following letter has been received from Chapin Bros., of Lincoln, Neb.:

"Again Nebraska is ahead. We enclose a proclamation that cleaned out every florist in Lincoln, cleaner than has been done for years.

"It's a sentiment that appeals to every man and boy, and people bought flowers that never bought before. The florists' stores were crowded from early Saturday morning until Sunday night.

"We hope to make it a holiday for the United States. Crowd it and push it; it has Decoration day beat a mile, and comes when flowers are cheap and plenty. Get a swing on your pen, but give Lincoln, Neb., the credit. We grow big men and big ideas here."

In their enthusiasm the Nebraskans take a great deal of credit for their own people, but the idea is so good a one, especially from the viewpoint of the florist, that it really does not matter where it originated. The fact is that the idea of Mothers' day originated with the Federation of Women's Clubs and seems already to have attained a big start toward national observance. So far as reports go, no city made more of Mothers' day than did Lincoln, Neb., and every florist should give his aid toward pushing it along next year. The mayor of the city of Lincoln, Neb., I hereby recommend that by general consent, Sunday, May 10, 1908, be set apart as Mothers' Day, and that on that day every man and every boy in the city of Lincoln, and every visitor within our gates, wear a white flower in honor of his mother.

And I suggest that the day be made a special occasion for sending flowers to the invalids in Lincoln homes, to the sick in hospitals and to the orphans in public and denominational institutions.

It is eminently fitting that in this, as in other worthy movements, Lincoln take the lead. Let us hope that the first Mothers' Day observed in this beautiful city will be so successful and inspiring that other cities will, in future years, follow the example.

Witness my hand as mayor of the city of Lincoln, Neb., this 6th day of May, A. D. 1908.

F. W. BROWN, Mayor.

Cut it out, file it and next year get your mayor to publish something similar.

RETAILERS' ADVERTISING.

There is one feature about the advertising of retail florists which should meet the approval of everyone in the trade, even though some of the "everyones" are competitors. In the present state of the development of the cut flower business, one of the principal uses of advertising is to create new buyers, rather than to win away the customers of another store. Insofar as a retailer's advertising is educational, it benefits the flower business as a whole in only less degree than it profits the retailer himself.

Kansas City is a splendid flower town. The business done there is large and the trade is prosperous, but not all the people patronize the first-class stores. The department store flower sales are a feature every Saturday, and still another class is catered to by Alpha Eberfield, who does business as the Alpha Floral Co. One of his recent newspaper advertisements is reproduced herewith. A series of such advertisements has been appearing in the leading newspaper and is bringing into his store a large number of people who have not hitherto been flower buyers.

FOX'S UPTOWN SHOP.

In the REVIEW for April 30 there was a reproduction of a photograph showing the uptown shop, Fox's, at Twenty-first and Columbia avenue, Philadelphia. You want to know whether Fox's uptown shop bears any relation to the Sign of the Rose in the heart of Philadelphia? Yes; they are both owned and operated by Charles Henry Fox. As the Sign of the Rose expresses Mr. Fox's artistic ideas, so Fox's flower shop expresses his commercial ideas.

Charles Henry Fox established his florists' business at Twenty-first and Columbia avenue many years before he opened the Sign of the Rose. His idea in the first named shop was purely a commercial one. Plants were bought in quantity and sold at a good profit, but for what seemed to the purchaser to be a low price for cash. The customers were largely made up of the working classes, who came in the evening, read the price on the tags and paid for and carried off their purchases, saving much expense in bookkeeping and delivery. At that time it was the fashion to have bargain sales. Plants were offered at odd figured prices, somewhat as it was done in the department stores. Today, however, people have become tired of bargain sales and odd figured offers. The special sale is now popular, a plant usually offered at $1 being sold at 75 cents, and occasionally 50 cents, prices

Your Table Beautiful

Your table may be richly spread and yet without flowers it lacks that finished touch of beauty and completeness. Interior floral decorations create an atmosphere of welcome and invitingness as nothing else will. They are a welcome addition to any home.

This store boasts unsurpassed facilities for the furnishing of choice flowers for that purpose—fresh cut, fragrant blossoms of the rarest type. Almost an unlimited variety of Palms, Ferns, Hanging Baskets and other decoratives of every specie for your choosing. Lower prices than you can possibly get elsewhere, too!

with a loose garland of flowers. At the top is where you must be careful to give the appearance of being broken. Have the top as rough as it is possible to make it, just as if it were a break of stone. You can elaborate on the base any way you see fit.

Other designs have similar points that must be watched. I will note some of them in another article.

HUGO SCHROETER.

MOTHERS' DAY PROCLAMATION.

Office of the Mayor,
City of Lincoln, Neb.

To the People of Lincoln:

The secretary of the Lincoln Young Men's Christian Association, having suggested that Sunday, May 10, be observed by the people of this city as "Mothers' Day," every man to wear on that day a white flower in honor of his mother, I have been requested to ask for general compliance with the suggestion.

Therefore, in pursuance of this request and as made possible by a retailer's purchase in quantity.

In the same way funeral designs are made up at popular prices. Those who desire a small or inexpensive design are satisfied by the wreaths, crosses, etc., shown them at Fox's. The conditions in the flower market have made it possible to buy short-stemmed flowers at low prices, and these flowers are quite as satisfactory in many funeral designs as higher grade stock and can be offered profitably at far lower prices.

The REVIEW hopes to present its readers this spring with some of Mr. Fox's original designs in funeral arrangements.

PHIL.

A PACIFIC COAST STORE.

The Graff brothers are two young men, endowed with a natural instinct for trading, who have made their own way in the flower business. William Graff is the owner of a prosperous business at Columbus, O., operated on the plan of large sales and small profits, and Sam Graff, who formerly was his partner, has recently opened the store at Seattle, Wash., shown in the accompanying illustrations reproduced from photographs made just after Easter. He says prospects are fine on the Pacific coast.

HARDY CUT FERNS.

There is an old saying to the effect that every year is a different year with regard to the spring market for the cut hardy fancy and dagger ferns, which now are used in such immense quantities. No two seasons are alike, and this year is a great deal different from any of its predecessors. A year ago the buyer took off his hat when he approached the man who had ferns; this year he doesn't approach—he lets the seller hunt him up.

There are several reasons which contribute to the accounting for the present condition in the fern market. One of the Massachusetts shippers says it is largely because ferns have kept better this year than usual. Another shipper says it is because everyone ran out last year and made arrangements this season to guard against any recurrence of the shortage. A western wholesaler says the increased supply from Michigan is the leading factor, while the far west also now contributes to the supply. In addition, the general state of the business doubtless has something to do with the case. At any rate, there is no likelihood of a shortage of ferns this spring. The supply is much greater than it ever before has been at this date and new ferns from the south already are available. There are, however, several grades of ferns and, as almost always is the case, the man with the best goods does not have to go far in quest of a market.

MARGUERITES.

Can white marguerite daisies be made to bloom in the winter, along with carnations? What temperature suits them best? Would like to pot some to sell about mum time, if it is possible. Would those that are forced be better in pots or in benches? — H. E. K.

White marguerites can be made to bloom fairly well in the winter season. Of course, their natural flowering time under glass is March, April and May. We have never been able to flower them successfully so early as the mum season, but they can be had in good shape for Christmas. The cuttings to produce such plants should be already rooted. They will for some months persist in throwing flower buds. These must be kept constantly removed. Do not allow the plants to become too much potbound. After June 1 they will be better grown outdoors. If plunged, all the better.

Some growers succeed in flowering them in winter by planting in shallow benches containing three to four inches of soil. The benches must not contain too much soil and they should be matted with roots by the end of October. Then you can reasonably expect a good winter crop of flowers. Grown in pots and allowed to root through into the soil on a bench also gives good winter returns. A temperature of 48 to 52 degrees at night we have found to be satisfactory. Rather make it a little lower than higher.

PLANTING YOUNG STOCK.

For Exhibition.

Many of the best growers plant out their stock this month and, while there is ample time to root and grow along many of the tall growing kinds, the dwarf kinds, such as Beatrice May, May Seddon, Merza, etc., should now be in shape for planting if one is expecting to produce exhibition flowers. The commercial grower figures that June planting is early enough for him, and, as a matter of fact, it is, for a good average run of flowers, but the difference between the commercial grade and the exhibition grade is becoming more marked as the years go by. With the big show at Chicago as an incentive, there should be some special flowers turned out this year in many places that do not, as a general thing, figure much on exhibiting. One thing, however, should be remembered, and that is that unless one has the head room, early planting cannot be practiced, because when stems have to be bent and twisted all ways to get the flowers down from the glass the best results are clearly impossible. Many kinds will go up six to seven feet when planted in May, and this must be taken into account. A knowledge of the varieties one is growing is essential. Then, with a little thought, the tall kinds can be planted in the center of the house, leaving the dwarf varieties for the side benches.

Pots, Beds or Benches.

A correspondent writes to know which I would recommend, for growing exhibition flowers, of the following systems: Pot culture, benches, or solid beds. This question is frequently discussed among growers, but personally I think the man behind the gun has more to do with successful growing than any particular style of culture. I have seen fine flowers produced by each system of growing. I do not care, myself, for solid beds, because it is hard to control root action at times when one may need to do so, and plants will, as a general rule, grow higher when planted in solid beds. Plants grown in pots eight to ten inches in diameter make some wonderful flowers, but it means a great deal more work watering and looking after them than it would were they planted in a bench.

Soil.

We will assume that the soil has been previously prepared by having been composted in the fall and that it will chop down nice and mellow. If you mix bone with the soil, let it be the fine bone, so that the plants can get the good of it during their growing season. A good way to mix it is to put the soil on the bench first and sprinkle the bone on top. Then the soil can be worked over by hand to break up the rough lumps and the bone will be thoroughly and evenly mixed through the bench. Fill the bench level full; then, after the plants are set out, a firming of the soil will give a half inch for watering.

For running along the cracks of the bench to prevent the soil from falling through, there is nothing so good as fresh sod. Anyone who has ever studied the root action of the chrysanthemum knows that it loves the fiber to root in and this same fiber affords fine drainage, that never clogs up, and keeps the soil sweet.

Distance to Plant.

My benches are thirty inches wide and I put in three rows, running the plants sixteen inches in the rows, and I do not consider this too much to allow for exhibition flowers, growing one flower to a plant. When one has a house with wide benches it is not policy, perhaps, to change it, but in building a bench for growing mums I would never build it to accommodate more than four rows of plants. With a wide bench the center rows do not do nearly so well, as the sun and air cannot penetrate the mass of foliage, and leaf spot and other diseases will almost invariably start there. That is one advantage that the grower who keeps his stock in pots has; every plant has its place, and if it is not dry it need not be watered, and this is not so easy to manage with plants in a bench.

SCHIZANTHUS WISETONENSIS.

The illustration on this page is from a photograph of the new variety of Schizanthus Wisetonensis which originated with Edwin Lonsdale at Girard College in 1907. Mr. Lonsdale has been growing Schizanthus Wisetonensis for some years at Girard College. It is a beautiful plant, effective in the decorations required at the college on Founders' day, May 20. The seed is usually sown in the fall, October or early in November, in order to have the plants in full bloom this month. The first package of seed Mr. Lonsdale ever sowed failed completely to germinate. The seed sown two years ago came up admirably, and from this seed the watchful Mr. Lonsdale secured one plant of a compact type entirely different from any of the types with which growers of this plant are familiar. The seed of this compact plant was carefully saved and sown. Now Mr. Lonsdale has twenty-five plants, all true to the new type, with flowers varying from white to delicate pink and lavender. The appearance of the new type was so striking that Mr. Lonsdale invited the novelty committee of the Florists' Club to examine it and they visited the college and reported favorably at the May meeting. Wistaria Chinensis, a Useful Easter Plant If Forced a Little.

BEST PEAS FOR FORCING.

I would like to know which are the two best sweet peas for growing under glass for winter bloom. L. N. B.

The two best sweet peas for greenhouse use are Christmas Pink or Earliest of All, pink and white; and Mont Blanc, pure white. There are several other colors raised by A. C. Zvolanek, which do well and might sell in a limited way, but the two shades named are the best commercial ones. C. W.

STANDARD WISTARIAS.

As climbers, the Chinese wistarias have no equal. Quite a number of small specimens are now annually grown in pots or tubs for Easter sales. In the majority of cases these are but sparsely bloomed, being dug up and potted in the previous fall. In order to obtain good standards, the best plan is to secure some strong nursery stock. Plant these out in the field and cut away all but the strongest shoot. Tie this to a stout stake and top it at any desired height. Grow in the field a couple of years to strengthen it. Then dig it up with as good roots as possible and place in a large pot or tub. When established in these receptacles they will give each season a wealth of racemes. They can grow for a number of years in the same tubs by giving a rich annual top-dressing and feeding well with liquid manure during the summer.

Shoots showing a tendency to run should always be pinched back, in order to keep the heads as bushy as possible. A cold pit or cellar makes a suitable storage place. Care must be taken that the plants do not become dry at the roots, or a loss of flower buds will ensue. If the temperature falls to 15 degrees no harm will result. W. Chinensis and its white form are better than the looser racemed W. multijuga for tub culture.

Some of the finest specimens of wis-tarias we have ever seen are on the estate of Prof. C. S. Sargent, in Brookline, Mass. Some of these are of a great age, stand ten feet or more in height and annually carry thousands of racemes each. Such plants are splendid for piazza decorations. W. N. C.

PREPARATIONS FOR PLANTING.

Collecting the Soil.

To have soil in good condition for the planting season, it ought to be collected in good time. If the collecting has not already been done, no time should be lost in having this most necessary work performed.

For my own use I prefer soil collected during spring, as I find it not so liable to produce that green scum on the surface as that which has been piled up during the winter.

The top spit, four or five inches deep, from old pasture land, where the soil is of a yellow, loamy nature, is, in my experience, suitable for nearly all varieties of roses. This should be built in a neat pile and not thrown loosely in a heap. The sides should be kept as nearly vertical as possible by building up with sods until the pile is about a foot high, keeping count of the number of loads. Then, on top of this, to every five loads of soil spread one load of rich old cow manure; then another layer of sod, alternating with the required proportion of manure, until the pile is as large as required. In about three weeks the pile should be ready to chop up.

Treatment of the Compost Pile.

Where there is an absence of the modern chopping machine, a sharp spade can be used to cut the sod to the required size. For roses, it is better not to chop it up too fine; the sod and manure should be cut into pieces of about two inches in diameter. After a few days this pile should be turned over, so that the sod and manure may become thoroughly incorporated. If time allows, it will be all the better of a second turning.

In preparing the soil it is well to remember that it should never be handled when in a wet condition, nor during rainy weather. The effect of sunshine during this operation is to sweeten the soil and put it into the best possible condition for benching. If bone is to be used, it is better to add it when the soil is on the bench. RIBES.

BABY RAMBLER ROSES.

When should cuttings of Baby Rambler roses be taken to have them in bloom in 4-inch pots by Decoration day? When should stock plants be taken in, in the fall, to get cuttings in time?

H. E. K.

Take in your stock plants not later than December 1, after they have had a good freezing and lost their foliage. Start cool at first, gradually raising the temperature to 50 to 54 degrees at night. Use half ripened wood for propagating purposes. If you can get a good batch of cuttings during February, they should give you nice little plants for Memorial day. Pot off into 2½-inch pots when rooted, shifting into 4-inch later. A bottom heat of 70 degrees and a top heat of 10 to 12 degrees cooler has given us good results for propagating.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

June Show at Bronx Park.

A conference was held in New York city last week relative to the June show of outdoor and other roses. This meeting decided the date to be in the middle or last week in June. President Simpson and others of the American Rose Society and the committee of the New York Horticultural Society attended this meeting. There has been a strong inclination at all gatherings hitherto to emphasize the desirability of the June exhibitions and this year it is now proposed to carry it into effect. The American Rose Society invites the attention of all its members to this affair, requesting especially growers of outdoor roses of any and all varieties to be on hand, and furthermore would be more than pleased to receive the support of any friends in the way of prizes for this show.

A word to growers: Remember that this is a popular show, thrown open to thousands of people who at this season of the year gather for miles from the most populous suburban district in all America—and this means cultivating business. So we want the rosarians of New Jersey, all of New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maryland, with as many from Ohio and further west as practical, to send on what they can.

We want the rich man's estates, with their wealth of beauty and their educated gardeners, to lend a hand and contribute of the glory of the products of "the leafy month of June" to the coming rose show next month.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

raised under glass should now be completed. Once growth fairly starts, it is rapid. After each considerable rainfall, run the cultivator through the rows and keep the surface soil well stirred up to conserve the moisture. Soon the German iris will be in season. Very useful they will be found, not only at Memorial day, but during June. They are soon followed by the Spanish and English sections, both of which are splendid for cutting. Being perfectly hardy, they are worthy of more extended culture.

Pinch back some of the shoots on the herbaceous phloxes. This will retard their flowering and throw them into bloom when they will prove valuable. Fall and winter rooted phlox cuttings should have been planted in the field before now. They are specially fine during September. If you did not give the herbaceous plants a dressing of barnyard manure in the fall, it will still pay to sprinkle some chemical fertilizer between the rows, taking care to keep it away from the plants themselves.

Hard-wooded Plants.

Any plants of Azalea Indica left over can be planted outdoors now. A light freezing will not injure them, provided they have been grown cool. See that all seeds are picked from them and do not plant in land containing fresh manure. See that the plants are firmed thoroughly and let them be in full sunshine and where they can be conveniently reached with the hose. Boronias, acacias, ericas, eristemons and camellias can all go outdoors and will each grow well if treated like the azaleas. Genistas should be clipped and potted over before being stood outdoors. It is better to wait until the end of the month before placing them in the open.

Poinsettias.

While it is yet too early to start up your poinsettias if you want short-stemmed plants for pans, if you intend to grow a bench of them for cutting it is time to shake out the old stock plants which have been resting for several months and place them in heat. Shake away all soil from the roots, prune back the tops and place in as small sized pots as you can squeeze them into. Give one soaking of water, then use it more sparingly at the root, but syringe overhead freely. A temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night will soon start the plants growing. Cuttings rubbed off with a heel three to four inches long are our favorites. Insert in sharp sand in a good bottom heat. Never allow the sun to shine upon them until rooted. Keep them moist at the root. Do not, however, let the foliage on the cuttings remain wet over night, as this has a tendency to start decay.

Geraniums.

Customers are already starting to buy geraniums for piazza and window boxes. As usual, all want plants carrying a truss of flowers, even if the said plants are smaller and weaker than those not yet in bloom. We presume it will be ever so. Strive to have as many of your plants in flower before Memorial day as possible, as it will greatly help sales. Avoid overfeeding with manure water. This promotes a soft growth, which is not floriferous. Either a frame or cold house should now be given up to these useful plants. They will require a lot of water. If in frames, a good plan is to plunge the pots half their depth. This keeps

SEASONABLE

Peonies.

Peonies are now making rapid growth after the recent copious rains. The officinalis section now has buds well advanced and will be open before Memorial day, when they are very useful. To assist the peonies at this time, give them a top-dressing of nitrate of soda or sheep manure, hoeing it in. This feeding will greatly improve the quality of the blooms. If applying liquid manure, the best time is after a soaking rain. Peonies are gross feeders and appreciate stimulants given them before they flower.

Summer Liliums.

The bulbs of Lilium speciosum and auratum potted last fall, if they have been given a cool house, will now be making rapid growth and will soon show their buds. Do not attempt to force them. They resent a close, stuffy atmosphere and prefer airy conditions at all stages of their growth. As the pots will now be well filled with active roots, a supply of manure water, rather weak at first, once a week, will be found helpful. Do not allow green aphids to secure any foothold in the ends of the shoots, or they will speedily do great damage. If you smoke once a week, they will not cause you much trouble. Lilium longiflorum for Memorial day should have the earliest buds turning white by May 20 to be in good season. It is too soon to pot up cold storage bulbs of L. speciosum or auratum for early winter blooming. July is sufficiently early.

Hardy Herbaceous Plants.

Almost every florist grows some varieties of hardy perennials for cutting; in fact, without them during the summer months, the country commercial grower, who has a fairly constant call for funeral and other work, would often be in hard straits. Any dividing, replanting and setting out of seedlings the roots cooler and moister, and there is a striking contrast between plants so treated and those stood on a hard bottom. Be sure not to sell all available stock of your favorite geraniums. Reserve a sufficient number of each kind to be planted outdoors for your own use.

Brief Reminders.

If Hyacinthus candicans is not yet planted outside, get the bulbs in the ground as soon as possible.

Look over the bulb displays in the public parks and gardens. Jot down the names of desirable varieties.

Discontinue planting deciduous stock and finish setting out evergreens, except it may be in damp, cloudy weather.

Make another sowing of asters. This will do well either in a frame or the open.

Continue to gradually harden off bedding plants. Be sure to keep them moist at the root.

Cut gladiolus spikes when the first flowers open. They will expand freely in water and can be retarded in this way considerably.

Shake out and store your freesia bulbs. They will not require to be started before August.

A batch of fancy leaved caladiums and tuberous rooted begonias, started now, will prove useful in late summer.

THE FERTILIZER MARKET.

Growers who use large quantities of manufactured fertilizers have found that in spite of existing business conditions there is this season a marked advance in the price of leading items in this line. For instance, among Chicago growers large users of raw bone are paying $30 per ton, as against $22 per ton at this date last year. There also has been an advance in the price of blood and bone. The manufacturers of these fertilizers at the Union Stock Yards explain that the advance is due to the light receipts of cattle at the yards, which is reducing the output of all by-products of the slaughter houses. The big packing concerns assert that the light receipts of cattle are to blame for the advance in the price of fresh meats, and the fertilizer people say that in their line the advance is not held in check by a reduction in demand, as it is with fresh meats. In practically all parts of the country except the south, it is said the demand for fertilizers is greater than it ever has been before and that there is no trouble in disposing of the output. Fertilizer manufacturers assert, and it probably is with truth, that the demand for fertilizers is only just beginning to be felt in this country, where the natural supply has sufficed heretofore, and that as years go by manufactured fertilizers will become much more largely used and possibly harder to obtain.

CUTWORMS.

Growers of carnations, especially in the east, have much trouble each spring through the depredations of cutworms among the young plants in the field. These will be interested in a new product named Vaporite, manufactured by Strawson's, 71a Queen Victoria street, London, England. One of the members of the firm was in the United States last season and asserts that Vaporite, which is a nonpoisonous powder, sprinkled on the soil and dug in, will destroy cutworms and other plant pests of that character. The average grower is slow to take up such an article, but several of the experiment station people have tried it with good results and it is worth experimenting with on a commercial scale.

RUST ON CARNATIONS.

Please tell us what is the matter with the leaves enclosed. They are off young plants of Victory carnations. We have never before had anything like it on our carnations. Please advise us if it will be safe to leave them among the other plants. J. B.

The specimen leaves forwarded are full of the common carnation rust. As I have said in reply to a similar inquiry recently, this disease, while usually not dreaded now as it was a few years ago, sometimes becomes quite serious and destructive. On the older plants, and even on the young plants which are established, it can usually be controlled by keeping the foliage dry, and occasionally dusting them with dry-slaked lime or grape dust.

Some varieties, however, are more subject to this disease than others, and Victory is one of these. Some varieties will be attacked by this disease every time the plants receive much of a check, such as replanting from the field, potting out of the potting bench or even while undergoing the rooting process. After getting reestablished, however, the plants will, under good culture, fight the disease off again and be clean until the next severe check, when the disease will reappear. Victory is not so troublesome, however, as the only time we have any trouble is about the time they are ready to come out of the cutting bench and until the young plants are established enough to bear the full sunlight. The reason for this is the fact that the spores of this disease require moisture to become active; while they are perfectly dry they remain inactive and harmless. Any variety which reestablishes itself less readily than the average in times of replanting will naturally be kept in a moister atmosphere and in such condition longer than the others, and, being also more weakened through the operation, they are unable to fight off the disease.

Victory is a strong grower after it is established and it is seldom we see any rust on it except after it has been subjected to some great disturbance. So I would not blame the party from whom you received the cuttings too severely, especially if they were clean when you received them. In such case, he should be complimented for having rooted this variety without its getting rusty.

I would advise you to pick off the diseased leaves and burn them. Then dust the plants, as suggested above, and water carefully. After you plant them in the field they will soon grow out of it and no more trouble should be experienced. While this disease will spread through these spores being carried along, yet that does not mean that it will spread like fairy-ring or other spot diseases; it is quite different. If the variety next to the rusty one is in condition to take the disease it will be attacked, but frequently you will see a batch eaten up by it and next to it a batch entirely free and clean. Some varieties are never attacked; while others are attacked occasionally. A. F. J. B.

DETERIORATED STOCK.

I am sending you some carnation plants and also a sample of the soil, hoping that you can tell me what the trouble is. About fifty per cent of the blooms have been split all through the season and the stems have been short. Also they have been troubled with stem-rot all the winter, there being some to throw out nearly every day. There is quite a difference in the shade of the Pink Lawson, some of them coming very light. I hope you can tell me something about the soil. How about young stock propagated from these plants? The ventilation has been watched closely, the house being kept at 54 degrees at night, with a rise of 10 to 15 degrees in the day-time. H. C.

The plants forwarded showed a great difference in condition and also more than one cause of trouble. The soil seems to be good in texture, and any deficiency could easily be corrected by the addition of lime, bone or manure, whichever seemed to be needed. The Enchantress plant seemed in good condition, except that the stems seemed rather short. Late planting might have caused this.

The Lawson plants, however, show several kinds of trouble. The largest plant was affected with the branch-rot, which has given so many growers no end of trouble in growing this variety during the last three years. No sure remedy for this is known at this time. Another plant had that curled up, weak appearance which showed decided deterioration in vitality. No doubt this plant was from a cutting taken from a similar plant. The third plant had the appearance of having been planted late, or having never taken hold of the soil properly.

I certainly would not advise you to plant young plants propagated from cuttings taken from such plants as these. If a large percentage of your Lawson plants are like these, it shows that your stock of this variety is in a bad way and that you are due to stock up with some other variety which is in more robust health.

Lawson was a grand variety, which has made money for many growers, and some growers have it in fine condition yet. Where it has been propagated carefully year after year, it has lost but little of its former quality and productiveness. It has been more sensitive to disturbance and soil variance than most varieties, and for that reason many growers have never attained the success with this variety that others have. But, like all other varieties, it is being excelled and superseded by better varieties, some of them being its own progeny, and its decline has been rapid during the last three years. A few more years will see it going out of cultivation entirely, but its fame and that of its raiser will live a long time after the variety has passed out of existence. A. F. J. B.

express purpose of raising cattleyas, it should be designed to be as low as possible, and if the green house is narrow and built to accommodate two stages, the direction at which it is built is of no consequence, but if the house is high, with three stages and two walks, it should, if possible, run north and south, so that both sides have the benefit of equal light in the winter, which is essential. The central bench in a three-bench house is usually broad and should be raised in the middle for economy of space. The raising of the plants in the center stage would shade one-half of the plants in the winter if the house ran east and west.

Shading.

The matter of shading is an important one. With a small collection, in a small greenhouse, lath frames could be made about the size of hotbed sash, or just large enough to reach from the ridge of the house to the eaves. The rough laths of the plasterers could be used if strict economy is desired; otherwise, planed lumber would be more desirable, as it could be painted and be more slightly and durable. The laths should be spaced according to their width; there should be as much light as shadow. Laths wider than one and one-half inches should not be used. The frames should be merely laid on the glass but not fixed to the house, as they should be removed in the evening and on all dull days.

During the early spring, when such a shade would be too heavy, a temporary shade may be secured by spraying the glass with a lime wash to which a little salt has been added. This shading can be easily removed with a hose when the lath shading is to be used. No shade should be used in the dull winter months.

When cattleyas are extensively grown the best shading is obtained by the use of large wooden shades fixed to the roof and made to work after the fashion of the Venetian blind, from the ridge of the house to the eaves. The slats in this should not meet. When closed there should be a space one-fourth of the width of the slat between each slat. The slats should be not more than two inches wide. Each slat should be attached to a wooden rod, which can be manipulated from the ground. This rod can be so regulated as to admit almost any degree of light required. In dull weather the only light obstruction is the width of the slat, about one-fourth of an inch. This is a labor saving device and is far ahead of any shade which cannot be controlled, such as paint or whitewash. The Venetian blind can be made to order at any planing mill at moderate cost, and if properly cared for, painted and stored each winter, will last many years. This shade is also an insurance against hail.

Culture.

The failure which so often attends the growing of cattleyas is nearly always due to ignorance of the conditions under which the plants grow in a state of nature. Everyone knows that there is a wet and dry season in the tropics and many believe that the dry season is more rigorous than it really is. Although the rains cease, the condensing of the moisture in the humid atmosphere of the tropics results in a heavy dew, which sustains plant life during the resting

CATTLEYAS.

[A synopsis of a paper by George E. McClure, read before the Buffalo Florists' Club.]

When the lay mind contemplates an orchid, a cattleya is what comes before his mental vision. In fact, we might say that the cattleya is the type of an orchid, not in a botanical sense, but as far as the public is concerned. Fully nine-tenths of the orchids sold in this country are cattleyas, and the genus cattleya will always hold first place as the most showy and useful of the family.

Among the 10,000 representatives of the natural order, Orchidaceæ, there are few to surpass the cattleyas in beauty. The genus lælia comes nearest to the cattleyas in point of beauty and usefulness; in fact, the uninitiated cannot discern between the two. The chief difference is an obscure botanical one. The cattleya has four tiny pollen masses, while the lælia has eight. This may be said to be the sole difference.

Of Easy Culture.

The idea generally prevails that cattleyas, and in fact all orchids, are difficult to cultivate. This idea is entirely without foundation, being induced by the common belief that there is something uncanny or mysterious about orchids. The cattleya will respond to natural treatment as readily as most of our common plants.

Greenhouses specially built for cattleyas are not necessary; any light greenhouse, which is not too high, will prove suitable. The plants need not occupy valuable space on the benches, but may be suspended from the roofs of greenhouses devoted to a mixed collection of plants, when a temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees is maintained, and in this way will prove an acceptable by-product.

The plants should never be more than four feet from the glass and less than that is better. The only objection to the system of suspending cattleyas lies in the fact that they are often neglected and become too dry or too wet, at least when suspended high enough to be out of easy reach. When bench room can be afforded it is well to grow the plants in this manner, as better oversight can be had over them. When the bench system is pursued there should be a raised, or secondary, bench placed upon the regular greenhouse bench. This bench should be made of wood slats, from one and one-half to two inches wide, and from one-half to three-fourths inches thick. These slats should be made into frames four to six feet long, so as to be easily removed for the purpose of cleaning the lower bench. The upper, or slat, bench should be raised about eight inches above the lower on wood or iron uprights. The uprights should stand in shallow pans of water to prevent snails or woodlice from reaching the plants. A layer of moss or fine gravel should be spread over the lower bench, which should be kept damp to insure a moist atmosphere, which is absolutely essential to the health of the plants.

season. This condition is quite different from that of a greenhouse in the winter, where excessive firing dries up the atmospheric moisture and causes the pseudo-bulbs to shrivel and the plant to lose its vitality. The pseudo-bulbs should never be allowed to shrivel. Water should be given occasionally during the resting season and the plants should be syringed lightly on all bright days.

The resting season of the cattleya begins after the flowering period, or after the growth is matured, at which time the temperature should be kept several degrees lower if possible. Retard the growth of the plants as much as possible and when the new growth appears at the base of the pseudo-bulbs begin to water well and increase the temperature. As the new growths increase in length water should be given in increasing quantity, but it is well to bear in mind that ten times as much water should be sprinkled over the benches, walks and under the stages to create a moist atmosphere as is given to the plants directly. Abundance of fresh air should be given, but the plants should never be subjected to draughts.

Soil and Potting.

As a rule cattleyas should be repotted every two years, and topdressed every alternate year. The best material for this purpose is orchid peat, osmunda fiber, the roots of the royal fern. It is well to insist on getting young peat from your dealer. It should be of a brownish color. When the peat is old it is wiry and black and is not suitable. No other potting material is needed for cattleyas.

The majority of orchid growers use a mixture of peat and sphagnum moss, but the moss soon decays and causes the roots to rot, especially when the watering is done in a careless manner. Sphagnum may be used with peat when the latter is very old and wiry.

The advantage in using peat is that it does not decay as rapidly as other materials. Before using the peat it should be chopped with an axe or hay cutter. It should not be chopped fine and the fine particles should not be thrown away but should be mixed with the rough, open parts of the peat.

Although cattleyas are strictly epiphytic in a state of nature, yet, under cultivation, they grow better in pots than either on blocks or in baskets. Baskets are useful and are preferred by some, but the system of mounting cattleyas on blocks or cork bark is injurious and will ultimately kill the plants. No matter how strong the plants may have been, or how well they may have succeeded

BAUER'S VALLEY.

At the last meeting of the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club, F. C. Bauer, of Govanstown, exhibited the vase of valley shown in the accompanying illustration. It contained twenty-five spikes and every one had from twenty-two to twenty-four bells and measured eight inches from the first bell to the top bell. It created quite a sensation. Mr. Bauer has been improving his valley for the last four years and has had excellent success. He also grows a great many seedling lilies and has a whole house planted with them. There is not one that has any sign of disease. He planted a large tract with them last fall and every one has come up and is about six inches tall. Q.

THE DEATH ROLL.

August L. Ehrle.

August L. Ehrle died at Carlstadt, N. J., April 28, at the age of 26 years. His death was the result of a severe cold which he had contracted about twelve months before. Mr. Ehrle had been employed by the Julius Roehrs Co., in the orchid department, for twelve years. His love of orchids was manifest in his early boyhood, and grew upon him until these flowers became almost a part of his existence. His genial disposition endeared him to all who knew him. He leaves a wife, who has the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of acquaintances.

Thomas Green.

Thomas Green, the pioneer florist of Joplin, Mo., died at his home in that city May 3. He was 87 years old and for thirty-one years had been a resident of Joplin.

For years Mr. Green owned the only florist's establishment in Joplin, on the corner of Third street and Byers avenue. The greenhouses since have been razed. While operating this establishment Mr. Green, though well along in life, could be seen early and late at work among his flowers.

He was born in Manchester, England, in 1821, and received his education in that country. In 1867, soon after the close of the civil war, he came to the United States.

Shortly before coming to America Mr. Green married Miss Caroline Hathaway Taylor, on the Isle of Man. Miss Taylor was a relative of Shakespeare's wife and a relative of Benjamin Hathaway. Ten years later Mr. Green removed to Joplin. In the early pioneer days he purchased property in what is now the western residence district of Joplin. A few years later he started his flower gardens, and as these prospered, he opened a greenhouse, where he raised early vegetables. Before many years had passed, the greenhouses extended over the entire half block between Second and Third streets on Byers avenue. Here Mr. Green lived until five years ago, when he sold the establishment and erected a home in South Joplin.

His first wife died about ten years ago. He married a second time, and this wife, who survives him, was Mrs. Eliza Lillison, of Eldorado Springs, Mo.

Mr. Green was well educated and possessed a personality which won him many friends. He had been sick but about three weeks. Old age was assigned as the cause of his death.

Thomas Copeland.

A widely known florist, of Sewickley, Pa., Thomas Copeland, aged 68, is dead at his home in Leetsdale. He was born in Scotland and came to this country in 1871. For twenty-eight years he conducted a florists' stand at the Fort Wayne station, Sewickley. Mr. Copeland is survived by four sons, Fred and John Copeland, of Leetsdale; William Copeland, Pittsburg; George Copeland, Chicago, and two daughters, Mrs. Robert Glancey, Sewickley, and Mrs. William Park, Avalon.

James P. Ruth.

James P. Ruth, of Wyomissing, Pa., died March 16 and the business will be discontinued.

CADILLAC, MICH.—Joseph Carlton has succeeded A. W. Tweedie as proprietor of the greenhouses on Cobb street.

THE WEEKLY
FLORISTS'
REVIEW

is printed Wednesday evening and mailed early Thursday morning. It is earnestly requested that all advertisers and correspondents mail their "copy" to reach us by Monday or Tuesday at latest, instead of Wednesday morning, as many have done in the past.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1908: President, F. H. Traendly,
 New York; vice-president, George W. McClure,
 Buffalo; secretary, Willis N. Rudd, Morgan Park,
 Ill.; treasurer, H. B. Beatty, Pittsburg.

Annual convention, Niagara Falls, August 18
 to 21, 1908.

First National Flower Show, Chicago, November 9 to 15, 1908; W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, chairman.

THOSE who push in dull times are the ones who reap the harvests when business skies are bright.

THE government's May crop report, which is summarized elsewhere in this issue, is an exceptionally favorable document.

NOT every debtor stops to reason it out, but many say to themselves: "I owe him too much already; I won't buy anything more of him until I have paid." Moral: Get your money promptly and hold your trade.

WHERE strong effort failed to establish McKinley day as an occasion for wearing a flower, Mothers' day has caught on with almost no publicity work in its behalf. Don't overlook the possibilities of May 10 next year.

ANTON SCHULTHEIS, of College Point, N. Y., states that the illustration on page 11 of last week's issue was incorrectly labeled. It was not Apple Blossom, but another new rambler rose Mr.
 Schultheis is growing, as yet unnamed,
 but a good thing.

WITH florists outside the big cities, and a few manufacturing towns, business is good; with the retailers in the big markets the lower price of stock com-pensates for the falling off in demand, and the growers who look to the wholesale markets for their outlet are the only ones who have suffered during the recent period of widespread overproduction.

EDWARD H. ROEHRS, of Rutherford, N. J., secretary of the committee which considered the possibilities in the matter of the organization of an orchid society, is mailing to orchid growers a report of the committee's action in arranging, instead, for affiliation with the Horticultural Society of New York, as published in the REVIEW at the time. The report concludes: "You can identify yourself with this orchid section by becoming a member of the Horticultural Society of New York. The annual subscription for active members is $5, which may be sent with your application for membership, to the office of the secretary of the society, Room 60, 55 Liberty street, New York City."

MOTHERS' day made a hit, and it caught the trade unprepared. Next year every florist should do his part in advertising the occasion.

A PETTY SWINDLER.

The REVIEW still is receiving complaints of a petty swindler who is operating in the east, pretending to be a subscription agent for the REVIEW and other papers. The REVIEW has no subscription agents except the well-known members of the trade who are its local correspondents. This man signs receipts J.
 O. Pullen. Have him arrested, if he approaches you, and wire the REVIEW.

ITS AVOWED ATTITUDE.

At a recent session of the executive committee of the American Association of Park Superintendents, the annual convention of which is to be held at Minneapolis August 11 to 14, the committee on closer relations with allied organizations reported that by meeting near the time of the S. A. F. "we have done all we can, while the S. A. F. maintains its avowed attitude of a trade organization."

GOOD DRAWING CARDS.

A reader sends the following: "Here are some good drawing cards and all trumps: It takes a rich man to draw a cheek, a pretty girl to draw attention, a horse to draw a cart, a porous-plaster to draw the skin, a toper to draw a cork, a free lunch to draw a crowd and an advertisement in the REVIEW to draw trade."

CEMENT BENCHES.

I read Mr. White's article on cement benches in the REVIEW of April 30, with much interest, and would like to know just how thick he makes the cement slabs and at what distance apart the supports are placed for five inches of soil in the bench? About what is the weight of a slab six inches wide and five feet long? How will slabs twelve inches wide answer? A. J. P.

The cement slabs are as thick as a lath is wide, or about one and one-half inches. The legs of the benches are four feet apart, with a crosstie. The supports for the ties run across the crossties; these are 3/4-inch galvanized pipe and the two outside lines carry the water for watering the plants, and are placed about six inches from the edgeboard.
 The other support runs between these, exactly in the center; this would mean two feet apart in a 5-foot bench. A 5-foot slab six inches wide weighs about thirty pounds.

A 12-inch slab would answer, except that the drainage vents would be wider apart. The 6-inch slab spaced about an inch or a little less apart gives perfect drainage.

I should think it would pay to use the slabs even if wood supports were used, as the supports could be treated with some of the creosote preparations and would last a good many years. It is the bottom boards that need so much renewal. THOS. H. WHITE.

PEORIA, ILL.—D. U. Augspurger & Sons report that their business for April was over fifty per cent ahead of last year and that their only concern is to provide the stock for a growing demand.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

It rained continuously last week until Saturday, but there was a steady improvement in the market. The dark weather, while it caused some deterioration in quality, reduced the output, and shipping trade showed considerable improvement, with the result that there was a much better tone in the market, in spite of the depressing weather. When the sun came out, May 9, the city buyers again took hold and Saturday afternoon saw the market bare of all save odds and ends.

The present week opened stronger than the preceding one, carnations being again good property and with a fair demand for other stock. It rained all day Monday and this shut off local buyers to a large extent, but the shipping demand was good. On Tuesday bright, warm spring weather returned, and if this holds through the week there will be an abundance of stock again for Friday's shipments to the people who run the big special sales on Saturday.

Some of the carnation growers say there is not much in sight on the plants, but there is a suspicion that their vision may be obscured by the refulgence of the Decoration day special demand, and there is likely to be a decided increase in supplies with a few days of bright weather. The rose market continues to be largely supplied and quality in most cases is excellent, in spite of dark weather. The Beauty crops are coming on again with several of the large growers who have been cutting rather lightly in the last few weeks. Kaiserin is now being cut in considerable quantity. Rose values have firmed up quite a little in the last week, but top quotations have not advanced.

The sweet pea is one of the best selling items in the list and the supply of good peas is greater than it ever has been before; more growers are cutting what will class with the good stock. While some of the special colors make as good prices, in general sweet peas are not bringing more than one-half to two-thirds what they were last year, and it takes something special to bring over $1 per hundred. Violets are practically at an end; for three days following May 8 there were no shipments received from the Hudson river district. The few local Marie Louise still sell well.

The supplies of peonies are equal to requirements, and no more, for the surplus is going into storage against the Decoration day demand. Lilies continue to be a glut. The shipments of cape jasmine from Texas, which began last week, have reached holiday proportions and every house in town that handles these flowers has all it can use. The first sold well, but the demand is now slow. Gladioli are abundant.

There was a flurry in valley last week and again the first of this week there was some special call. During the season of weddings it usually is the case that the call for valley is in the first days of the week, with little demand toward the end of the week.

There is a good call for green goods, with abundant supply. Fancy ferns are especially plentiful for this season of the year.

Peony Prospects.

Last week it was reported that the Sarcosie peonies would be only a fraction of a normal crop, and now word comes from Carbondale that the crop will be not more than half what it would be with a favorable season. The result is that the shippers are putting peonies into cold storage in anticipation of the Decoration day demand, for it is not likely that local peonies can be cut, and the report from Villa Ridge is also of a small crop. The principal holders of peonies say they will be worth $10 per hundred for Decoration day, and this seems quite likely when one recalls that last year, while advance orders for white were taken at $1 a dozen, it was no trouble at all to get $1.50 during the two days before Decoration day, when actual deliveries and shipments were being made.

Decoration Day Prospects.

There is every indication of an enormous demand for stock at moderate prices for Decoration day. Orders already are being received. Everywhere throughout the Chicago territory the retailers remember that each year there has been a considerable increase in the Memorial day business, and they are all looking for a big demand, both May 30 and 31, the latter being Sunday. The demand is for stock at moderate prices and there is every indication that the Chicago market will be able to take good care of the buyers in such a fashion that they can make a good profit on Memorial day business.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at the Union restaurant May 7, with a good attendance, considering the inclement weather. The evening was devoted to a discussion of the financial affairs of the club. All bills from the rose show were ordered paid. An accounting for the San Francisco relief fund was ordered and it was directed that all subscribers be given the opportunity to turn the percentage of refund to the club treasury, as a number present announced their intention of doing. The trustees reported that arrangements practically had been concluded for investing the Hartshorn fund in a home at Joliet for Mrs. Hartshorn. The sum available was slightly more than $1,800.

The president announced the appointment of George Asmus as chairman of the committee on sports in place of Philip Schupp, resigned. The committee was authorized to proceed to hold a picnic some Sunday in July.

The amendment to the by-laws, making the first Thursday of each month the regular meeting night, was adopted.

W. O. Johnson, of the Foley Mfg. Co., was proposed for membership.

Refreshments were served as usual.

H. E. Philpott, club member from Winnipeg, was present.

White Stock Out of Fashion.

Percy Jones says that, while it may be a little late to talk about Easter, still it has not been sufficiently impressed upon the growers that there is no special call for white for that floral festival. Mr. Jones asserts that people's taste has changed and that the growers do not realize it. Once upon a time nothing but white would answer for funeral work, and Easter called for white flowers; but now all sorts of colors go to funerals and the lily is the only white flower that is wanted at Easter. There is no doubt that the growers greatly overdid the white stock this Easter, for practically every colored flower was sold, and there was not a house in town that did not have white roses, white carnations and lilies left.

Various Notes.

Dominick Freres and Miss Mamie Muno were married at St. Henry's church, High Ridge, at 10 a. m., May 12. Mr. Freres was for some time buyer for the George Wittbold Co. and now is associated with J. J. Kruchten. The bride is the daughter of John Muno. The families of the north end growers have intermarried so that they are practically all one big family. The church was filled by florists and the reception which followed at the Muno home might easily have been taken for a trade convention. The Wietor, Reinberg, Zender and other families were present, and there was much hilarity throughout the day.

C. M. Dickinson says that E. H. Hunt is doing the largest business in fertilizers ever done in the month of May. He accounts for it partly on the ground that growers are replanting earlier this year than usual and sparing no pains to get a good start for next season.

C. W. Nelson is reported to have closed his store on Milwaukee avenue and retired from the flower business.

Bassett & Washburn say that shipping trade has increased greatly in the last week and has consumed everything they could supply.

A. P. Frey, head gardener at Lincoln park, has placed an order with Sharp, Partridge & Co. for a carload of glass for the greenhouses he is building at Crown Point, Ind.

William Engbrecht, on West Twenty-first street, says that his business has fallen off twenty-five per cent this season, and others in that vicinity make the same report. They say the trouble lies in that they are in a neighborhood of factory employees, many of whom have been laid off.

The E. F. Winterson Co. says there is a rush of counter trade in the seed and plant department every time the sun breaks through the clouds. They have recently received a shipment of large bay trees.

The Poehlmann Bros. Co. is this week planting carnations in the field. Up to May 12 they had not put a plant outside, but a number of houses had been planted with stock to be grown under glass all summer.

In the matter of the bankruptcy petition filed against the Drexel Floral Co., a settlement was arranged with the attorney for the petitioning creditors, but Judge Landis, the judge who soaked the Standard Oil Co., declined to sanction the compromise unless it had the assent of all the creditors, and the attorneys are still seeking a way of adjustment.

The A. L. Randall Co. has been receiving some excellent pink double stocks, which generally have sold out clean the moment the city buyers saw them.

B. G. Shaw, of the Shaw Fern Co., Pittsfield, Mass., has been in town this week.

C. W. McKellar reports excellent business with orchids. He says the demand is excellent and Cattleya Mossiae is now in full crop.

Kennicott Bros. Co. says there continues to be a remarkable call for green goods. All this season they have done more than ever before in this line, especially with ferns and boxwood.

Peter Reinberg is beginning to cut heavily on the new crop of Mrs. Marshall Field rose.

For many in the Chicago market there is special interest in the pictures of Sam Graff's store at Seattle, which appear elsewhere in this issue.

Fritz Bahr says business is good at Highland Park. When the weather permits outside work, he is keeping about thirty-five men going on landscaping.

One of the week's visitors was George L. Pennock, of Pennock Bros., Philadelphia. He was interested in the methods used in growing Beauties for this market.

The George Wittbold Co. is erecting a new concrete wall across the south end of its Buckingham place houses,

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Trade in retail circles was still reported quiet last week, although Saturday, May 9, stock became, all of a sudden, somewhat scarce and, of course, demand brisk, with the result that prices stiffened up a cent or two on carnations and roses. There were also quite a number of small social affairs throughout the week, which kept some of the uptown florists busy, and funeral work was more plentiful. The wholesalers say that they never saw stock so plentiful and so little doing as in the last few weeks, when they had to dump much good stock.

The market May 11 did not look as though it would be crowded this week. Roses and carnations are of good quality. Callas are plentiful and so are peonies and cape jasmine. Lily of the valley is of extra fine quality, but demand is light. A few large weddings booked for this week should help some of the west end florists.

Planting out will begin this week.

bedding stock. The big palm house is in specially fine shape. The two new houses built since Mr. Ostertag has taken hold are more modern and up-to-date than the old ones. The planting season has been backward, but the planting out will start this week in this and all the other parks, twenty-two in number, which come under his supervision. Mr. Ostertag has mapped out a large number of new designs in bedding this year, which will surprise some of the knowing ones when everything is finished up.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill., spent a day with friends in the trade here last week. Mr. Guy reports the plant trade slow, owing to the cold and rainy weather, with plenty of orders ahead for planting out when the weather permits.

Tuesday, May 5, about 8 p. m., the greenhouse men had quite a scare when a wind storm was accompanied by hail and a heavy rain. Fortunately, the hail was not large enough to do much damage to glass. The wind did some damage to fine trees throughout the city.

J. J. B.

RICHMOND, VA.—Ratliffe & Tanner are building some additional greenhouses. When these are completed, the company will have between six and eight acres under glass.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

The first week of May was unusually fresh, with favorable weather to start planting chrysanthemums and make cuttings. Every florist in New Orleans is now more or less busy with that important crop. Business in the line of plants is slackening and, in fact, has not been very brisk all the season. Field roses have been bad so far.

Club Banquet.

The larger part of the New Orleans Horticultural Society went in a body on Sunday, May 3, to partake of a dinner at Rose Villa, the beautiful place of A. Alost, on Gentilly road, a few miles from the city.

It looks as if the society could not exist without this annual reunion and, as in previous years, the members highly enjoyed themselves, being so well received by Mr. Alost and the ladies of the house.

The mayor of our city, Martin Behrman, was one of the guests and, to say the least, it was a sure proof of the esteem paid to the florists of New Orleans.

The others present were: John Eblen,

Jos. Steckler, H. S. Karstendick, Otto Abele, H. Y. Kraak, Otto Werner, L. Buchner, Paul Abele, B. M. Wichers, A. Alost, Chas. Eble, Prof. A. N. Rosenfeld, G. W. Eichling, P. A. Chopin, H. Papworth, Jacob Rauseh, Bernard Eble, J. A. Alost, T. Colongue, E. Valdejo, J. W. Muller, J. St. Mard. M. M. L.

OSSINING, N. Y.—V. Hugo Pilat has made a trip to the Pacific coast and is now sojourning at Santa Barbara, Cal.

FORT WAYNE, IND.—W. J. & M. S. Vesey have leased a room on Calhoun street, between Berry and Wayne streets, and will take possession July 1, using it as their downtown store. Mrs. Auger was formerly the downtown selling agent for the Vesey greenhouses. The new store will be run exclusively by the Vesey's themselves.

NEWARK, N. J.—As Ferdinand Bendt, who died of typhoid fever April 11, left no will, F. W. O. Schmitz, the florist of Princebay, N. Y., has been appointed administrator of the estate. Mr. Schmitz has also been made the guardian of the two children. The estate, as already stated in the REVIEW, is valued at about $200,000.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

It was raw enough at times last week to chill one's marrow, but forty-eight hours changed the whole face of nature and the week opened with perfect summer temperature. It ought to be a good week for both wholesale and retail departments of the cut flower industry. Let us hope the depression of the last four weeks has been lifted with the clouds. In other lines there is a return to normal and hopeful conditions and it will be a mighty strange thing if the florists' business does not share in the good times coming.

The growers of plants and bedding stock are in clover. The demand is greater than the supply. A visit to the early plant market demonstrates this. If this is not enough, then visit the several auction rooms and be confirmed. And best of all, good prices are the rule. There have been large importations for the auction markets also of retinospora, boxwood, hardy roses and shrubs, and the buyers are nearly all owners of suburban homes. A wonderful impetus has been given to the nursery business because of the new bridges and the great tunnels that have brought a population of many millions within thirty minutes of the center of the city. The seedsmen, too, have had a great season, both in mail and counter trade.

In the cut flower market Beauties are steady at the low level; $10 per hundred was the asking price most of last week for the best of them. There were enough and some to spare. Maid, Bride, Chateaufort and Richmond found 5 cents top, with few takers at that figure. Most of these were sold in the boxes and the buyer had his way. Orchids are scarce and steady. From now on the weddings will use them all. Cape jasmine is coming in large quantities from the south and prices are falling. Saturday's trade was good in carnations and the market took them all at slightly better rates. It is hardly expected the improvement will hold. Valley has not improved, nor lilies. The rest of the procession is marking time and there is no change worth reporting. An ocean of sweet peas sweeps in with the daily tide. Lilae, native and southern, comes in wagon-loads, excellent in quality and salable. The street men handle the most of it. Tulips are out of the running.

May 10, Mothers' day, was observed quite generally and the sales of white carnations, the flower designated by the Federation of Women's Clubs as appropriate, cleaned out the retail stores completely.

Club Meeting.

The May meeting of the Florists' Club was held Monday evening, May 11. President Weathered was in the chair.

I have much pleasure in forwarding another year's subscription to

THE WEEKLY
FLORISTS'
REVIEW

I consider it the best Florists' paper in the country, and would rather lose a night's sleep than miss one issue.

FRANK ALLAN.

Paterson, N. J., May 4, 1908.

The attendance was excellent and enthusiastic and much interest was manifested in the coming festivals of the club, the ladies' entertainment, the outing July 1, and the excursion in special cars to the great convention at Niagara Falls in August. Harry May read the resolutions of sympathy for the family of Miss Dean, daughter of James Dean, of Freeport, a former president of the club, and a young lady much beloved as a teacher in Brooklyn and greatly esteemed by all who knew her.

The transportation committee reported progress. The outing committee reported a most encouraging response by the club's members in the way of prizes and advertisements for its program, nearly every donation of 1907 already having been repeated. All arrangements are now completed, guaranteeing the usual success.

Will Rickards, chairman of the house committee, suggested early information as to the number likely to attend the ladies' evening, and liberal donations of flowers for decorative and distributive purposes. Mr. Rickards has already completed a fine musical program.

F. W. Lentz, Anton Schultheis, Jr., W. J. Bagley, C. W. Lynne, Thomas Kerr and E. H. Smith were elected members and A. S. Hogg, John Herliky, August Millang, B. Chadwick and Alex. H. Donaldson were proposed.

The resignation of Samuel Wittpen was accepted and that of George M. Geraghty, now a resident of Toronto, was received.

Henry Beaulieu, of Woodhaven, exhibited the giant white daisy and Mme. Perret pansies, for which he received the club's vote of thanks.

The house committee supplied the usual refreshments.

Various Notes.

R. J. Irwin, of H. H. Berger & Co., is on jury duty. He reports a great season's sales, far in advance of the firm's record.

Ladies' night at the Florists' Club is Wednesday, May 27. It is necessary to notify Will Rickards, at 37 East Nineteenth street, how many ladies will be present, to avoid any disappointment. Let him know by mail at once if you will be there and how many of the fair sex will be with you. It will be a gala night.

of lilacs and apple blossoms. So are Cotsonas & Co., Lecakes & Co. and the American Evergreen Co., all far more than they have handled in any past season. Many wedding decorations have used the flowering shrubs and tree limbs profusely.

Samuel Woodrow has disposed of a fine importation of bay trees, boxwood, aucubas and phoenix. He has just filled a large decorative order at the swell St. Regis hotel.

George Saltford moves next week to 43 West Twenty-eighth street, one of the finest wholesale cut flower stores in New York. His son, Clarence, has long been associated with him. They have added largely already to their list of growers since their intended move was announced in the columns of the REVIEW some weeks ago. Mr. Saltford was born in Wales in 1850, so he is a young man yet. His apprenticeship was with Veitch & Son, of Chelsea, London, England. He also worked in other large places in Europe, among them that of the Earl of Denbigh. In 1872 he came to America and located in Rhinebeck, where he has a fine property overlooking the Hudson. He wrote the book, "How to Make Money Growing Violets," and has 25,000 feet of glass devoted to violet culture, where his son George now presides. Mr. Saltford has been in the wholesale cut flower business on Twenty-ninth street for ten years. The move is well advised and success will be greatly increased on Twenty-eighth street, where concentration is much in evidence.

A garden of the Louis XV style is to be built for the great Plaza hotel. The big dining-room and Fifth avenue terrace is to be utilized for the purpose. The garden will be opened June 5. Natural flowers and plants will be used in profusion, the cost to be $25,000. It is the most ambitious floricultural project the hotels have ever attempted.

Arbor day last week was generally observed by the city schools.

Arthur T. Boddington is putting on the market an edging knife, the invention of F. Heather, gardener for A. K. Vanderbilt, Jr. The Rickards Bros., Thorburn, Elliott and the Stump & Walter Co. are also handling it, and the sales are said to be large.

Harry Bunyard is enjoying a rest in the south, after one of the most strenuous seasons in his career. The sad news of his brother Stewart's death reached him last week from southern Australia.

B. Rosens has a considerable quantity of wild smilax in a cold storage warehouse.

Charles Schenck, of Traendly & Schenck, is receiving congratulations because of the visit of the stork last week with a daughter.

Walter Mott, who has been with A. T. Boddington, has accepted the posi-

The Market.

Though last week was one of the most disagreeable as to weather, it was yet one to be thankful for. In the first place, it caused a shortening in the supply of stock; the bad weather kept many people at home and the phone order business of the stores was therefore greatly increased. There was quite a demand for funeral work, which used up the cheaper grades of flowers. Then the great May festival, the big society event, which takes place in this city every two years, brought out a demand for a high grade of goods and used up the better quality of stock. So, taken all in all, we have had a pretty good week, one in which all of us were able to do a little business, if not make a little money. It was a decided relief to see the buyers really anxious to get stock and, when the morning's rush was over, to find that you had about sold out.

The business seems to be gaining a better footing. The demand is picking up. There is not an oversupply, but just about enough stock to take good care of all orders. Should this condition continue, as it gives every promise of doing, perhaps we shall have a chance to make up a little of what we have lost in the last two months. I suppose, though, that we should be satisfied if the business is able to get back on a paying basis, as it will then be doing more than many other kinds of business. It does seem that there is a tendency toward better things in all lines of business.

Carnations, for a change, are not equal to the demand. Especially is this true of white. Red ones are just about equal to it. Some growers say that they will stay this way till the end of the season; others, that a few days of bright weather will bring out a heavy supply again, so you can take your choice.

Roses continue in good supply, but the demand was heavy enough to keep the price up on all stock that was at all good. Should they continue as during the last week, no one will have any kick coming.

In other stock, sweet peas are going first-class. Outdoor valley is also selling well. What peonies come in find a ready market. Indoor bulbous flowers are about done for, and in the outdoor only a few tulips are in now. Some New York violets are still to be seen, but their days are numbered. Callas have been good property, but Harrisii sell slowly and at starvation prices.

Various Notes.

On Wednesday, May 6, we had a regular cloud-burst; it was a terrible down-pour of rain, mixed at times with hail. There was no damage reported, the hail scarcely being hard enough to cause much breakage of glass.

W. A. Chalfant, of Springfield, Mo., who, besides his interest in floriculture, is also much interested in music, was a visitor, attending the May festival.

Ben Delaney is rejoicing in the arrival of a 10-pound girl May 5. Mr. Delaney has been on the road for many years traveling for J. Chas. McCullough and is well known throughout the country among the seed trade, who will be glad to join his Cincinnati friends in congratulating him.

Auction sales are now in order. J. A. Peterson is holding one on Walnut Hills and reports good sales. Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., are also in this way disposing of some fine stock. It consists of hardy roses, flowering shrubs, evergreens, hedge plants, hardy herbaceous perennials, besides many varieties of trees, vines, etc.

Miss White, of Lexington, Ky., was a caller May 11. She reports that she is highly satisfied with the business this spring. Miss White is a conservative business woman. She knows what her customers want and thus she has a strong hold upon a large and profitable trade in Lexington.

Chas. Weltz, of Wilmington, O.; Chas. Dieterich, of Maysville, Ky., and Martin Reukauf, much famed in florists' supplies, were visitors. C. J. OHMER.

WASHINGTON.

Business in the District.

Business still keeps up and there is plenty of good stock, especially roses, which are up to the midwinter average. Violets are about over. There has been an unusual demand for orchids. A great many Beauties and large baskets were sent to the capitol to Senator Penrose, who has returned after a serious illness. The death of Mr. Sullivan, the head of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, called for several large pieces. A large standing wreath, a 6-foot cross and a 6-foot panel with a spray of valley and orchids were sent by the employees of the bureau.

From present indications there will be something doing in decorating for June weddings.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held May 5 in the Gude building. It was also a social session. Three new members were elected: Frank Slye, T. W. Dunbar and O. A. C. Oehmler. The Sunday closing bill now pending in Congress was discussed at length, but no action was taken by the club. The executive committee was given power to make recommendations. Those who took part in the debate were F. H. Kramer, William F. Gude, Theodore Dieterich, Geo. C. Shaffer, Nathan Hammer and John Robinson. During the social session Prof. Charlemagne Koehler, an honorary member of the club, was the center of interest. He rendered selections from Italian operas and related some of his experiences in Ireland. Mr. Taylor sang several solos.

Mr. Lewis, of the Agricultural Department, told several stories and was assisted by Chas. McCauley. An excursion will be held at Chesapeake Bay the latter part of June to raise money to send the bowling team, representing the club, to the S. A. F. convention at Niagara Falls.

At the suggestion of Mr. Kramer, a vote was passed recommending that the club attend in a body a special benefit entertainment for Prof. Koehler to be

The Rising Eastern Market.

A friend remarked casually on Monday of last week that it was "Quaker Week." The full significance of this statement was hardly realized by most of us until Saturday night, when a summing up of the weather conditions showed that we had had next to no sun, a superabundance of rain, and cold weather, most unusual for the early days of May. The effect of this weather on the market was marked. Production was cut down considerably. Quality was improved where the growers spared no pains to keep their stock in the best possible condition, but quality was lost by those who left any stone unturned in this direction. The demand improved considerably, owing, of course, partly to the havoc among outdoor flowers caused by the rain, and partly to other conditions. Saturday saw the best clean-up the market has experienced for many weeks. Monday there was a fair demand, with better average prices than have been realized since the terribly low prices first set in. These better average prices do not indicate so much any advance as they do a diminution of waste.

The principal cause of business activity was Mothers' day, May 10. This floral festival was probably the greatest surprise of the year, even to the knowing ones. The street asserted that a lady on Twelfth street (no, not 108 South, but some twenty hundred and something north) wrote a letter to one of the local dailies urging that everybody celebrate Mothers' day "in honor of the best mother in the world—your mother and my mother, be she living or be she dead," by wearing a white carnation. This suggestion, taken up by the dailies, caught the popular fancy. The result was a tremendous demand for white carnations and for other flowers on Saturday, May 9. Many were given away in the Sunday schools and by enterprising business firms, and many were sold by the retailers to their customers.

The market was in shape for this onslaught. White, which has been fearfully overdone all through the spring, was in great evidence on Saturday morning. By noon on Saturday the wholesalers felt the demand, and by night they were completely cleaned up of everything in the shape of a white carnation in their places.

Other flowers were affected to a greater or less extent. Beauties, where of quality, were in active demand; also cattleyas, and to some extent gardenias. Valley sold better than for a long time, though it is reinforced by the outdoor valley. Sweet peas are in demand, the medium grade stock being more prominent than the fancy. Peonies have made their appearance, locally grown, a soft pink variety chiefly. The greatest addition to the market, however, is the Spanish iris, which is fine. It comes from the south, in purple, lavender, white and yellow and is most decorative. Southern asparagus in bunches is plentiful, giving good value. Smilax is in fair demand, but rather scarce. The new crop of dagger ferns has made its appearance.

The H. F. Michell Co. to Move.

The street is much interested in the purchase of historic Tower Hall, 518 Market street, by the Henry F. Michell

Co. Tower Hall is a 5-story granite building stretching back all the way to Ludlow street, Nos. 511 and 513. The prosperity of the company has been admitted by the street for many years. The surprise is due to the fact of the move being made five blocks east of the present location, the street believing that the company would never move far from the Reading terminal neighborhood. Phil called on Henry F. Michell in regard to the matter. Mr. Michell stated that his company would not move from the present location at 1018 Market street until the lease expires in November, 1910. That the object in moving is primarily to secure more space, the new building giving fully fifty per cent more space than the present quarters. Regarding the location, Mr. Michell said that business conditions were changing on Market street near the Reading terminal. He said that many of their best customers decline to come to the store at all on account of the throngs of cheap buyers by whom they are jostled and retarded. He believed that all their best customers would be carried with them to the new location, and the undesirable ones to some extent eliminated. J. A. Smith, manager of the company, thought the move would be an excellent one, as the efficient staff of

Various Notes.

Pennock Bros. had some handsome orders for the funeral of N. Brooke Dolan last week. Among them were three large wreaths, one containing nearly 200 cattleyas; another of equal size made of cattleyas and other orchids. A third, also large, was made entirely of gardenias.

Prof. Stewardson Brown, of the Academy of Fine Arts, gave an illustrated lecture before the Germantown Horticultural Society May 11, on "Weeds and Their Distribution."

William J. Muth and W. E. McKisick concur in believing that it would be well to give father a day, suggesting the possibility of colored carnations to honor that anniversary.

Joseph Swearer, manager, is installing two new boilers at Holland, Pa.

The Florex Gardens have commenced to build two new greenhouses about 30x200 feet each for carnations, at the new place at North Wales, Pa. Inquiry at Eugene Bernheimer's elicited the information from Benjamin Gibbs, Mr. Bernheimer's right-hand man, that carnations had proved a most successful crop at North Wales, and that the two houses, 30x150 each, at present devoted to the divine flower, were entirely insufficient to meet the demands. Mr. Gibbs said that the Enchantress and Beacon from the Florex Gardens had been equal to anything in Philadelphia this season.

Henry Sonneborn, Jr., of the Mt. Airy Floral Exchange, reports a satisfactory business in all branches. Mr. Sonneborn is running the old Billger & Blakeborough place on Germantown avenue, near Allen's Lane.

Eugene Weiss will plant 1,500 Killarney roses at his Hatboro place. Mr. Weiss believes that Killarney is better than Bridesmaid.

business will be equal to if not ahead of that of any previous season.

Walter P. Stokes reports a phenomenal demand for seed corn. He stocked heavily with this commodity and is practically sold out.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have received large shipments of florists' supplies on the steamer Marquette. Mr. Berkowitz says that for midseason business is remarkably active, the demand for metallic wreaths being especially heavy.

Godfrey Aschmann has cleared up every vestige of Easter, his place now resembling a garden of spring plants.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business remains poor. It is many years since there was such a glut of flowers at this season. All seem to suffer alike. While the grower of the best grades secures a sale, prices are far from satisfactory, and for the poorer quality flowers no reasonable offer is refused. The restrictions recently placed on street fakers have not mended matters. These have always proved a blessing when the market has been heavily supplied and the removal of a portion of this support even is regrettable. Roses are abundant and the continuance of cool weather keeps the quality excellent. Prices are, however, low. The same is to be said of carnations, which remain of splendid quality. A few double violets still arrive, but they now cut little figure. Sweet peas are in heavy supply. The finest sell at fairly good prices. Gladioli, both of the Colvillei and large flowered hybrids, are abundant.

Liliums are plentiful, and for lily of the valley calls are slight. Stocks of various colors, cornflowers, antirrhinums and marguerites are all abundant but selling poorly.

Prospects for Memorial day trade are good. In spite of the prevalent depression, the volume of business is not expected to fall far behind that of 1907.

Exhibition.

The show at Horticultural hall, May 9 and 10, while perhaps less extensive than usual, owing to the cold and backward season, contained some excellent exhibits. The herbaceous calceolarias from James Crosbie were splendid. He had a dozen plants averaging a yard in diameter and secured both first and second prizes for same. W. Whitman, M. Sullivan gardener, had the best half dozen show and fancy pelargoniums. The same exhibitor had some nice zonals and was first for twelve pans of late flowering tulips, as also for forty-eight blooms tulips not less than twelve varieties.

W. N. Craig was first for fifty vases of narcissi; W. Whitman, second. Mrs. A. W. Blake, J. L. Smith gardener, was first and third for forty-eight pansies; Mrs. E. M. Gill, second. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had an extensive collection of named single tulips. W. W. Rawson Co. had a small table of tulips and narcissi. Mrs. E. M. Gill had a good general display. James Cartwright, gardener to J. R. Leeson, had some good orchids, including a well-flowered Aerides Lobbi. J. T. Butterworth had some excellent lily of the valley in pots, also a fine form of Cattleya Mossiae with extra large flowers, named Mrs. J. T. Butterworth, awarded a first-class certificate.

Harvard Botanical Gardens, Robert Cameron gardener, had a large table of spring flowers, including some seventy-five varieties of narcissi. W. S. Spaulding, F. E. Cole gardener, had a large table of antirrhinums, roses, carnations and other seasonable flowers. W. N. Craig had a large vase of Phlox Miss Lingard and tulips. Mrs. F. Ayer, George Page gardener, had a fine lot of Spanish iris.

MAKE YOUR ADVERTISING EFFECTIVE!

You've got to, if you hold trade and build trade. It's an age of effective advertising, and the people are going to the store that makes use of up-to-date publicity methods. If you have the goods—dependable stuff of superior quality—the right kind of advertising will make yours the flower store of your city. Without this advertising, your store will be passed by on the other side by the buying public, which, however, will bestow its favors on some one of your more up-to-date competitors.

You're too busy to prepare good ads? Granted. Suitable illustrations have cost too much? Granted. You'd use better ads if they were supplied you "ready made," as in other lines, at reasonable prices? That's our business. The samples below show that we are "making good"—and our prices are right.

MEMORIAL DAY FLOWERS

The beautiful custom of honoring those who laid down their lives in sacrifice to the principles for which they fought, and showing a tribute to our loved ones who have died, by covering their graves with flowers at least once a year, is one of the most inspiring and poetic breaks in the busy life of our country; and it is to our credit that Memorial Day is observed with increasing interest each year. The proper observance of the day requires

The Right Kind of Flowers

—just such flowers as we have in profusion at our Flower Shop, and the artistic manner in which we arrange them, lifts our work way above the commonplace. Prices are right, too, for with the extra quality of our flowers, and our extra skill in arranging them, our prices are low—no higher than others charge for inferior quality and work. Particular attention is paid at this season to Memorial Day Flowers, whether loose or in designs. We make a special point in delivering them correctly and promptly.

DAYTON, OHIO.

State of Trade.

Comparing last week's business with that of the week previous, we can but say that there was a decided improvement. All of our local florists seemed to be getting their share, and a look of satisfaction was visible on most of their faces. The undesirable weather did not seem to make any difference this time, for it continued stormy all the week. The dull weather checked the crops to a considerable extent, and consequently cut flowers, in general, were scarce, and a sufficient amount of home grown stock to supply the demand was difficult to find, although, we can safely say, had it not been for an overabundance of funeral work, we would be unable to give such a favorable report.

The supply of carnations is reduced to about one-half the usual quantity, while roses are doing fairly well, and, of course, short crops mean advanced prices. Longiflorums are being used extensively in designing, and they give complete satisfaction. Callas are somewhat reduced in size, but the demand has been good, and valley finds ready sale. Some of our florists are cutting fine smilax, for which there is a good call.

Bedding plants, in general, are selling rapidly. It may also be added that prospects look promising for a fine crop of home grown peonies, which will, without a doubt, be in for Decoration day. furnishes a safe retreat for cockroaches, snails and woodlice, the principal enemies of cattleyas. Set the stems of the plants well above the rim of the pot, and ram the peat firmly around the roots. Test the firmness of the potting by holding the potted plant up by the leaves. It should not disturb the plant.

The potting should take place just before the new growth commences, and while the roots are fairly dry. After the plants have been potted, water should be withheld for several days in order to allow the injured roots to heal. Water sparingly at first.

In topdressing the plants remove as much of the old peat as possible without injuring the roots and work a good coating of finely chopped peat over the surface.

THE READERS' CORNER.

Moles in the Greenhouse.

We have had the same trouble as A. Caspers and we found that it was the short-tailed field mouse that was doing the damage. If there is no place for them to hide, a good cat will clean them out. We also had trouble with moles for two or three years, but they did no damage except to raise the plants out of the ground. After trying patent traps and poisons for a long time, with no success, we finally got rid of them with a home-made trap.

F. STORRS.

STAMFORD, TEX.—The Stamford Floral Society is making arrangements to hold a flower show in the fall.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.—Grant Newport's barn was struck by lightning April 23 and burned to the ground. The flames also destroyed about forty feet of one greenhouse. The loss was $1,500, half of which was covered by insurance.

furnishes a safe retreat for cockroaches, snails and woodlice, the principal enemies of cattleyas. Set the stems of the plants well above the rim of the pot, and ram the peat firmly around the roots. Test the firmness of the potting by holding the potted plant up by the leaves. It should not disturb the plant.

The potting should take place just before the new growth commences, and while the roots are fairly dry. After the plants have been potted, water should be withheld for several days in order to allow the injured roots to heal. Water sparingly at first.

In topdressing the plants remove as much of the old peat as possible without injuring the roots and work a good coating of finely chopped peat over the surface.

THE READERS' CORNER.

Moles in the Greenhouse.

We have had the same trouble as A. Caspers and we found that it was the short-tailed field mouse that was doing the damage. If there is no place for them to hide, a good cat will clean them out. We also had trouble with moles for two or three years, but they did no damage except to raise the plants out of the ground. After trying patent traps and poisons for a long time, with no success, we finally got rid of them with a home-made trap.

STAMFORD, TEX.—The Stamford Floral Society is making arrangements to hold a flower show in the fall.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.—Grant Newport's barn was struck by lightning April 23 and burned to the ground. The flames also destroyed about forty feet of one greenhouse. The loss was $1,500, half of which was covered by insurance.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., George S. Green, Chicago; First Vice-pres., M. H. Duryea, New York; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland. Twenty-sixth annual convention at Hotel Pontchartrain, Detroit, Mich., June 23 to 25, 1908.

W. H. SEEDORFF, Battle Creek, Mich., is again in the seed business.

WARING'S SEED STORE, El Reno, Okla., is now at a new location, 102 North Rock Island avenue.

THE Lohrman Seed Co., Detroit, removed May 11 to its new building at Randolph street and Gratiot avenue.

WALTER MOTT, who has been with A. T. Boddington, New York, has taken the management of the Yuess Gardens Co., Newburg, N. Y.

F. H. HENRY, assignee of Clucas & Boddington Co., New York, has sent out a notice to creditors that he will, June 24, ask the court to approve the final settlement of the assignee's account.

REPORTS from the marsh onion fields of the different states are to the effect that about the usual quantity of seed is going into the ground, and that for the most part seeding is finished and in many locations a fair stand is now showing.

THE market gardeners of the central west are beginning to complain about the weather. Crops of radishes and spinach that ought to be ready for market by the end of May will hardly come in until well into June. This means quite a loss in a money way to them.

W. ATLEE BURPEE, who, with Alex B. Scott, is in Europe, cables that Alex Dickson & Sons have won their case at law to restrain other parties from making use of the name of Dickson in such a way as to create confusion in the minds of the buyers. An injunction has been granted and the costs put on the defendant.

QUITE a quantity of bulbs have been set out for an onion seed crop in the central west sections. The majority of the smaller onion growers have patches large enough to give them a sufficient supply of seed for next year if it does well. Quite a number of the larger growers are also aiming to harvest their own seed in 1908. When a start is once made it seems that there is no limit to it. This condition of things will have an effect on the price of onion seed and will help the California growers to make better deliveries, in all probability.

THE seed trade will be interested in the note on the move of the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, on page 22 of this issue.

THERE is to be a meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago, at 10:30 a. m., Saturday, May 16.

THE weather at Chicago is still unfavorable for seeding and the onion set men who still have large acreages to seed are getting on the anxious seat.

THE pickle men are preparing to put out large acreages of the pickling varieties of cucumbers this year. The vats at the salting stations are said to be lower than for some years and a good harvest of pickling cucumbers in 1908 is a necessity from the pickle man's standpoint.

THE bean growers find it difficult to get farmers to take on acreages of garden beans, because of the high market value of the navy variety. The farmer claims that the white navy bean is a better producer than any of the garden varieties and that less care is needed to put it in marketable shape.

it is in the middle west, and the weather in the east also has been better. In the corn states planting has not much more than begun.

THE corn planting season is at hand, but the weather is bad for planting; consequently, trade in the seed corn line is not up to the mark.

REPORTS from the pea growing sections for the week are meager, but in general where reports are made the conditions are not so favorable as they might be.

CONGRESS is expected to adjourn about May 23. The only legislation of interest to the seed trade is the passage of the agricultural appropriation bill by the senate, providing for the seed distribution, and the possible enactment of the insecticide law.

LAST season a representative of Strawson's, 71a Queen Victoria street, London, England, called upon a number of the representative seed houses of the United States for the purpose of interesting them in the firm's products, chief of which is Vaporite, a powder for sprinkling on the soil and digging in before planting or sowing, after which it destroys insects, etc., infesting the plants. It has been tried by some of the experiment stations and has given results which have led to its trial on a commercial scale this season. It is reported from England that remarkable results have been obtained through the use of Vaporite and it is being exploited largely there.

GRASS SEEDS.

TOLEDO, O., May 12.—Cloverseed, December, $7.40; October, $7.35.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Timothy seed was steady at $4.24 for May and $3.25 to $4.25 for country lots. Clover seed was dull at $8 to $17 for cash lots.

REAPPRAISEMENT OF SEEDS.

The customs authorities have made the following reappraisements of interest to the seed trade:

GARDEN SEEDS.—From Cooper, Taber & Co., London, exported December 23, 1907; entered at Kansas City. File No. 48031. Entry No. 796. Findings of Somerville, G. A.: Beet, Detroit, Early Blood, Eclipse, Edmonds, Lentz, Egyptian and Crosby; entered at 32s, advanced to 40s per cwt. Add packing.

Of the total acreage of spring plowing contemplated, 66.6 per cent is reported as actually done up to May 1, as compared with 71.5 per cent at the corresponding date last year, and 65.9, the mean of the averages so reported in the last ten years.

Of spring planting 54.7 per cent is reported as having been completed May 1, as compared with 47 per cent May 1, 1907, and 52.6 per cent May 1, 1906.

IMPORTS.

The imports of seed through the port of New York for the week ending May 2 were as follows:

RUFFLED GLADIOLI.

The variation of crimped petals has recently been referred to by several growers, but such a reasonable outcome of cross-breeding is hardly entitled to the extravagant and wordy comment to which the subject has been treated. The first variation might have been considered "an event," but, as crimped petals are by no means new, numerous appearances on two continents, covering a quarter of a century, can hardly receive such a title with propriety.

The peculiarity is not new, in my experience, either with my own or foreign hybrids, and the variation, while a pleasing addition, by no means carries a variety above more important considerations of form and color.

The causes of this (and all) variation are simply heredity and environment. They are not sports, but the product of seed, from which every possible variation is to be expected, and the more elaborate and complex the parentage, the greater the ratio of surprises in form and color.

Some ten years ago I reported a case of true sporting or bud variation after apparent fixity. A beautiful scarlet ground color gave place in two seasons to cerise in one plant, and the new variety became an equally distinct type, after the original had multiplied to thousands.

The first season the new color covered the upper half of each flower on the spike, dividing equally at the mid-rib of the large lateral petals. The second season the whole flower assumed the new ground color and became a fixed type, all other markings, however, remaining unchanged.

Extremely intensive cultivation on the part of commercial growers should be practiced with care, to prevent disap-

CUTWORMS

Corn, Grain, Potatoes, Roots, Cotton, Vegetables and Flowers suffer enormous damage from Cutworms, Eelworms, Ants, Slugs and all kinds of Bugs in the soil. Maybe you don't see them, but you pay for them—quit doing so and use Vaporite.

Vaporite is the new, marvelous English product—a non-poisonous powder. Just sprinkle it onto the soil and plow or dig in as directed before planting or sowing. It acts quickly—the insects are destroyed in a few days, so that your ground is free and fertile.

Vaporite is revolutionizing many branches of Agriculture.

The Question of Plant Registration.

So much matter has been published of late upon this subject, so much sharp criticism has been made, and so many have evidently failed to appreciate the purpose of plant registration that it seems desirable that the position of the society upon this point, as understood by its officers, should be made plain.

Many of the recent writers seem to confuse the registration of a name with a certificate of merit. The writer's idea of the matter is that the act of registry has to do mainly with the ownership of the name, and in this connection the value of the plant is of no importance.

The registry of a name is an announcement to the public that a certain person has selected that name for a variety of some class of plants, and equitably vests the ownership of that name in the person registering it, always provided that some other person has not previously selected the same name for a variety of plant of the same class. The value of the plant to which he proposes to apply the name does not enter into the proposition at all. The publication of an application for registry is notice to the public at large, and the main purpose of making such publication is to cause anyone having knowledge that the same name had previously been used for a variety of the same class of plants, to make that fact known.

The duplication of names, the writer ventures to assert, has been, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, a matter of oversight or error and not an intentional deception, and while there have been many cases, since the society first started to register varieties, in which application has been made to register a name previously used for another plant of the same class, the writer does not believe that there has been a single instance in which, when the facts were brought out by the publication of the application, the duplicate name has not been promptly withdrawn and never subsequently made use of by the originator in any way. Everyone will recall numerous instances of this kind during the last few years.

We are not, of course, at this time discussing plant names from the point of euphony or utility. Setting this question aside, the only matters in which the horticulturist is interested regarding the name of a plant are, first, that it shall not be a name which has previously been applied to another variety of the same class; second, that it shall not be a new name applied to a plant which has previously been given another name. the writer believes, proved very efficacious so far.

When the time comes that the society has ample funds at hand, has greenhouses of sufficient extent and growing grounds to supplement them, and has in its employ and under its control a corps of expert growers and plantmen and a large collection of growing specimens, as well as a complete herbarium, it will then be in a position to investigate matters pertaining to the identity of plants with a reasonable possibility of certainty in the results; but if it should undertake such investigations, attempt to do such work and assume to pronounce authoritatively upon such subjects now, it would inevitably be led into error, its work would be discredited and more harm would be done in the long run than any possible good which might be accomplished.

The publication of these applications for registry has brought cases of re-naming to light in the past and will do so in the future. It is, of course, desirable and is the intent of the society to require full information as to the origin of plants for which registry application is made, and to require a reasonable description of the same, so there are not likely to be many cases in which a second use of the same name will escape the sharp eyes of the many shrewd plantmen who read the trade papers.

While registry is made after waiting a reasonable interval subsequent to publication, yet there is nothing to prevent complaints being filed at a later date, and while the writer is inclined to think that a registry once made and entered must stand unless properly withdrawn, yet in case of a proved error in which the person making the registry refuses to withdraw it, it would be the duty of the secretary to make public in the press, and to print in the annual volume in connection with the registry, a full statement of the facts.

It is accepted in all matters of plant naming that priority of publication establishes the name. Registry by the S. A. F. fixes and records the date at which each name is selected, provides a way to authoritatively settle disputes in subsequent years, and gives notice to all persons subsequently desiring to name plants of the same class that the name in question has been used and is to be avoided.

The foregoing sets forth, as far as the writer understands it, the present intent of plant registry by this society. Further than this, under present conditions, it does not seem either feasible or desirable to go. The submission of all applications for registry to the nomenclature committee has been suggested. It might be well to state that the society at the present time has no nomenclature committee, and it would seem a matter of great difficulty to get a committee of this kind, which would have to consist of men of great knowledge and be provided with facilities for growing, comparing and testing varieties. It would seem, I repeat, a matter of great difficulty to get such a committee, who would undertake and carry out the vast amount of work which it has been suggested should be loaded upon their shoulders, as they could be given no adequate compensation for their services.

Another question would be the long delay which would occur before any plant could be registered, and also the hostility of the introducers which would surely follow any attempt to put burdensome restrictions upon them.

It should be made easy to register plant names instead of difficult.

W. N. RUDD, Secretary.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Mushrooms in light supply and high. Cucumbers steady. Radishes and rhubarb quiet. No. 1 cucumbers, $2.50 to $4 box; No. 2 cucumbers, $1.50 to $2 box; lettuce, 35c to 75c doz.; mushrooms, 30c to 90c lb.; radishes, $1.75 to $2.50 per 100 bunches; rhubarb, $1.50 to $2 per 100 bunches; mint, 25c to 50c doz. bunches.

BEANS UNDER GLASS.

"While beans are not grown commercially under glass," said Wm. Turner, of Oceanic, N. J., in a talk before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, "they are very acceptable for the private table, and far superior to any that can be procured in the open market during the winter months; therefore, for private greenhouses beans are to be highly recommended as a forced vegetable. When grown successfully it is surprising the quantity that can be gathered from them. There are two methods of growing this crop—in pots or on raised benches. If grown in pots, half fill 6-inch or 7-inch pots with fairly rich, porous soil, then plant about six beans in a pot. As the beans grow keep adding soil by degrees, until filled. It takes about seven weeks to mature a crop grown in a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees at night, with 70 to 75 day temperature. The bench system is my preference, as there is not so much labor and attention required, and results are equal, if not better."

ONIONS UNDER GLASS.

I noticed a short time ago a very useful article on celery. Would you give us one on onions? Will it be any advantage to sow in a greenhouse and plant out like sets? What varieties are most profitable and would they grow well in a black soil with clay subsoil? It is a little wet, but I thought I could make raised beds. J. M.

It is advantageous to sow onions indoors and plant out later, insofar that it lengthens the season and gives a much larger onion, but our experience is that the onion does not keep so well as smaller sized onions grown entirely outdoors. You are too late for this season to give this method a fair trial, as for best results seeds should be sown in January, in flats, pricked over once to prevent the plants from becoming drawn and weakly, and the plants should be hardened off gradually before setting out time, which in your section would be about the beginning of May.

Your soil ought to suit them, as onions like a rather heavy soil. The varieties usually grown are the large growers, like Prizetaker and Elsa Craig, but I have tried some of the older kinds, such as Yellow Globe Danvers and Southport White Globe, with good results.

WM. SCOTT.

MUSHROOMS ON TOMATO BEDS.

I have 250 feet of hotbed, with eighteen inches of manure for bottom heat. It was planted to lettuce and in April I grew tomato plants. After May 15 the bed will be vacant and I should like to know if I could grow mushrooms on it. Would it be profitable? If so, please state how to plant them. I have about four inches of soil on the manure. C. R.

I am sorry to have to throw cold water on your idea, but I do not for one moment think that you would have any success. In the first place, your bed would be too far spent to supply sufficient heat to get the spawn to spread freely. And in the second place, if you did succeed in getting mushrooms they would be rendered useless by the attack of the mushroom mite, which I find always proves troublesome with us through the late spring and early summer months. WM. SCOTT.

DETROIT.

The Market.

There was a marked scarcity of stock last week, brought about by cloudy weather and a good demand. Of course, the falling off of spring stock had its effect as well. Business remains quite brisk.

The unveiling of the Schiller monument on Sunday called for about thirty wreaths for the different German societies. Most of these were made of leucothoe, laurel, boxwood, etc. Many were also made of flowers, and some of these were wonderful creations, to place on a newly unveiled monument.

With the advent of the warm weather there is a demand for laurels and boxwoods, and as but few in the trade handle them in this city, these reap the profits.

Club Meeting.

The last regular meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club was held on the evening of May 6. There was but a small attendance and the meeting was not called to order until late in the evening.

Michael Bloy was unanimously elected a member of the club. Mr. Bloy but recently took up his residence in Detroit, where he has purchased the Rackham place.

A. Coggan, of Canada, made application for membership in the club. His application will be voted upon at the next meeting.

The president called on the different members present for their version of the Easter trade, and a summing up of the whole showed general satisfaction.

There was some talk of a ball game between teams representing the two wholesale houses, but nothing definite was done.

For some reason there is a lack of interest in the affairs of the club and the attendance does not compare favorably with meetings of previous years, when fully fifty per cent turned out. The program committee has promised something startling for the next meeting, and it is to be hoped that the boys will turn out in large numbers.

Various Notes.

Assistant Park Commissioner William Dilger acted as chief marshal in the parade on Belle Isle, Sunday, May 10. He made a striking appearance on horseback.

Maurice Wolf is having a streak of hard luck. After being stung twice in succession by check forgers, his lease in the Lorraine was taken from him without a day's notice, and then, to cap the climax, about $28 worth of goods he had purchased at an auction sale was stolen while he was in search of an express wagon.

Philip Breitmeyer and Harry Hunter have been appointed members of a committee for the inspection of fruit trees and orchards, organized under a state law. This gives them the right to employ tree inspectors and to condemn those trees found to be diseased. D. S. Kimball has been hired as tree inspector and given orders to clean out the dead trees first.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.—The Exotic Nurseries have erected a lath house 150x200 for the purpose of growing palms. The proprietors of the concern are E. Le Jeune and A. Verhelle. They say they are well pleased with the way business is increasing.

SANTA CRUZ, CAL.—J. P. Parker has built another orchid house to provide space for his importations of orchids from the Philippines. The Leedham Bulb Co. reports a very successful season, the shipments of daffodils being the largest in the history of the company.

SOQUEL, CAL.—Two of the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Grant were married May 6, Maud Ethel to Walter S. Miller and Alda Rose to Harold L. Graham. The ceremony was performed on a veranda which was completely enclosed by Lamarque roses in full bloom, and the brides' bouquets were huge bunches of natural orange blossoms. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside in Naramata, B. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Graham in Oakland, Cal.

ASPARAGUS IN CALIFORNIA.

Shade House Culture.

The growing of asparagus for cutting for florists' use has become one of the side issues with many of our California greenhouse men. Within the last few years the demand has become so large that a grower must have quite a space devoted to this particular article if he wishes to be able to make a reasonable cutting several times a season. It was originally supposed that this article could only be successfully cultivated under glass, but we have discovered within the last couple of years that it can also be grown in a shade house under the same conditions in which smilax is handled. The advantages in growing it under glass are that it produces a lighter shade of foliage, grows quicker in the cold weather and has a tendency to be less coarse in texture. These are all good points; nevertheless, for general usage, the cut branches of outside stock can be used in almost any floral design or bunch of flowers.

The asparagus is a gross feeder and this will be found one of the principal considerations when planted in open beds. Soil that is not too heavy, with a heavy coating of rotted manure, is all that is necessary for this end of the proposition. See that the house is built where there will be no excess of water to collect in the winter time, as asparagus does not stand as much moisture at the root as smilax, and although they may not water-kill during the wet season, they are bound to be greatly weakened before the growing season begins again in the spring. To make the condition assured, the beds should be raised six inches above the surrounding soil. This will greatly diminish the tendency of absorbing too much moisture by the root.

Compared with the same space of bench room under glass, except for the texture and heaviness of the outside grown stock, there is little difference. The outside grown plants usually give but two good cuttings per year, while those under glass can be figured as producing three. During the long winter and early spring months but little stock will be cut from that grown outdoors, but it commences to sprout out early in the spring, and in a few weeks the branches will have attained five or six feet in length. They can be readily trained on either string or wire stakes. With regard to the keeping quality of the shade house stock, there is little difference between it and the other.

Not over three crops can be figured on during the season outside, and if sufficient moisture and enrichment are given several times during the year there should be no trouble in getting splendid returns on the small outlay assumed in planting asparagus in a shade house.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

San Francisco and vicinity are in the midst of entertaining the sailor boys, and the town has assumed a gala appearance. The effect has been to stimulate trade to quite an extent, and bright colored flowers have been used lavishly, both for decorating and for hand bouquets. The street hucksters have been reaping a harvest in handling bunches and the stores have had a busy time for the last few days. The greatest amount of trade, however, has fallen to the green goods men, and thousands of bunches of huckleberry, grass and wild ferns have been used in the various functions around town.

There was a slight stiffening noticeable in the early part of the week, and the growers showed an inclination to

Pacific Coast Business Chance.

Being obliged to give up work on account of sickness, the owner of a controlling interest in a clean and good paying business will sell. This is a growing and shipping business, trade well established and extending to Atlantic coast. No debts and money in bank. Rare opportunity for a good man (or two men) with ten to twelve thousand dollars cash to invest,—and the opportunity to live in "God's Country." Don't bother unless you have the capital to put up. make all points count, but the great quantity of stock being brought into town and the fact that outside stuff is now beginning to show itself in appreciable quantity have put everything down to bed rock again.

We were treated to a friendly shower during last week and this has proven a blessing to the growers, for not for a great many years has the soil been so parched in April as it was this season. The last rains we had were in the latter part of February, and when the dry winds of March made themselves felt there was but little moisture left on the surface.

Sweet peas have proven the most popular flower this season, and the quality is excellent. They have fallen slightly in price since the quotations of last week and the chances are that they held early in July, as last year's date was July 10 to 12. There is now every reason to believe that a large crop is in store for the cherry growers of the state, for this season, as the trees have bloomed bountifully and, as far as can be learned, they fully fertilized and a large crop of fruit has set.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Pres., J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; Vice-Pres., O. M. Hobbs, Bridgeport, Ind.; Sec'y, Geo. O. Seager, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., O. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. The 33d annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, June 10 to 12, 1908.

D. G. W. BRUSS, of Vander Weijden & Co., Boskoop, is at Chicago on his annual visit to the United States.

THE annual meeting of the American Association of Park Superintendents will be held at Minneapolis, August 11 to 14, with Messrs. Wirth and Nussbaumer a committee on arrangements.

NURSEYMEN at Des Moines differ as to the amount of damage to fruit interests in Iowa by the heavy frost April 30. Some have reports of heavy losses, while others say the damage was slight.

JOHN C. OLMSTED, of Brookline, Mass., has been at Frankfort, Ky., upon invitation of the State Capitol Commission, to consult with them concerning the beautifying of the grounds of the new capitol.

THE summer meeting of the Gulf coast nut growers will be held at Monticello, Fla., May 19 and 20. It will be attended largely by growers from Alabama, Florida and Georgia, with representatives from other sections.

MAY 2, 1908, 900 acres of rich table land at 2,000 feet elevation on the Queen & Crescent railroad at Anadel, Morgan county, Tennessee, was deeded to Joshua Jenkins, proprietor of Jenkins' Nurseries, Winona, O. This land is finely adapted for the raising of nursery stock and fruits, and a branch will be established there at an early date, more especially for the southern trade.

THOSE who have been watching the fruit situation predict the biggest crop of peaches in the history of Georgia. While the weather has hurt the fruit slightly in some sections, large numbers of new trees have come into bearing this year to add to the crop. Commission men say that Georgia should easily ship 6,000 carloads, an amount of fruit which will be worth approximately $2,000,000. Last year the total shipments were but little over 1,000 carloads. If Georgia ships 6,000 carloads of peaches this year it will be a record breaking crop. The record heretofore is but little more than 5,000 cars.

JOHN M. BELL, of Glencoe, Ill., has secured the contract for the beautifying of the grounds of the Glencoe station, on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. The space to be improved includes nearly four blocks, with the station in the center. In preparation for this piece of landscape work, the railroad company has moved the freight house to a more suitable part of the grounds and has delivered several carloads of soil, to be used in carrying out Mr. Bell's plan. Mr. Bell has a tract of four acres, on which he grows and displays his stock of plants, mostly hardy perennials. His business is of such a nature that he places little dependence on greenhouses, but makes large use of the hotbed and the coldframe. He expresses a high opinion of the King Humbert canna as a bedding plant.

NURSEY STOCK.—From Vincent Lebreton, Trelaze, exported Feb. 11, 1908; entered at New York. File No. 48290. Invoice No. 956. Findings of Hay, G. A.: Pommiers franes, 1 yr., 7 to 12m-m; entered at 21, advanced to 23 francs per 1000. Add cases and packing. Discount, 5 per cent.

NURSEY STOCK.—From H. M. Hardyzer, Boskoop, exported March 5, 1908; entered at New York. File No. 48500. Invoice No. 19503. Findings of Board No. 1: Advanced by disallowance of deduction of freight charges from Boskoop to Rotterdam.

SHRUB JOTTINGS.

Amelanchier Canadensis, better known as the shad-bush, while a common, native small tree from New England to the Gulf states, is well worthy of the attention of planters. May 4, in New England, its small, spreading and slender branches were smothered with the little nodding racemes of white flowers. On the shores of lakes and waterways they are beautiful and they should be more planted in such locations. While not at all particular as to soil, sometimes growing in mere beds of gravel, they appreciate good treatment and in moist land are especially fine.

Prunus triloba was this season in good bloom May 6 in Massachusetts. Everyone admires the beautiful, double pink blossoms of the flowering plum and, either as a single plant or in a mass, the latter preferably, it is very desirable. The flowers resemble small roses and the plants rarely grow over six feet in height.

Cornus Mas, or C. mascula, commonly called the Cornelian cherry, is the earliest of the dogwood family to bloom. It makes quite a handsome shrub, of dense growth, with glossy leaves. The showy yellow flowers, which appear before the foliage, were fully open, in the vicinity of Boston, this year April 26. The large, brilliant scarlet berries, which follow the fruit, are also attractive.

Cydonia Japonica pygmaea is a low growing form of the well-known fire bush or Japanese quince. The height never exceeds three feet, the plant having a prostrate habit. The flowers are deep scarlet and as large as in the type, and fruit is each season produced in great abundance. If any San Jose scale is to be found, it will probably be on this shrub. The cydonias seem to be special marks for this destructive pest.

VINES ON TREES.

Will some reader of the REVIEW please tell me if vines growing on trees were ever known to kill or injure the trees? In this part of Florida we have large pine trees covered with wistarias and bignonias. During last year's drought, pine trees that are probably seventy-five to 100 years old died here by the hundred, but the vine-clad trees escaped. None of these seemed to suffer at all, though the vines encircled them like a rope band. As the vines certainly took up as much water as the trees, this in itself ought under the conditions to have killed the trees, but it did not, as far as I can see, have any effect on them at all.

FAIR GROUND NURSERIES.

A tree nursery has been set out at the state fair grounds in Detroit by the Michigan Agricultural College, and Assistant Professor Sanford, of the forestry department, and corps of student assistants have just returned to Lansing from completing the work. The nursery consists of nearly an acre and contains about twenty species of Michigan trees. Some of the ground allotted for the purpose was set out with trees nearly four years old, but a greater portion of it is planted with seeds.

Prof. J. F. Baker is in Grand Rapids starting a similar nursery on the fair grounds of that city. The nurseries in both places are for exhibition purposes, to illustrate to the visitors at the fairs what can be done in the way of reforestation, and how it is done.

PECANS AND CATALPAS.

The Southern Nursery & Nut Co. owns about 200 acres of fine rolling land situated two miles east of Lafayette, La. Four years ago several acres of mother stock were set out and several tons of seed planted for grafting purposes. Today the field presents a beautiful appearance, over 100,000 young trees being in various stages of growth, from one to four feet in height. There are over twenty acres of seedlings now coming up, which will furnish grafting stock for probably a half million trees. Nothing but the finest varieties of pecans are propagated, among which are the Russell, Stewart, Pabst, Vandiemann, Schley, Frotcher and Success. About ten acres of these trees are now about four feet high and making strong and vigorous growth. M. W. Watson, of Ocean Springs, Miss., has recently taken charge of the nursery. The method of propagating is by ordinary cleft grafting. When the plants are two years old the stock is cut down below the surface of the ground and the scion inserted. The graft makes rapid growth under favorable conditions and is often bearing the seventh or eighth year. The company has a large tract of land in St. Landry Parish which will be planted to improved varieties of pecan and subdivided into small farms for investments. This section of Louisiana is admirably adapted to the pecan, and not only do the trees grow to great size, but are most prolific in bearing nuts. Besides

CARNATION CUTTINGS

We are in unusually good position to supply exceptionally well-rooted, healthy stock. We have such a large quantity of flowering plants that we propagate only from heel cuttings from flowering shoots. Our cuttings are rooted in light, sunny, airy houses, and we are sure will satisfy the most critical buyer.

A prominent carnation grower writes: "You seem to be the only firm in the business that knows how to pack stock and have it reach the buyer in good condition, and I have always found your cuttings cheaper than the same varieties from others at much lower figures."

While our prices may not always be the cheapest, we certainly can give, quality considered, as good value as, if not better than, is obtainable anywhere.

We offer also BEACON and RED CHIEF, from sand, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000. From soil, $7.50 per 100; $60.00 per 1000. Also VICTORY, MELODY, WHITE PERFECTION, from sand, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. From soil, $6.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000. VARIEGATED LAWSON, WHITE LAWSON and RED LAWSON, from sand, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. From soil, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. We can also supply WINONA and AFTERGLOW, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Buyers will find transplanted stock offered from soil well worth the difference in price.

WINSOR, which we introduced last year, has proved to be the finest novelty introduced in years. We think it is the most profitable variety grown today, considering its fine color, splendid keeping qualities, and productiveness. When properly grown, it leaves little to be desired, and almost everyone succeeds with it.

WHITE ENCHANTRESS, the best all-carnation on account of its large size, long stem, earliness, and productiveness. Our White Enchantress, exhibited at the Carnation Convention at Washington, was the only White Enchantress exhibited that received an award.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

As the result of the unfavorable weather the first part of the week, business all around was dull, but the last half was of a different tune. The demand was good and plenty of stock to fill orders was on hand, except good carnations, which were a scarce article and sold for double the price of the days previous. Roses, especially Richmond and Beauty, which are extra fine, are equivalent to demand. Valley is having its inning now, for there is quite a call for it. Bulbous stock is a thing of the past and the oversupply of Harrisii lilies, which has continued since Easter, is gradually letting up and returns are becoming more satisfactory.

Various Notes.

The rainy weather, which dates back to April 23, made everybody feel gloomy until May 9, when it turned to genuine May weather. We have had only five days out of eighteen without more or less rain, and no sunshine to speak of.

Local carnation growers are away behind in getting stock into the field. Up to May 10, only N. Zweifel and Gust. Pohl had made a start, with others waiting till their land gets into shape.

Mrs. Wm. Edlefsen and daughter, Valeria, sailed for Europe April 25, to make a trip of five or six months.

Miss Rose Semler reports business, both in wedding and funeral work, fine for the Edlefsen-Leideger Co.

Will Zimmermann, the Grand avenue florist, also reports a steady demand for cut flowers.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is receiving extra fine Beauties and Richmond.

Few members braved the wind and rain Thursday, May 7, and consequently only routine business was transacted at the last club meeting. The entertainment committee promised everyone a fine time at the coming annual May ball, to be held May 14 at the Deutscher Maenner Chor hall, Eighth and State streets.

It was also stated that only florists could compete at the state fair for

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

There has been quite an improvement in business and stock has shortened up all around. Smilax is scarce and there have not been nearly enough carnations to supply the demand.

The wholesale houses are cleaning up nicely on everything.

The retailers do not seem very busy, but all are doing enough to keep them moving.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met Tuesday, May 5, with a fair crowd present, and after attending to the regular business, took up the exhibits. First was a plant of calceolaria, shown by Mr. Marsden, gardener for R. H. Boggs. Every grower present admitted it was the best plant he had ever seen and the grower took the carpet to tell all he knew about growing calceolarias. He started out by saying they were easily grown and answered all questions put to him in a very satisfactory way. Now, there is one thing that is attracting attention at the club and that is that Sewickley is sending the fanciest stock coming to the club, but, judging from information gathered from time to time and allowing for the fact that the Sewickley people have plenty of money to buy everything good, it is the attention and intelligent care given their stock which enables these growers to bring in the kind of exhibits they are producing.

Other exhibits were a specimen Dendrobium thyrsiflorum in fine bloom, by Frank Cook, gardener for Jas. H. Parks, and an exhibit of general bedding stock by Mr. Bach; the varieties were not named, but he knew they were the kind that sold and brought the price and that was all he wanted. Schenley Conservatories showed a yellow calceolaria and other plants.

The club was informed that Wm. Hamilton, superintendent of Allegheny park for the last thirty years, had resigned and a committee was appointed to show the respect of the club, of which more later on.

G. L. Pennock, of C. & G. L. Pennock, Lansdowne, Pa., was a brief visitor. He had been doing the west and was on his way home. Hoo-Hoo.

BENTON HARBOR, MICH.—B. L. Hall is making arrangements to retire from business.

THE REVIEW is ahead of any other paper for florists and I cannot do without it.—H. W. WRIGHT, Amarillo, Tex.

Dreer's Offer of Select Roses

STRONG TWO-YEAR-OLD PLANTS in 5 and 6-inch pots, specially prepared for outdoor planting.

The Roses which we here offer are field-grown stock, either American grown or plants that have been imported from England and Ireland. We handle no Holland grown Roses.

These plants are all potted up during December and January, and were stored in cold houses; they are now growing freely and are in prime condition to sell to your retail trade; all are in 5 and 6-inch pots, according to variety.

NORWICH, CONN.

The annual meeting of the New London County Horticultural Society was held May 4. A lecture was given by Peter Zeuger, superintendent of Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., on "Outdoor Roses, Their Culture, Their Enemies, Feeding, Pruning and Winter Protection." The lecture was a great success.

T. W. Head, superintendent of the Morton F. Plant estate and president of the society, was not able to attend, but sent a fine specimen of Dorothy Perkins, grown in balloon form in an 8-inch pot; also a half dozen pots of strawberries, with some fine fruit on them.

A dozen fine pot roses were sent by Otto Earnst, of this city. A half dozen pot plants of wallflowers, with one spike to the plant, measuring twelve to fourteen inches long and five to seven inches through, were exhibited by Charles Beasley. A specimen of Spiraea Gladstone was exhibited by Mr. Gilbert.

Everything combined to make the evening an interesting one. C. T. B.

RIVERTON, VA.—Mary E. Tristoe will build a greenhouse during the summer at Front Royal, and expects to make her headquarters there after September 1.

DAHLIAS

Named varieties, dry roots, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

BRainerd, MINN.—Brainerd is to have two greenhouses. One is being erected for J. C. McClellan, the Laurel street florist, while the other is being erected by P. A. Erickson at 1103 Quince street.

DENVER.

State of Trade.

The May business compares favorably with last year, although stock is more plentiful this year than last, and the outlook for Decoration day is good. While the frost killed all the snowballs, lilacs and outdoor flowers, the call for carnations is likely to be almost as great as at Easter time, with just as good prices. And at this writing they are plentiful, with prices low.

The rose market shows no change, for stock is abundant. Beauties, especially the long-stemmed ones, are fine and sell well. The weather has been somewhat cool and, with a snow storm last week, was a little unfavorable, but apparently it did not lessen the crop materially.

Sweet peas are plentiful and are selling well at from 35 to 50 cents per hundred. Violets are about over, and what few are seen are small and short-stemmed. The bedding-plant men are now very busy.

Various Notes.

One of the Denver papers is offering many prizes to its readers for attractive grounds and yards, porches, window-boxes and other decorative gardening effects. This paper also prints some excellent articles on gardening subjects.

The Scott Floral Co. will move from the present location to 1506 Broadway June 1.

C. J. Davis, on Fifteenth street, discontinues his store June 10. He has rented his greenhouses on Lowell boulevard to C. A. Benson.

The Park Floral Co. is showing some of the beautiful Lady Gay rose, which is becoming exceedingly popular as a market plant.

Cape jasmine is now on the market and looks fairly good, being shipped in from Texas. The supply apparently is abundant and will be until Decoration day.

E. S. K.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Among the most interesting displays at the last exhibition of the Worcester County Horticultural Society was an exhibit of six plants of Salvia Zurich, by H. F. A. Lange. This plant was a decided novelty to most of the visitors and attracted much attention.

The Market.

Trade has been rather quiet for the last two weeks, outside of funeral work, which has been heavy, owing chiefly to the large number of deaths from typhoid fever. At the present writing over 700 cases have been reported and a good many cases have proven fatal.

Roses have been coming in fine and it is doubtful whether we ever had as good stock at this time of the year. Maids and Brides are especially fine. Carnations have not been plentiful, as they all seem to be off crop at present, but the quality is good.

The weather has been a killer on outside work, raining nearly every day, with a heavy snow storm thrown in about a week ago. The conditions have been such that there is no outside work done to speak of, and this means a hustle when the weather does open up.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting April 28, at Brother Bob Hesenauer's home, where he entertained the club with a fine Dutch lunch. He and his bride knew what to set out for the bunch and everyone had a pleasant evening.

The club ball was a grand success. About seventy-five couples ventured to go through the downpour of rain, and it was an evening long to be remembered. There were cut flowers galore for all present and the hall was nicely decorated for the occasion.

Gus Acherman has certainly had more than his share of trouble, as it is only a month or so since he lost his wife, and his brother was buried May 5.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is busy replanting part of its carnation range for early cutting. J. M.

YALAH, FLA.—R. J. James, of the Yalaha Conservatories, is at a sanitarium at Newport, Tenn., for a brief period of recuperation.

WENHAM, MASS.—The Ladies' Society of the Congregational church has completed its plans for the next floral carnival, which will be held August 12 and 13, and no effort has been spared to make the exhibition even better and more successful than last year. Special prizes have been offered by many business firms, including several in the florists' trade, such as B. Hammond Tracy, of this place; Southworth Bros., of Beverly, Mass.; W. W. Rawson & Co., R. & J. Farquhar & Co. and Thomas J. Grey & Co., of Boston, and others.

Here is a Business Book For Business Men

SECOND EDITION

THOROUGHLY REVISED AND BROUGHT UP TO DATE

NO SCIENCE, BUT LOTS OF PRACTICAL COMMON SENSE

"Find enclosed $5 for the Florists' Manual, by William Scott. It is the best book of the age on commercial floriculture and should be in the home of every gardener."—CONRAD FORBACH, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have several times been consulted by those who would make a beginning in the Florists' business. In each case I have said that the first step is to subscribe for a Trade Paper, and the next to procure a copy of The Florists' Manual."—J. A. VALENTINE, Pres. Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo.

No dry-as-dust botanical classifications, but tells you just how to produce marketable plants and cut flowers in the best and cheapest way.

TELLS you just what you want to know about every plant that there is any money in for a Commercial Florist.

Treats of over 200 subjects and is freely illustrated with fine half-tone engravings.

SECOND EDITION

BROUGHT UP TO DATE

NO SCIENCE, BUT LOTS OF PRACTICAL COMMON SENSE

"Find enclosed $5 for the Florists' Manual, by William Scott. It is the best book of the age on commercial floriculture and should be in the home of every gardener."—CONRAD FORBACH, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have several times been consulted by those who would make a beginning in the Florists' business. In each case I have said that the first step is to subscribe for a Trade Paper, and the next to procure a copy of The Florists' Manual."—J. A. VALENTINE, Pres. Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo.

No dry-as-dust botanical classifications, but tells you just how to produce marketable plants and cut flowers in the best and cheapest way.

TELLS you just what you want to know about every plant that there is any money in for a Commercial Florist.

HUNT'S GUARANTEED FERTILIZERS

OUR FERTILIZERS ARE PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR FLORISTS' USE and are analyzed by an expert chemist to see that they are free from all acids. You can depend upon their being just what you want, AND SAFE. You ought to have these on hand at all times, ready for use.

PURE BONE MEAL

The brand we are selling has no superior. It is an absolutely uniform grade of pure bone, guaranteed free from acids, and is sold at as low rates as many inferior brands, which cannot be used with safety in greenhouse work.

Guaranteed Analysis. Per ct.
Ammonia ..... 4 to 5
Phosphoric acid ..... 23 to 26
Equal to bone phosphate ..... 50 to 60
12 per cent immediately available and soluble in water.

Price

50 lb. bag ..... $ 1.25
100 lb. bag ..... 2.00
200 lb. bag ..... 3.50
1000 lbs., 1/2 ton ..... 15.00

HUNT'S PURE BONE FLOUR

This is identical with our Pure Bone Meal, except it is ground to a very fine dust or flour, making it especially valuable for use in liquid form or for mixing with other fertilizers when quick action is required.

17 per cent immediately available and soluble in water.

Price

50 lb. bag ..... $1.35      500 lb. bag ..... $ 9.00
100 lb. bag ..... 2.50      1000 lbs., 1/2 ton ..... 16.00
200 lb. bag ..... 4.00      2000 lbs., 1 ton ..... 30.00

BLOOD AND BONE

Preferred by many of our best and largest growers owing to its great percentage of ammonia and available phosphate, which makes it quick acting. It is a mixture of pure tankage or blood and the best grade of Bone Meal in proportions to stimulate root action and bring out the best color in the blooms.

Guaranteed Analysis

Ammonia ..... 6 1/2 to 7 1/2 Per cent

Price

50 lb. bag ..... $1.85      500 lb. bag ..... $ 9.00
100 lb. bag ..... 2.50      1000 lb. bag, 1/2 ton ..... 16.00

PULVERIZED SHEEP MANURE

One of the most effective of fertilizers and largely used by the best growers, both as a top dressing and in the manure tanks. The raw material for Hunt's Sheep Manure is the droppings taken from solid floor sheep corrals. Ordinary manures are largely shoveled up from the ground and contain a large proportion of soil for which you pay, but from which you get nothing except possibly weed seed. A trial order will convince the most skeptical of the superiority of our brand.

Guaranteed Analysis. Per ct.

Ammonia ..... 3 1/4 to 4
Available phos. acid ..... 1 1/2 to 2

Fred C. Smith has purchased a good bit of the old circus grounds at the head of Seventh avenue west and is putting in a fine nursery and greenhouse outfit there. It is his intention to grow all sorts of hardy shrubs such as are suitable for this climate. There is a great field for such an institution in Ashland, especially at this time, when the spirit of civic improvement is so active. Mr. Smith will try out various varieties of shrubs, trees and plants such as are not at the present time seen here, for the purpose of demonstrating whether they are adapted to the climate and soil, and if he finds them so to be, he will advertise the fact and furnish the trees or shrubs to those wishing to use these foreign plants. He has about twenty-two acres now incorporated in the nursery and will purchase more as it may be needed. This will develop in time into one of Ashland's best institutions, and it is only a question of a short time before the demand for trees and shrubs, as well as plants, will become very great all over this northern part of the state.

Greenhouse Heating.*CAPACITY OF BOILER.

I am now heating my greenhouses with a Furman No. 4008A and a Kroeschell No. 5. I want to know if the following boiler will do the same amount of work and as economically:

Vertical boiler, five feet in diameter, eleven feet six inches high; 268 tubes, two inches in diameter, nine feet seven and a half inches long. Fire box bell-mouth shaped, with a water leg or space of three inches all around the fire. Shaking grate fifty-four inches in diameter. The shell and fire-box three-eighths of an inch thick; heads, seven-sixteenths of an inch thick. This has been rated as a 100 horse-power boiler, and I want to use it for hot water and possibly to use pea or soft coal. J. Y.

It is evident from the data given and the rated capacity of your No. 4008A Furman boiler that the heating capacity of the one is just about equal to the other. The upright boiler has about 800 feet of heating surface, which makes it capable of carrying about 6,400 square feet of direct radiation, or nearly the same as the rated capacity of the No. 4008A boiler above noted, which is rated to carry 6,950 square feet of direct radiation. It is evident, therefore, that the boiler in question cannot be relied upon to take the place of the two you now have. L. C. C.

ASBESTOS IN DETROIT.

Since the recognition of the economy in the use of asbestos coverings for boilers and feed pipes the H. W. Johns-Manville Co. has done a large business with greenhouse owners, and the business interests of the concern in the city of Detroit and the territory adjacent thereto have increased to such an extent that a new branch is about to be opened there by that company. This branch will be located at 72 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, under the management of Willard K. Bush. Mr. Bush is well and favorably known throughout that section of the country, having been connected with the Milwaukee branch of the company for a number of years. The company will carry a complete stock of goods at the Detroit branch.

STEAM FOR FOUR HOUSES.

I have a range of four greenhouses, in the central part of New York state. Will you kindly advise me how to pipe them for steam, using 1-inch pipe? House No. 1 runs north and south and is 18x70. House No. 2 is 18x56. House No. 3 is 12x50. House No. 4 is 18x50. Nos. 2, 3 and 4 are connected houses, with partitions between, and run east and west. The night temperature in house No. 2 will be 60 degrees; in the other houses, 50 degrees.

GRAND ISLAND, NEB., January 22, 1906.

UNITED STATES HEATER CO., Omaha, Neb.

DEAR SIR:—We have one of your Capitol Boilers in our greenhouses, and I want to say that it is the finest Steam Boiler I ever saw. Glass surface is hard to heat, but we have no trouble whatever. It is saving us coal and we can keep a better temperature than we ever had before. No work to take care of it, no flues to clean. It is simply a bird. We shall build more houses in the near future, and shall want another of the very largest you have. Very respectfully,

JOHN ELLSWORTH, Bus. Mgr., Ellsworth Greenhouses.

This is the evidence of practical experience. If your present heating system does not give you similar results, surely you will put in a Capitol Boiler without delay. If you are building new greenhouses, surely you will equip with Capitol Boilers.

E. HIPPARD, Youngstown, Ohio

All outside walls are sheathed with 1-inch lumber and clapboards, with heavy paper between, and are four feet high. There is no glass in the side walls. The pitch of the roofs is about 32 degrees. I shall use solid beds and should like to have all the piping on the side walls. I cannot dig the boiler-pit more than five feet deep, unless it is possible to make a cement pit water-tight, without a drain.

How many pipes will be needed in each house? Should I have valves attached for shutting off in mild weather? What kind of check valves will be best in the other end of the pipes?

Your house No. 1, which is 18x70, requiring a night temperature of 50 degrees, will require a 2-inch riser and twelve 1-inch returns. These can be arranged either on the side walls or over the tops of the benches, as desired. House No. 2, 18x56, to carry 60 degrees, should have a 2-inch riser and fourteen returns. a 1½-inch flow and twelve 1-inch returns, and house No. 4 will also require a like amount.

Valves are a great convenience and should be placed in some of the returns, so as to reduce the amount of service pipe during mild weather. Globe valves are best for steam lines; one should be arranged so as to enable any one of the houses to be cut out without interfering with the others. Where checks are desirable and can be relied upon to do the work, swing checks are best. With your shallow boiler-pit it will be well to secure as low a boiler as possible, and even with the best you can secure you may not have satisfaction with a gravity system. You may find it necessary to install a return steam trap.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The cut flower trade has been good here the last week. A good supply of blooms is now coming into market. Tulips and daffodils are not much called for, as they are in bloom outdoors. Sweet peas of good quality are now coming in. Pansies, daisies and forget-me-nots are in good demand.

R. E. Nofftz is making fine window displays.

S. S. Peckham, of Fairhaven, is cutting large quantities of carnations. His Winsor are fine.

Peter Murray, of the same place, is busy with a large force of men in garden work.

E. G. Davis will have some fine ten weeks' stocks for Memorial day.

J. H. Cleary has had a big run on carnations. He is receiving some nice sweet peas.

Lots of tomato plants are to be seen around the stores. It is a little cool as yet for planting these.

Most of the stocks in this section will be in on time for Decoration day. Tulips outdoors are in full bloom now.

R. H. Woodhouse will plant a great many of the newer varieties of mums.

W. L.

PORTLAND, ME.—J. W. Minott & Sons will begin work soon in the erection of an additional greenhouse. Frank L. Minott will have charge of the carpenter work.

CLEVELAND.*The Market.

Stock of almost every kind still remains in short supply, as in the previous week, and the prevailing cool weather has improved the quality of roses and carnations wonderfully. Good flowers of all kinds have been cleaned up each day, and on Saturday there was not enough stock to fill all orders. Kaisersins have made their appearance and are welcomed by all, being used extensively in funeral work. Gardenias are being received in quantity, but there is little or no sale for them.

Various Notes.

A visit to the greenhouses of John Kirchner found stock in fine shape. A house of Boston ferns in pots is especially good. Several houses of bedding stock are without a doubt as good as ever seen here for Decoration day.

Knoble Bros., of West Twenty-fifth street, have had some large funeral orders the last week, using quantities of fine stock.

Smith & Fetters' window display the last week was one that would be sure to stop the passer-by. It consisted of Merry Widow hats, decorated with novelties in floyers, vegetables and fruits.

Fred Burki, of Pittsburg, was a guest of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. May 6, making the trip especially to inspect the heating plant of the F. R. Williams Co., where the Murphy automatic stoker is installed.

G. L. Pennock, of Lansdowne, Pa., was in town this week, visiting some of the larger places.

Peter Schmidt, of New Philadelphia, spent a day in town, buying some mum stock, etc. B.

Talks on Greenhouse Material

No. 5

You'll probably remember that last week we told you about the difference in the painting and the amount of paint required for rough and smooth lumber. It isn't alone the saving on the paint, for we believe in putting on lots of good white lead and oil, as it preserves the wood, but it is the saving on repairs that you want to consider. In our file we have a letter from a customer who built a range of houses just a few years ago and we wish you could come to our office and look at it along with several others. This particular letter, though, is a late one and a very interesting one. It tells of a man who built a range of houses in the same town, and at the same time as our customer did, who bought material for less money than our customer paid. It tells how this same man in a short time took out fifty sash bars that had rotted and bought fifty more. Our customer says he hasn't spent a cent for repairs and that the houses are just as good as they were when built.

Why save $10 on the first cost and spend twice the amount for needless repairs? Figure with us the next time.
